School Employee Union Contracts Now On-line

Union contracts for all local school districts in Michigan — including 170 that will expire this year — were released today by the Mackinac Center for Public Policy. All collective bargaining agreements covering teachers, janitors, bus drivers, mechanics, secretaries, librarians and a multitude of other positions are available on the Center's Web site.

The Mackinac Center's Ryan OLSON said the site allows individual school leaders to look at other district's contracts as they approach their own future contract negotiations.

"The contracts should also be interesting to Michigan taxpayers, since more than $19 billion was spent on Michigan K-12 public schools last year," Olson said.
