Overview of the Constitutional Convention Process

Provisions generally began as Committee Proposals and were then brought to the convention floor for first reading. The majority of debate on the substance of provisions occurred during the first and second readings. There were two third readings; the first on an article-by-article basis and the second reviewing the Constitution as a whole. Following the third readings the entire Constitution was voted on by the delegates. The delegates then created the Notice of Address to the People, summarizing the Constitution on a provision-by-provision basis, which was distributed so that the people could be informed when making their ratification votes.

The convention used ALL CAPS to denote added material and [brackets] to denote removed material.

O'Hara, quoting a ruling last June by the U. S. supreme court growing out of an Ohio case:

We hold that all evidence obtained by searches and seizures in violation of the federal constitution is, by that same authority, inadmissible in a state court.

For the record, I would like to state that this is not a hypothetical case involving hypothetical people by a hypothetical court in a hypothetical newspaper, and if the words quoted sound fairly familiar, you will find them on page 1090 of the July advance sheets of the United States Supreme Court Reports, law edition.

The second reference in which my name was used was by my distinguished friend, colleague, ex jurist, the man whom I have the honor of sitting across the aisle from. (laughter) He told the convention that I was unable to count in reference to a 37,000 to 6,000 vote in Washtenaw county. Well, I was never very good in higher mathematics, fellow delegates, but I have found out one thing: I at least am able to read and understand what I have read. Thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Reports of standing committees.

The gentleman from Isabella, Dr. Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: I rise to a point of personal privilege for comments.

We had quite a session this afternoon. I think that we can profit, perhaps, by this story of the teacher who, in the fall of the year, went out to a pasture, and she was dirty and tired and weary. She came to a beautiful stream that went down through the pasture. So she thought she would go swimming, but she had no bathing suit. After a while she decided she would go bathing because there was nobody within 2 miles of the place. So she went swimming. After a while she looked up, hearing a noise, and saw some youngsters tying knots in her clothing. She tried to shoo them away and frighten them away, but they wouldn't shoo and frighten. Moving around under water she stubbed her toe on something, reached down and discovered it was a tub. She brought the tub up and placed it in front of her in this fashion [indicating] and advanced on these youngsters, with her eyes blazing. She said, "You know what I think?" One kid said, "Yes. You think there's a bottom in the tub." (laughter)

[President Nisbet entered the chamber and assumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Hutchinson, for taking charge for me while I was away.

[Whereupon, Mr. Yeager assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The committee will be in order. The secretary will read the first item for consideration.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 8 on the calendar, from the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule, by Mr. Erickson, chairman, Committee Proposal 64, A proposal to amend article XVII, section 1 of the present constitution pertaining to amendment to the constitution; proposal by legislature and submission to electors.

Following is Committee Proposal 64 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. [Any amendment or] Amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate or house of representatives. If the same shall be agreed to by [2/3] A MAJORITY of the members elected to each house, such [amendment or] amendments shall be entered on the journals, respectively, with the yeas and nays taken thereon; and the same shall be submitted, NOT LESS THAN 60 DAYS THEREAFTER, to the electors at the next [spring or autumn] GENERAL OR SPECIAL election thereafter, as the legislature shall direct; and, if a majority of electors [qualified to vote for members of the legislature voting thereon] VOTING ON THE PROPOSED AMENDMENTS, shall ratify and approve such [amendment or] amendments, the same shall become part of the constitution.

Mr. Erickson, chairman of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 64:

History: The constitution of 1835 contained a provision that an amendment to the constitution could be proposed in either house of the legislature, and if agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each house, was to be referred to the next legislature. If 2/3 of the members of each house of the next legislature agreed to the proposal, it was submitted to the people. In the constitution of 1850 this provision was amended to its present form, and the 1907 convention continued this provision without change.

Committee recommendation: It is the recommendation of the committee that this provision be changed to allow a majority rather than 2/3 of the members elected to each house of the legislature to propose an amendment. The reason for our recommendation is that it is the unanimous belief of the committee that this method of amendment of the constitution should be encouraged. Any citizen or group of citizens wishing to accomplish a change in the constitution should find it easier to get the proposal introduced in the legislature than to obtain a large number of signatures on an initiatory petition. This then would give nearly any citizen or group the right to propose an amendment to the constitution to the legislature. A majority of amendments are now proposed by the legislature and we would prefer to see this method of amendment encouraged. Another conclusion reached by the committee was that this section is hardly logical as compared with the initiatory procedure. In this section, 67 per cent of each house of the legislature are required to propose an amendment. In the initiatory procedure, only 10 per cent of the electors are required.

There is no substitute for full debate to bring out all relevant facts about any issue. In this matter of a proposed constitutional amendment, the importance of bringing out all facts relative to the proposal is many times more important than in the case of statutes. Statutes can be repealed by the next legislature, but correcting errors in the constitution is a difficult, expensive process. Another advantage of full debate by the legislature is the publicity given to such debate. It is most difficult for most electors to understand fully the complicated legal language that appears on the ballot in the election that must be held to adopt constitutional amendments. Any information that can be given to the electors about any proposed amendment is most helpful. Amendment by the initiatory method may not provide any opportunity for debate, while amendments proposed by the legislature always provide for full debate, and full coverage of that debate, by all forms of news media.

Another great advantage of legislative proposals for amendment is the opportunity to carefully investigate and research the issues involved, and to carefully draft the language used in the proposed amendment. Without our committees to investigate each section and without our research and drafting services, few of us here would be very well equipped to vote. But, in the initiatory process, this is what the electors of the state are expected to do.

The committee was not unanimous in its decision on this matter; the vote being 11 in favor and 4 against. The minority, while agreeing that there was great benefit in having amendments proposed by the legislature, felt that this section would make it too easy to amend the constitution, and that the legislature could err. The majority, while agreeing that the constitution should not be too easily amended, felt that this method would still be difficult. Constitutions and amendments thereto, by their very nature, usually are limitations on legislative powers, and effect changes in the status quo. Therefore, legislatures are not very likely to look upon amendments with enthusiasm. Also, the majority of the committee pointed out that the legislature can not amend the constitution, but can only provide a method whereby the electors of the state can amend the document. If there is a real need for amendment, it would seem to be poor political practice to permit 1/3 of either house of the legislature, plus one member, to prevent the electors from exercising a power to amend that belongs only to them. Much criticism has been directed toward the legislature for its failure to act. The committee felt that we should not put any obstacles in the path of legislative action.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections did not concur with the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule for the following reasons:

1. The proposed section would make the constitution very easily amendable. This raises the definite possibility or probability that a new constitution would soon be cluttered with unnecessary, possibly ill considered, and often essentially statutory provisions. Thus, the new constitution would quickly take on many of the faults of the present constitution.

2. The constitution is, or should be, fundamental law. As such, it should be subject to amendment only by extraordinary procedure, as is the case with the federal constitution. The requirement of only a legislative majority and simple majority of the electors voting on the question seems to us to degrade the constitution to something less than fundamental law.

3. The proposed section would make it extremely easy for the legislature to avoid responsibility for controversial decisions, since they could readily pass the buck to the electors on any matter. We feel that the legislature should be required to face up to controversial issues, and in any case to allow them to be resolved by easy constitutional amendment seems unwise.

Explanation—Matter within [] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

4. Experience in other states, such as California, which have made it too easy for amendments to be submitted to the voters should warn us against such action. In these states it is not unusual for the voter to be confronted by 10, 20 or even more constitutional amendments. We fear that such a situation might arise in this state under the proposal before us.

Following is the minority report to Committee Proposal 64 as offered and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

Messrs. Hutchinson, Lawrence, Seyferth and Miss Donnelly, a minority of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule, submit the following minority report to Committee Proposal 64:

A MINORITY OF THE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS THAT COMMITTEE PROPOSAL 64 BE AMENDED TO REQUIRE THE CONCURRENCE OF 2/3 OF EACH HOUSE OF THE LEGISLATURE RATHER THAN A SIMPLE MAJORITY TO SUBMIT AMENDMENTS OF THE CONSTITUTION TO THE PEOPLE.

Messrs. Hutchinson, Lawrence, Seyferth and Miss Donnelly, a minority of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule, submit the following reasons in support of the foregoing minority report, which accompanied Committee Proposal 64:

We recommend that 2/3 of the members of each legislative house, rather than a simple majority, be required to submit constitutional amendments to the people.

The 2/3 majority is traditional, and is justified by the reasons pointed out by the committee on rights, suffrage and elections who had concurrent jurisdiction in this section. The traditional 2/3 requirement is also justified for the following reasons:

When the legislature makes laws, it acts by a simple constitutional majority in each house; but its action is subject to concurrence of the governor. Only with the governor's approval can the legislature pass a law by a majority. Without his approval, a 2/3 vote of each house is required. Constitutional amendments are not submitted to the governor for his approval or veto.

If we place requirements in addition to simple majority legislative action in the enactment of statutory law, how unwise it is to permit the submission of amendments to the fundamental law—upon which statutes are based—by a simple legislative majority. The majority of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule would make it easier for the legislature to submit constitutional amendments than to enact statutes.

All of the experience of the past supports the wisdom of making constitutions harder to amend than statutes. The requirement that 2/3 of each house must concur in the submission of an amendment, in the words of James Madison in the Federalist Papers, "guards equally against that extreme facility, which would render the constitution too mutable; and that extreme difficulty, which might perpetuate its discovered faults."

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair will recognize the committee chairman, Mr. Erickson.

MR. ERICKSON: This Committee Proposal 64 has to do with the amendment of the constitution by proposal by the legislature. Essentially, there is only one question to determine here: whether the legislature can put amendments on the ballot by a majority vote of both houses or by the 2/3 vote of both houses as presently prevails. Delegate Habermehl will present the majority report. Delegate Pollock will present the nonconcurring report from his committee. Then Mr. Hutchinson will present the minority report. I yield to Don Habermehl.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: Mr. Erickson yields to Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, the majority report and the accompanying explanation can be found in Journal 70 at pages 422 and 423. We will assume that you have all read it. The committee here has a rather unpleasant duty to perform in recommending the adoption of this proposal and the 2 to follow. After our long hours of deliberation here, after our careful selection of words and after style and drafting has polished these words, we must now submit to methods by which perhaps some less discriminating people can change our language.

The committee or, rather, the chairman of the subcommittee, gave briefly some consideration to the wisdom of recommending the exclusion from the constitution of all these 3 sections. This, then, would make our words truly immortal. No one could ever change them for the rest of time. There would be some practical political advantages to that, too, particularly on the part of an outstate Republican member of the convention. We were persuaded, however, that this might be considered rather unseemly pride of authorship and, since we must provide a method for amendment of the constitution, the committee decided to provide the one method now in use and now provided for in the present constitution. And there is only one method for amending the constitution: that is by affirmative vote of a majority of the electors of the state.

There are, in the present constitution, 3 means of permitting these electors to make this decision. These 3 means are by legislative proposal, by initiatory petition, and by constitutional convention. All 3 of these, though, I think it is important to keep in mind, are only mechanical means of framing ballot questions, questions upon which the people of the state can express their will. The committee proposes to continue all 3 of these means, and the first of these is Committee Proposal 64 that we now have under consideration.

I believe that the committee has found—through its investigation of this matter—and believes that the method of legislative proposal is the best method of the 3, although that may offend our pride slightly. The legislature can, if it will so do, propose amendments to this constitution so that it might be kept current and a radical revision of it might not be necessary. The legislators are familiar with the need for changes since this is their day to day business. They have available to them research and drafting services through the legislative service bureau, and last week we provided for a new legislative council, which would be a very adequate body to review the need for constitutional changes. And this is most important: on a legislative proposal for amendment there is a forum for complete debate of the issues. I think probably our own experience here has pointed up the importance of debate to bring out all relevant facts concerning these issues. We believe, too, that the chance of press coverage of the issues involved in a constitutional amendment are much greater in the legislature, the press covers the debate that occurs on the floor of the legislature—and in that way the people of the state, the electors, may be more fully advised on the issues on which they are going to be called upon to vote.

We believe, finally, that the legislative method of proposal, of proposing amendments to the constitution, is probably the most democratic. We think of the initiative as a democratic method but most of us realize that the individual citizen has little opportunity to initiate constitutional amendments. The job is a difficult and expensive one and it does require the interest and activity of a particular group. Sometimes these groups, of course, are special interest groups who are more interested in their particular problems than they are in the problems of the state as a whole.

We will not discuss the initiative and the convention methods except only as a means of comparison to this method of legislative proposals of amendments. The difficulty of the convention method principally, as we found out, is its expense. The expense of a new body, of a new staff to revise the constitution is a very considerable expense. If the legislature can do the job, it can do it in the regular course of its business, with its available staff, and it does not put the people of the state of Michigan to an added burden of expense. The convention method, of course, is one that is rarely used, and it is really only used when the document has not been kept current and a radical revision of the constitution seems to be necessary.

If, then, the method of legislative proposal is best, the committee believes that it should not be made more difficult. It should not be made impossible for the legislature to do this job. For that reason the committee proposes that we reduce the requirement that such a proposal receive a 2/3 vote of each house, so as to require only a majority of the members elected to each house. If we are to expect action from the legislature, we must not make it difficult for them to act, or impossible.

The legislative process differs from our own procedure here in quite a number of ways. For example, the chairman of the legislative committee is reluctant to report out any proposal or any bill unless he can be assured that there are enough votes on the floor to pass it. It is a human reaction. He does not care to be turned down on the floor of the legislature. And when you require a 2/3 vote of each house, it means that many of these proposals for amendment of the constitution would never be reported out of committee. A nose count is made. They find they do not have the necessary votes to pass it and the bill dies in the committee—or the proposal. Then the proposal does not get the benefit of floor debate. It does not get the benefit of the press coverage of that debate.

At present and for quite a number of years, we have had a fairly close party division in the one house of the legislature, particularly. This means that if an issue, a proposed amendment, has any partisan connotations, it may be an impossibility to secure a 2/3 majority of that house. Even in the other house where there is not a close party division, 12 votes—the votes of 12 senators—could prevent around 7 million people of the state from exercising a power that only they possess, and I doubt that we would want to give 12 men that veto power. Thus, if we do make it too difficult, if the proposed amendment is one that is clearly needed and popular, we only insure that if it cannot be done by the legislative process that the sponsors or backers of this amendment would be forced to use one of the other mechanical means, most likely the initiative petition method.

In this matter the committee was not unanimous as 4 members of the committee and also the committee that had concurrent jurisdiction with us on this proposal did not concur. In order to save the time of the convention and with the permission of the Chair, we would like to present our arguments on the points that they raised. We are not unmindful of the fact that there is also some advantage in meeting the arguments before they are made, but in view of the caliber of the opposition here I need all the advantage that I can get.

The opponents of the simple majority make these arguments: that reducing the majority from 2/3 to a simple majority would make the constitution too easy to amend. The majority of the committee do not wish to make the constitution too easy to amend, but we believe that the opponents are confusing the end with the means. If they are sincerely interested in making the constitution difficult to amend, they should direct their attention to the vote of the electors, which is the only way by which a constitution may be amended. They should then require more than a simple majority of the people voting upon the proposed amendment. They should not prevent the people from exercising this power by putting a veto power in a few people—in a few men in the legislature. We believe, too, that this would not in fact make the constitution difficult to amend, because the proponents would simply use a different method in proposing an amendment.

The opponents make the argument, too, that this action does not have—that the veto power of the governor is not available here and that, therefore, an extraordinary majority should be required, but the committee felt that there is a most direct veto power here, the veto power of the people themselves. This is not legislation. This is only a mechanical means of framing a ballot question.

And they make the point that traditionally, particularly in the federal constitution, the 2/3 vote is required. We do not believe that we can draw an analogy here between the federal constitution and the constitution of our state. The federal constitution resembles in some ways a contract between states, a delegation of power to a federal government. Here, instead, we provide a method for amendment by the people themselves in the exercise of a power that only they possess.

In conclusion, by the proposed change that we would make in this language, the committee hopes to encourage this method of proposing constitutional amendments. It is hoped that the proponents of change will look to the legislature to propose amendments. We hope that the legislature can and will distinguish between what is legislation and what is properly constitutional amendment. We feel confident that the legislature will do so, for we have, I believe, found that they are going to be most reluctant to give up powers that belong to them.

We proposed one other change, a rather minor one: on line 12, we require that the legislature submit the amendment to the people not less than 60 days after the proposed amendment has been approved. We have inserted the 60 day period. It was called to our attention by the elections division that on one occasion a proposed amendment was submitted just 13 days before the vote was to be had upon the proposed amendment. It became an impossibility or a near impossibility to get the matter on the ballot. In fact, we were told that they only got it on the ballot by breaking every election law that there was on the books. We were advised, too, that the 60 day period would be sufficient.

With the permission of the Chair and the chairman of the committee, I would like to yield the floor directly to the chairman of the committee that had concurrent jurisdiction, Delegate Pollock.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: If Mr. Erickson wishes to yield the floor to Dr. Pollock, Dr. Pollock is recognized.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections, having considered the proposal submitted to us for concurrence, in the report dated January 25, refused concurrence and stated the following reasons for refusing this concurrence:

First, the proposed section would make the constitution very easily amendable, that is, to propose amendments to it. This raises the definite possibility or probability that the new constitution would soon be cluttered with unnecessary, possibly ill considered, and often essentially statutory provisions. Thus, the new constitution would quickly take on many of the faults of the present constitution.

In the second place, the constitution is or should be fundamental law. As such, it should be subject to amendment only by extraordinary procedure as is the case with the federal constitution. The requirement of only a legislative majority and a simple majority of the electors voting on the question seems to us to degrade the constitution to something less than fundamental law.

The proposed section, in the third place, would make it extremely easy for the legislature to avoid responsibility for controversial decisions—as they seem to show a tendency to do—since they could readily pass the buck to the electors on any matter. We feel that the legislature should be required to face up to controversial issues and, in any case, to allow them to be resolved by easy constitutional amendment seems unwise.

In the fourth place, my committee argued, experience in other states—such as California—which have made it too easy for amendments to be submitted to the voters should warn us against such action. In these states it is not unusual for the voters to be confronted by 10, 20, or even more constitutional amendments. We fear that such a situation might arise in this state under the proposal before us.

This is the end of the committee objection, but I just add a personal remark: Delegate Habermehl was arguing that if we want to make the process difficult we ought to make it difficult for the people to adopt it. Well, of course, it is already very difficult for the people to adopt an amendment. It is difficult for the people to put an amendment on the ballot and our experience in studying the vote of the people on constitutional amendments indicates that they are sufficiently conservative about such matters. But if we authorize the legislature by a mere majority vote, as they pass a law, to do the same thing, I feel certain that the ballot will be cluttered up unnecessarily and, therefore, I think the proposal is not a sound one.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: Does the chairman, Mr. Erickson, wish to yield further?

MR. ERICKSON: There is a minority report.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. Chairman and members, Mr. Pollock has very ably presented our committee's view. I would just like to add one thing: there are in our constitution instances where a 2/3 vote of each house of the legislature is required to pass certain legislation. Under this, it would be easier to pass a resolution to put a proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot than it would be to pass laws on banking or some special act. It is not too difficult under certain circumstances to get a 2/3 vote of the legislature. I have seen the legislature get a 2/3 vote when there were barely more than 2/3 of the members present. It is not too unusual, if the matter really has popular demand. It seems to me the purpose of the initiative is to guard against any refusal of the legislature to do this if the people feel that they have been unnecessarily unwilling to do it. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The secretary will read the minority report amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Pursuant to the minority report of Messrs. Hutchinson, Lawrence, Seyferth and Miss Donnelly,

Mr. Hutchinson offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 9, after "by" by striking out "a majority" and inserting "2/3"; so the language will read: If the same shall be agreed to by 2/3 of the members elected to each house, such amendments shall be entered on the journals, respectively, with the yeas and nays taken thereon. . . .

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair will recognize Mr. Hutchinson on his amendment.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman and the members of the committee, the minority in the committee on miscellaneous provisions offered this amendment because we think that this is a revolutionary departure, in fact, that the majority wishes to make in the concept of the adoption of constitutional amendments.

We make this argument—first, we agree with the arguments made by Dr. Pollock—but we make this further argument: when the legislature makes a law, it acts by simple constitutional majority in each house, that is true, but its action is subject to the concurrence of the governor and if the governor vetoes any bill it takes 2/3 of the members of each house to enact the legislation. In other words, the legislature within its own confines and acting under its own power has to demonstrate a 2/3 majority to make any law. Even in the statutory provisions, even in the making of statutes, we place this additional burden upon the lawmaking process. We say that the legislature cannot make a law except it have the concurrence of the governor, and if it cannot get that concurrence then a 2/3 vote is required merely to write a statute.

Now, certainly, it is completely changing our concepts, putting the cart before the horse, and everything else, to make it easier for the legislature to submit a constitutional amendment than it is for the legislature to enact a statute law. Mr. Habermehl, for the majority, argues that it is the desire of the majority to make it very easy for a legislature to submit proposed amendments, thereby discouraging the use of the initiative, but the history of the situation does not bear his argument out. Certainly, at least 2/3 of the constitutional amendments which have been submitted to the people—and more than that—have been submitted by the legislature. Most of them are submitted by the legislature. Even by a 2/3 vote requirement it is easier, in a sense, to submit a constitutional amendment through the legislative process than it is to go out and get these initiatory petitions.

We feel very strongly about this thing. We think you are making a grave mistake if you let a simple majority in each house of the legislature submit constitutional amendments to the people, because, as I say, in permitting the legislature that power, you make it easier for the legislature to submit a constitutional amendment than you impose upon it to enact a law. That just is not sound.

The concept of tradition, also, should be respected here and we must remember that, somehow or other, constitutions are not supposed to be too easy to amend; they are supposed to be the fundamental law. They are supposed to be the law which the legislature cannot change, and they should be made amendable in that context. They should not be made too hard to amend, but certainly they should not be made too easy to amend. For that reason, then, we offer this amendment asking that you reinsert into this proposal the traditional concept of a 2/3 majority of each house in order to submit an amendment to the constitution.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The question is on the minority report amendment. As many as are in favor will say—Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, just a few remarks in rebuttal to Delegate Hutchinson's and Delegate Pollock's remarks: they would fear that the constitution would be easily amendable if a majority of the members elected to each house were permitted to propose them. I think that comes down to a fundamental question that has been before this committee on quite a few occasions: that a constitution is a limitation upon the authority of state government and that the legislature, by its very nature as one of the instruments of state government, is not going to be too anxious to limit its power. As a matter of fact, past history has shown that in recent years the difficulty has not been that the legislature tried to amend the constitution; the difficulty has been that the legislature refused to so act, making it necessary in many, many important fields—such as civil service and, for that matter, the calling of this convention—for the people to undertake the expensive and costly and unsatisfactory method of initiatory petition.

I do not fear in any way that this is going to result in a great number of amendments to the constitution appearing on the ballot. I think our own experience with the legislature will demonstrate a reluctance to act rather than an over eagerness in this field. The legislature cannot by this method pass the buck. As Delegate Pollock said, if it wishes to do so, all it needs to do is attach a requirement for a referendum on any statute that it passes. If the legislature is attempting to avoid responsibility for a particular piece of legislation, it is far simpler for them to simply call for a referendum on that legislation. They certainly would not go to the point of proposing a constitutional amendment merely to pass the buck to the people.

The experience cited by Dr. Pollock in California has been true. It has not been true as a result of legislative proposals, however. It has been true because California requires a very small percentage of the voters' signatures on initiatory petitions and the proposals that appear before the California electors are there as a result of this system of initiatory petition, not because of legislative proposals.

We had a number of witnesses before the subcommittee. The farm bureau representative was there; the representative from the AFL-CIO; the representative from the league of women voters; the representative from the American association of university women. Practically all of these and—as I remember—all of the witnesses that appeared felt that there was no necessity for the 2/3 majority and that it did a positive harm. We must remember that by the retention of this 2/3 majority you are giving to 12 senators the right to prevent 7,800,000 people in the state of Michigan from exercising a power that only those people possess: the right to amend the constitution. We believe that the veto in this direction is going in the wrong direction and that it should not be made mechanically impossible for the people of this state to express its will. We do not believe that that is good government.

We do not propose that you make it easy to amend the constitution and we do not believe that this proposed change would result in doing that. We simply believe that this proposed change would direct the attention of those of our citizens who want to see a change made to the legislature rather than to the use of an initiatory petition.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair will recognize Dr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the minority report amendment for several reasons. I would like to start out by saying that I agree with all of the remarks made by all of the opponents of the committee proposal and I would like to state exactly why with a further reason in addition. Before doing so, however, I would like to make this comment: it seems to me that this is an extremely crucial question and I am very concerned that because of the many absences and, possibly, for other reasons as well, it might be that this thing will be decided with very little reflection. I note that we are about ready to vote on the matter, apparently, and that there are not very many people here, and it seems to me that not enough cognizance has been taken of how crucial this question might be. The whole problem of amending the constitution should certainly be dear to our hearts because that is all we have been doing for about 6 months already and it seems to me we should not ignore any of the lessons learned by being here.

I would start out by stating as a reason for favoring the minority report amendment, that is to say requiring 2/3 of the members of each house instead of a majority, I would start out by concurring exactly in what Dr. Pollock said: the constitution must not be easy to amend. And I point out to the delegates that one of the reasons for holding the present constitutional convention was because the constitution itself has been too limiting and, as a result, too many amendments have been needed and too many have been adopted. If we go ahead and do the same thing all over again, it seems to me we confess our failure. Our job here is not to make it easy for constitutional amendments to be adopted later but to find out what changes are needed now and to make those changes and then to provide a document that is clear and flexible which will not need to be changed frequently.

But it is not only for that mechanical reason that I think the constitution should be difficult to amend. It seems to me that we ignore the whole idea of what a constitution is for when we reduce it close to a legislative matter. And the reason I state that is this: the constitution has some purpose beyond that of legislation, mainly—or partly, let us say—to protect minorities. We do not have a straight democratic system in any of our states; we have a constitutional democracy, which means that the majority has always to be limited by the minority, by the minority as is provided in the constitution. Minorities must not be subjected totally to the will of the majority under our system of government and the way that they are to be protected is by the constitution. Well, if you make the constitution easy to change, then there is no protection for minorities whatever. I have always asserted from the beginning that the proper way to protect minorities is by having a constitution which is not easy to change. It is not by letting the minority have any majority powers but, rather, by having a constitution which makes it difficult for the majority to take away the rights of minorities. Therefore, I concur first of all with Dr. Pollock's point that we must not make it easy to amend the constitution.

Secondly, I also concur with the remarks made by Mr. Stevens. The remarks made by Mr. Stevens pointed out that some kinds of legislation require a 2/3 vote of the legislature; whereas, in this case, it would be easier for the legislature to initiate a constitutional amendment than it would be to pass certain kinds of laws. Mr. Hutchinson also pointed out—perfectly correctly, in my opinion—that if the legislature passes a bill and it is vetoed by the governor, at that point, unless the legislature can get a 2/3 vote, the legislature is out of luck; but under the committee proposal the legislature would no longer be out of luck. They would have a further recourse: they could override the governor's veto in a different way by putting the legislation on the ballot and labeling it a constitutional amendment. There is nothing to prevent legislation from being put on the ballot as a constitutional amendment and in that way they could override or hope to override the governor—and it seems to me that it is quite likely that a great deal of that would happen. Every time the legislature is determined to pass something and the governor is determined that it shall not, the legislature is likely to put it on the ballot; so it would be easier in certain respects for them, again, to pass or to initiate a constitutional amendment and possibly to get it through than it would be to pass a law over the governor's veto.

One other point which has not been made by anyone, as far as I can recall, is this—yes, I am quite sure it has not been made; as a matter of fact, it was made in reverse by Mr. Habermehl and quite incorrectly—Mr. Habermehl said that this proposal, the committee proposal, will not permit the legislature to duck its responsibilities and he said that the reason for that is, this: they already have the power, he says, to submit a bill, an ordinary legislative matter, to a referendum by the people and this would just be rather similar to that. However, I would like to point out that in this particular spot we can easily see how reverse a logic we have fallen into.

If you would refer—and if you do not, I will do so for you—if you will refer to Committee Proposal 113, which is the one to which Mr. Habermehl refers, you will find this: that if the legislature wishes to duck its responsibilities, so to speak, by passing a bill and then submitting it to a referendum, it is easier for them to do it in the form of a constitutional amendment than as a bill, because under Committee Proposal 113 the legislature cannot—and I emphasize—they cannot submit a bill to a referendum unless it has been approved by the governor. But in the committee proposal before us at the present time, Committee Proposal 64, the legislature can submit a constitutional amendment to the people without the approval of the governor and it would be by a simple majority, by an ordinary majority. Therefore, it is perfectly clear that it would be easier for the legislature to put a referendum on the ballot to amend the constitution than it would just to adopt a law, the reason being the legislature can do it, can change the constitution or submit it to the people anyway, have a referendum on that, without the governor's approval, but if they wish to merely adopt a law it does require the governor's approval. It seems to me that we couldn't possibly have Committee Proposal 64, as it is now before us, and Committee Proposal 113 in the same constitution. That clearly degrades a constitutional amendment to a status lower than legislation.

I wish to point out in closing that we cannot be in a position of allowing a constitutional amendment or any part of the constitution to be easier to adopt and to have a lower status or anything resembling the status of legislation. To some extent we have already been guilty, no doubt, of putting legislation into the constitution but let's not make it even easier for that to happen in the future. I think that we should think this one over carefully. I feel that if we do, we will have to accept the minority report amendment and I urge all delegates to do so.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair will recognize Mr. Faxon.

MR. FAXON: Mr. Chairman, I concur with the remarks that have been made in support of the minority report amendment and would like to ask for the yeas and nays.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: Mr. Faxon demands the yeas and nays. Is there support? A sufficient number up. It will be so ordered. Mr. Leppien.

MR. LEPPHEN: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I merely rise to affirm what has been said and urge the affirmative vote on the minority report amendment for the reasons stated by the previous speakers.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. Chairman, I will not presume any further, since Dr. Nord covered the point that I had further to make, that is the point that, after all, you are making it easier—you are providing a method whereby the legislature can circumvent the veto power of the governor if you adopt this majority report. So I hope that you will go along with this minority report amendment and stick with tradition here.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair will recognize Mr. Farnsworth on the minority report amendment.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I want to briefly support the minority report amendment. I think it is highly important that the 2/3 majority go in there. I would like to take issue with Don Habermehl for just one moment. He said that the legislature would not, in all probability, use the necessary majority, the lower majority, simply to duck their responsibility. Now I submit to you folks here today that that simply does not square with the facts as they exist right on this very day. We have over in the senate—and Delegate Hutchinson and I come from a county where on the north of us we have a senator and on the south of us we have a senator, and at this very moment they are endeavoring to pass the responsibility on to the people by proposing to put the question up to the people as to whether they will or will not have an income tax. I say to you, Delegate Habermehl, that the legislature will duck their responsibility and they are doing it this very minute and you should not make it any easier for them to do it.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair will recognize Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, most of my points have been made by others. I would simply like to state the case of California—as an example of putting on the ballot so many proposals that the people cannot possibly handle them with intelligence—could well be the case of Michigan. It does not make any difference how you get them on there; if you have too many it is beyond the competence of even an unusually well informed voter.

Another point: Mr. Habermehl makes much of the technicality that the majority report is dealing merely with the provision for suggesting the amendment. That is certainly a part of the whole method of getting the constitution amended. If the proposal is not put on the ballot the people cannot vote on it, and if you put too much on the ballot they cannot possibly vote on it with any great intelligence. We couldn't either.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair recognizes Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I think it is very unusual to find a proposal on which such divergent spokesmen and leaders here are in such unanimous agreement. For instance, it is not very often that we find Dr. Nord, Dr. Pollock, Vice President Hutchinson, Harold Stevens, the great conservative, Jack Faxon, Delegates Leppien and Farnsworth all teamed up here in favor of the same proposition, and I would like to be a part of that kind of hodgepodge group here. (laughter)

I have been waiting with some concern to get this vote, so I could get down to style and drafting, because I am going to be sort of out of luck when I get down there, I think, because Chairman Cudlip wanted us to come down as soon as we could get away from here. I am afraid that I am going to be down there when that other thing that is somewhat along the same line comes along, and that is what kind of a vote we have to have to order a general revision of the constitution.

I know I am a little out of order mentioning that right now, but I wish we could restore that so we would have a majority of those that are voting in the election instead of a mere majority of those voting on the proposition. But I think after we have worked so hard to get a constitution in the best possible shape it should not be too easy to keep botching it up with too many amendments, so I hope that we will adopt this minority report amendment.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair recognizes Judge Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, after we have heard so much for 6 months about the sovereignty of the people, I am a bit upset to hear the advocates of 2 opposing political philosophies so concerned all of a sudden about the possibility that the people might have an opportunity to override their governor's veto.

Personally, I am impressed by the arguments on both sides. I think 66 2/3 per cent is a bit too high in both places. Possibly, a majority is a bit too low, but as between the 2, I would have to go along with the majority proposal.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The question is on the minority report amendment. The yeas and nays have been demanded. Did you wish recognition, Mr. Habermehl?

MR. HABERMEHL: For just a few remarks, Mr. Chairman. I would ask all the delegates to keep this in mind: you have heard—and I am facing quite a coalition on this minority report amendment—you have heard so many references to legislation; well, now, stop for a moment and think that this is not legislation. We presume that the legislature has power to pass bills. We presume that they would prefer to keep that jurisdiction within their own power. What we are talking about here is something entirely different from legislation. Think back to your fundamental principles of political science: no one in the state of Michigan but the people of the state have the right to amend the document. The governor's veto is certainly not involved, because no one here—I hope—would give the governor the power to prevent the people from amending the constitution. Yet here the minority amendment would say 12 people in the senate have got the right to prevent the people from exercising this power.

I ask each and every one of you: what kind of constitutional law is that? Do you want to put that kind of control in the hands of 12 people to prevent the electors of the state from exercising the power that only they possess? Don't be distracted by this talk of legislation. Lord knows the legislature is not going to freeze something in the constitution beyond their control if they can avoid it.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair would ask the members of the committee to clear the board, please, before we take the vote. The question is on the minority report amendment. The yeas and nays have been ordered. This is a recorded roll call vote. As many as are in favor of the minority report amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote nay. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the minority report amendment, the yeas are 94; the nays are 9.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The minority report amendment is adopted. Are there further amendments on file to this proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: Judge Dehnke offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 9, after "by" by striking out "2/3" and inserting "60 per cent or more"; so the language will then read:

If the same shall be agreed to by 60 per cent or more of the members elected to each house, such amendments shall be entered on the journals. . . .

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair will recognize Judge Dehnke on his amendment.

MR. DEHNKE: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I indicated a few minutes ago that I inclined to the opinion that 2/3 was a bit too high; possibly a bare majority a bit too low. I agree that it ought not to be made easy to amend the constitution. Personally, I would prefer to see 60 per cent in both places, but the amendment I am offering merely refers to the vote of the legislature required to submit it. It seems to me that requiring 60 per cent of the vote in both houses, a point about halfway between the majority and 2/3, affords all the guarantees that are necessary to prevent rash action and still go a bit further to make it less difficult to give the people an opportunity to pass upon proposed amendments.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The question is upon the Dehnke amendment. As many as are in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted. Are there further amendments, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Rush, Powell, J. B. Richards and Rood offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 16, after "voting" by striking out "on the proposed amendments" and inserting "in that election"; so that the language will then read:

. . . and, if a majority of electors voting in that election, shall ratify and approve such amendments, the same shall become part of the constitution.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: Who is the first proponent there, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Rush.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: Mr. Rush, do you wish to be recognized?

MR. RUSH: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I think that for this amendment we could give the same reason that Dr. Pollock gives for the other one, and that is we do not want to make it too easy to clutter up the constitution. That has been the fault that many people have found with our present constitution. It has been amended too many times. That was one of the reasons advanced for having a constitutional convention. And this amendment would accomplish that. In other words, people when they do not understand an amendment, a proposed amendment, will oftentimes refrain from voting on it instead of voting against it, and in many cases if they do not vote at all it amounts to almost a yes vote if you do not take into consideration the entire vote cast at that election. And so we are submitting this proposed amendment to make it a little bit more difficult to amend our constitution.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, it seems to me that there is hardly any question but what our present procedure, a 2/3 vote in both houses and the majority vote of those voting on the question, is a difficult procedure. Most of the amendments which have been passed have been passed after they have been submitted by the legislature, but nobody, I think, can contend that it is an easy procedure. In other words, the argument that Mr. Rush makes is that we want to make it hard, and we have already done that. It is difficult now, very difficult, and I think should remain so, but it should not be loaded and unfair, and it would be if Mr. Rush's amendment carried.

May I remind you that we would not be here in a convention if we had not removed a similar provision which existed with reference to the calling of a constitutional convention. We had to pass the "gateway" amendment to remove just such a provision before it was possible for the people to summon this convention.

Now when you say a majority of those voting in the election, you are talking, of course, about the highest vote in the election and it is everybody's experience, I am sure, that we have a smaller vote on propositions than we do on governors and presidents. Therefore, you are making it so unfair, you are loading it so much against it, that it is most unlikely that amendments would ever carry and it was just that experience, may I remind you, which led to the adoption of the "gateway" amendment which made this convention possible. I think Mr. Rush is going far too far and making quite an unfair requirement.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The Chair will recognize Mrs. Cushman. Did you wish recognition, Mrs. Cushman?

MRS. CUSHMAN: I think Dr. Pollock has already said what I was going to say, thanks.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: The question is on the Rush amendment. As many as are in favor will say aye. Opposed, no. The amendment is not adopted. Are there further amendments, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: Are there any amendments to the body of the proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

CHAIRMAN YEAGER: If not, it will pass.

Committee Proposal 64, as amended, is passed. The secretary will read the next item.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 9 on the calendar, from the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule, by Mr. Erickson, chairman, Committee Proposal 65, A proposal to amend article XVII, sections 2 and 3, pertaining to amendment and revision of the constitution.

Following is Committee Proposal 65 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. Amendments may also be proposed to this constitution by petition of the [qualified and] registered electors of this state. Every such petition shall include the full text of the amendment so proposed, and be signed by [qualified and] registered electors of the state equal in number to [not less than] AT LEAST 10 per centum of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election, at which a governor was elected[.], [Petitions of qualified and registered electors proposing an amendment to this constitution shall be filed with the secretary of state or such other person or persons hereafter authorized by law to receive same at least 4 months before the election at which such proposed amendment is to be voted upon. The legislature may prescribe penalties for causing or aiding and abetting in causing any fictitious or forged name to be affixed to any petition, or for knowingly causing petitions bearing fictitious or forged names to be circulated. Upon receipt of said petition the secretary of state or other person or persons hereafter authorized by law shall canvass the same to ascertain if such petition has been signed by the requisite number of qualified and registered electors, and may, in determining the validity thereof, cause any doubtful signatures to be checked against the registration records by the clerk of any political subdivision in which said petitions were circulated, for properly determining the authenticity of such signatures. If the secretary of state or other person or persons hereafter authorized by law to receive and canvass same determines the petition is legal and in proper form and has been signed by the required number of qualified and registered electors, the proposed amendment shall be submitted to the electors at the next regular election at which any state officer is to be elected. An official declaration of the sufficiency or insufficiency of the petition shall be made by the

The motion prevails.

Sec. 1. All political power is inherent in the people. Government is instituted for their equal benefit, security and protection.

Sec. 2. The people have the right peaceably to assemble, to consult for the common good, to instruct their representatives and to petition the government for redress of grievances.

Sec. 3. Every person shall be at liberty to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. No person shall be compelled to attend, or, against his consent, to contribute to the erection or support of any place of religious worship [;], or to pay tithes, taxes or other rates for the support of any minister of the gospel or teacher of religion. No money shall be appropriated or drawn from the treasury for the benefit of any religious sect or society, theological or religious seminary; nor shall property belonging to the state be appropriated for any such purpose. The civil and political rights, privileges and capacities of no person shall be diminished or enlarged on account of his religious belief.

Sec. 4. Every person may freely speak, write, express, and publish his views on all subjects, being responsible for is prevented from applying her separate estate in this particular way.

Now, actually there have been so many statutory inroads toward reducing the disabilities of coverture that it would seem desirable to me that we should make this forthright statement that the disabilities of coverture are abolished, and actually give women a more complete and unrestricted right to deal with their separate estate.

Blandford	Heideman	Norris

Everett	Koeze, Mrs.	Youngblood

SECRETARY CHASE: On the passage of Committee Proposal 63, as amended, the yeas are 104; the nays, 9.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Committee Proposal 63, as amended, is passed.

Following is explanation of vote submitted by Mrs. Cushman:

Explanation of yes vote on Committee Proposal 63.

While I feel that the proposal, as it stands, does not adequately protect the rights of married women to their property, I still believe that this section as it stands is better than no provision at all. I favor the proposal as it stood before second reading.

PRESIDENT NISBET (continuing): It is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 63 as amended and rereferred to the committee on style and drafting:

Sec. a. The real and personal estate of every woman, acquired before marriage, and all property to which she may afterwards become entitled by gift, grant, inheritance or devise, shall be and remain the estate and property of such woman, and shall not be liable for the debts, obligations or engagements of her husband, and may be devised or bequeathed by her as if she were unmarried.

PRESIDENT NISBET (continuing): The secretary will read the next proposal. Will the delegates please clear the board?

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 12 on the calendar, Committee Proposal 64, A proposal to amend article XVII, section 1 of the present constitution pertaining to amendment to the constitution; proposal by legislature and submission to electors.

Following is Committee Proposal 64 as reported by the committee on style and drafting and read by the secretary. (For text as referred to said committee, see above, page 2472.):

Sec. a. Amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate or house of representatives. [If the same shall be] PROPOSED AMENDMENTS agreed to by 2/3 of the members elected to AND SERVING IN each house ON A YEA AND NAY VOTE ENTERED IN THE RESPECTIVE JOURNALS[, such amendment shall be entered on the journals, respectively, with the yeas and nays taken thereon; and the same] shall be submitted, not less than 60 days thereafter, to the electors at the next general ELECTION or special election PRIOR THERETO [thereafter,] as the legislature shall direct[;] . [and,] If a majority of electors voting on [the] SUCH A proposed amendment[s, shall ratify and] approve such amendment[s], [the same] IT shall become part of the constitution AND SHALL ABROGATE OR AMEND EXISTING PROVISIONS OF THE CONSTITUTION AT THE END OF 45 DAYS AFTER THE DATE OF THE ELECTION AT WHICH IT WAS APPROVED.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Erickson.

MR. ERICKSON: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I would like to yield to Delegate Habermehl, who was chairman of the subcommittee, on this committee proposal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. President, this section on amendment and revision has been changed somewhat in style and drafting. I find nothing wrong with the language except that I do not completely understand the language in line 7, the words "prior thereto." I am told by Mr. Hanna that the words "prior thereto" refer to the special election rather than the general election. But the inclusion of the words seems to make them refer to both the general election and special election prior to the expiration of the 60 days, and I wonder if I could ask Mr. Cudlip if style and drafting would have any serious objection to striking those 2 words.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Cudlip.

Explanation—Matter within [] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. President, members, I will yield to Mr. Hanna. I have been over here worrying about the women and wasn't paying much attention to what was going on. I am sorry. Mr. Hanna is an esteemed member of the committee, and I am sure he can answer the question.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. President, fellow delegates, I see no objection to the striking of the "prior thereto." It was meant that they would submit it at the next election, whether it be general or special, and Mr. Habermehl referred it to me the first thing this morning and I was as confused as he was, and I went back to Mr. Staiger, and then it dawned on me why we said it, and I really think it would be clearer if we strike the "prior thereto" and leave stricken the "thereafter" so that it clearly states you submit it to the electors at the next general election or special election.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Habermehl offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 7, after "election" by striking out "prior thereto"; so the language will then read "... shall be submitted, not less than 60 days thereafter, to the electors at the next general election or special election as the legislature shall direct."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment offered by Mr. Habermehl. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. President, the committee then urges the adoption of the committee proposal as amended.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of Committee Proposal 64, as amended. Those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote nay. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Article IV

Legislative Branch

Sec. 1. The legislative power of the State of Michigan is vested in a senate and a house of representatives.

Sec. 2. The senate shall consist of 38 members[,] to be elected from single member districts at the same [time] ELECTION as the governor for [4] FOUR-year terms concurrent with the term of office of the governor.

In districting the state for the purpose of electing senators after the official publication of the total population count of each federal decennial census, each county shall be assigned an apportionment factor equal to the sum of its percentage of the state's population as shown by the last regular federal decennial census computed to the nearest [1/100] ONE-ONE HUNDREDTH of one percent multiplied by [4] FOUR and its percentage of the state's land area computed to the nearest [1/100] ONE-ONE HUNDREDTH of one percent.

In arranging the state into senatorial districts, the apportionment commission shall be governed by the following rules:

(1) Counties with 13 or more apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. After each such county has been allocated one senator, the remaining senators to which this class of counties [are] IS entitled shall be distributed among such counties by the method of equal proportions applied to the apportionment factors.

(2) Counties having less than 13 apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment FACTORS of the state computed to the nearest whole number. Such counties shall thereafter be arranged into senatorial districts that are compact, convenient, and contiguous by land, as rectangular in shape as possible, and having as nearly as possible 13 apportionment factors, but in no event less than 10 or more than 16. Insofar as possible, existing senatorial districts at the time of reapportionment shall not be altered unless there [shall be] IS a failure to comply with the above standards.

(3) Counties entitled to [2] TWO or more senate districts shall be [further sub]divided into single member districts. The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the county by the number of senators to which it is entitled. Each such district shall follow incorporated city or township boundary lines to the extent possible and shall be compact, contiguous, and as nearly uniform in shape as possible.

Sec. 3. The house of representatives shall consist of 110 members elected for [2] TWO-year terms from single member districts apportioned on a basis of population as [hereinafter] provided IN THIS ARTICLE. The districts shall consist of compact and convenient territory contiguous by land.

Each county which has a population of not less than [7/10] SEVEN-TENTHS of one percent of the population of the state shall constitute a separate representative area. Each county having less than [7/10] SEVEN-TENTHS of one percent of the population of the state shall be combined with another county or counties to form a representative area of not less than [7/10] SEVEN-

Explanation—Matter within [] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

SECRETARY CHASE: That was the last amendment, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the adoption of article XII. Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, and fellow delegates, this article—

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The convention will please be in order.

MR. DOWNS: — is in many ways one of the most important parts of the constitution before us, and I rise to urge a no vote for some reasons that were considered in committee of the whole and second reading in our section on apportionment. I want to point out that in section 3, where we say that future conventions will be on the basis of one senator and one representative district, we are, in turn, basing that upon a legislative body that is not truly representative. And the result is that we are doom-ing future conventions, regardless of the good will and the integrity of the individuals thereof, to be nonrepresentative of the people of the state, and the document must be returned to the people on a truly representative basis.

I cite figures I have received for our own convention that in this convention the Democratic delegates at the con con received 779,000 votes, the Republicans 991,000 votes. If the representation of the convention were on a more accurate representation of the people, we would have had 63 Democrats and 81 Republicans. I make this not in reference to any individual delegate but point out the party difference would have been 18 rather than 54, which is much closer to the true representation of the people throughout Michigan. I believe that any convention, to be truly successful, must start by being truly representative and I therefore urge a no vote on article XII in the hope that between now and the wind up of the convention we can make corrections on the apportionment problem or devise a different means for selecting con con delegates.

The same principle indirectly applies to section 1, where it says 2/3 of both houses are needed to put an amendment on the ballot and the 2/3, again, could represent less than a majority of the people or substantially more than 2/3 depending upon where they were selected. For those reasons I urge a no vote on the article.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Perras.

MR. PERRAS: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I would like to ask a question of Mr. Downs, through the Chair, if I may.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: You may proceed.

MR. PERRAS: This is a question that I have wanted to ask since the convention started. Now he has just advocated voting no on this article because of the way that the apportionment is at this present time. Now I would like to ask this question if I may: if the thing was reversed and the minority party had control of the senate and of the house of representatives, would his answer then be the same as it is now?

MR. DOWNS: I would hope, Mr. Perras, that the answer would be the same. I wish to point out that it may be a mistake for those of us that are asking equality. We should perhaps be asking for super equality for the next 50 years to make up for the inequalities of the last 50 years, then compromise on equality. Perhaps that has been our basic mistake in the whole convention.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I would just like to suggest to Mr. Downs that after 1970 Michigan will probably have the best apportioned 2 chamber legislature in the United States.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Marshall. Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I want to echo what Delegate Downs says and I also would like to say to Delegate Perras: just try us. Give us a senate apportioned on the basis of straight population. Give us a chance and we will show you that Delegate Downs will keep his word.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: I suggest to Mr. Stevens that if this proposed apportionment is so good in 1975, why isn't it any good today?

MR. PERRAS: I move the previous question now, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Perras moves the previous question. Is the demand for the previous question on the article supported? It is supported; 10 or more are up. The question now is: shall the main question be put? All those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. The previous question is ordered. The question now is upon the passage of article XII, as amended. All those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the passage of article XII, as amended, the yeas are 90; the nays are 34.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: A majority of the delegates elect having voted in favor thereof, article XII, as amended, is passed.

For section 1 of article XII as passed, see above, page 3072.

Following is section 2 of Article XII as amended and passed by the convention:

Sec. 2. Amendments may be proposed to this constitution by petition of the registered electors of this state. Every petition shall include the full text of the proposed amendment, and be signed by registered electors of the state equal in number to at least 10 percent of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected. Such petitions shall be filed with the person authorized by law to receive the same at least 120 days before the election at which the proposed amendment is to be voted upon. Any such petition shall be in the form, and shall be signed and circulated in such manner, as prescribed by law. The person authorized by law to receive such petition shall upon its receipt determine, as provided by law, the validity and sufficiency of the signatures on the petition, and make an official announcement thereof at least 60 days prior to the election at which the proposed amendment is to be voted upon.

Any amendment proposed by such petition shall be submitted, not less than 120 days after it was filed, to the electors at the next general election. Such proposed amendment, existing provisions of the constitution which would be altered or abrogated thereby, and the question as it shall appear on the ballot shall be published in full as provided by law. Copies of such publication shall be posted in each polling place and furnished to news media as provided by law.

The ballot to be used in such election shall contain a statement of the purpose of the proposed amendment, expressed in not more than 100 words, exclusive of caption. Such statement of purpose and caption shall be prepared by the person authorized by law, and shall consist of a true and impartial statement of the purpose of the amendment in such language as shall create no prejudice for or against the proposed amendment.

If the proposed amendment is approved by a majority of the electors voting on the question, the proposed amendment shall become part of the constitution, and shall abrogate or amend existing provisions of the constitution at the end of 45 days after the date of the election at which it was approved. If two or more amendments approved by the electors at the same election conflict, that amendment receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail.

Following is section 3 of article XII as amended and passed:

Section 3. At the general election to be held in the year 1978, and in each 16th year thereafter and at such times as may be provided by law, the question of a general revision of the constitution shall be submitted to the electors of the state. If a majority of the electors voting on the question decide in favor of a convention for such purpose, at an election to be held not later than six months after the proposal was certified as approved, the electors of each representative district as then organized shall elect one delegate and the electors of each senatorial district as then organized shall elect one delegate at a partisan election. The delegates so elected shall convene at the seat of government on the first Tuesday in October next succeeding such election or at an earlier date if provided by law.

The convention shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings and judge the qualifications, elections and returns of its members. The governor shall appoint a qualified resident of the same district to fill a vacancy in the office of any delegate who shall be a member of the same party as the delegate vacating the office if the legislature provides for partisan election of delegates. The convention shall have power to appoint such officers, employees and assistants as it deems necessary and to fix their compensation; to provide for the printing and distribution of its documents, journals and proceedings; to explain and disseminate information about the proposed constitution and to complete the business of the convention in an orderly manner. Each delegate shall receive for his services compensation provided by law.

No proposed constitution or amendment adopted by such convention shall be submitted to the electors for approval as hereinafter provided unless by the assent of a majority of all the delegates elected to and serving in the convention, with the names and vote of those voting entered in the journal. Any proposed constitution or amendments adopted by such convention shall be submitted to the qualified electors in the manner and at the time provided by such convention not less than 90 days after final adjournment of the convention. Upon the approval of such constitution or amendments by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon the constitution or amendments shall take effect as provided by the convention.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON (continuing): Mr. Garry Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. President, at this time, before considering the next article or the next provision of the constitution, I would move to reconsider the vote on article V, which was passed yesterday, dealing with the executive branch.

For vote on passage of article V, see above, page 3124.

To be very candid with you, very frank, the purpose of doing this is for one purpose only, and that is to reconsider the vote by which the highway commissioner was made an appointive rather than an elective officer. Two amendments are on the secretary's desk relative to this matter which would make this office the same as the secretary of state and the attorney general relative to election, nominations, vacancies and what have you. It is very simple. It is for that purpose only. I would therefore urge a yes vote on reconsideration of the vote by which the executive article passed yesterday.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Downs, on the motion to reconsider.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I rise in support of the motion on reconsideration. I believe on this motion we are entitled to speak on the merits of the question and what I would more properly call the demerits.

We now have the matter of the highway commissioner, as we know, left up to the legislature and it is an elected one. There was also a dispute, I would say, within the convention as to whether the highway commissioner should be elected or whether he should be appointed by the governor. There were arguments for both. I favored the first. What we ended up with was a monstrosity that has neither the advantages of the elected system nor that of the appointed one. It divides responsibility. Our old friend, advice and consent, enters in through the back door and the present setup that was adopted is one that absolutely refutes the concept of responsibility. I cannot conceive of either a business or government operating effectively under this system. The vote was close. I urge the reconsideration in hopes that we can change what we did on the matter of the highway commissioner. Thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. Can an article which has been passed on third reading by a majority of all delegates elected and serving in the convention now be reconsidered by a simple majority of those present?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Yes, it can, Mr. Bentley. It will still take 73 votes to adopt it the second time, but the rules of the convention permit a reconsideration by a majority of the votes cast. Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President and members of the convention, it seems hardly necessary to speak at this late hour against a move to reconsider, but I do want to do so.

I would call the convention's attention to the fact that article V, yesterday, at a much more favorable hour than now, passed by a vote of 91 to 35. Now, certainly, the big majority of us thought that we had a very, very satisfactory article. I submit to you, my friends, that the mood that this particular convention is in at this time of night, any time — and here we are on the last day of the convention — is no time to move for a reconsideration on something that we settled with such a decisive vote as we did this. I urge you to vote against reconsideration.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, might we hear the amendments which Mr. Brown proposes to offer if reconsideration is granted?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The secretary will read them. They are not before the body at the present time.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Garry Brown has filed the following amendments to article V —

MR. BARTHWELL: I object. I don't see how this is in order.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: What?

MR. BARTHWELL: You ought to have a vote before you read them.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Objection is heard. The

PREAMBLE

We, the people of the State of Michigan, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of freedom, and earnestly desiring to secure these blessings undiminished to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution.

The sufficiency of any statement of reasons or grounds procedurally required shall be a political rather than a judicial question.

Sec. 9. The people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and to enact and reject laws, called the initiative, and the power to approve or reject laws enacted by the legislature, called the referendum. The power of initiative extends only to laws which the legislature may enact under this constitution. The power of referendum does not extend to acts making appropriations for state institutions or to meet deficiencies in state funds and must be invoked in the manner prescribed by law within 90 days following the final adjournment of the legislative session at which the law was enacted. To invoke the initiative or referendum, petitions signed by a number of registered electors, not less than eight percent for initiative and five percent for referendum of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected shall be required.

No law as to which the power of referendum properly has been invoked shall be effective thereafter unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at the next general election.

Any law proposed by initiative petition shall be either enacted or rejected by the legislature without change or amendment within 40 session days from the time such petition is received by the legislature. If any law proposed by such petition shall be enacted by the legislature it shall be subject to referendum, as hereinafter provided.

If the law so proposed is not enacted by the legislature within the 40 days, the state officer authorized by law shall submit such proposed law to the people for approval or rejection at the next general election. The legislature may reject any measure so proposed by initiative petition and propose a different measure upon the same subject by a yea and nay vote upon separate roll calls, and in such event both measures shall be submitted by such state officer to the electors for approval or rejection at the next general election.

Any law submitted to the people by either initiative or referendum petition and approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon at any election shall take effect 10 days after the date of the official declaration of the vote. No law initiated or adopted by the people shall be subject to the veto power of the governor, and no law adopted by the people at the polls under the initiative provisions of this section shall be amended or repealed, except by a vote of the electors or three-fourths of the members elected to and serving in each house of the legislature. Laws approved by the people under the referendum provision of this section may be amended by the legislature at any subsequent session thereof. If two or more measures approved by the electors at the same election conflict, that receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail.

The legislature shall implement the provisions of this section.

Article III

General Government

Sec. 4. The militia shall be organized, equipped and disciplined as provided by law.

Any other provision of this constitution notwithstanding, an officer or employee of the state or of any such unit of government or subdivision or agency thereof may serve on or with any governmental body established for the purposes set forth in this section and shall not be required to relinquish his office or employment by reason of such service. The legislature may impose such restrictions, limitations or conditions on such service as it may deem appropriate.

Sec. 6. The state shall not be a party to, nor be financially interested in, any work of internal improvement, nor engage in carrying on any such work, except for public internal improvements provided by law.

Sec. 7. The common law and the statute laws now in force, not repugnant to this consti-

Sec. 8. Either house of the legislature or the governor may request the opinion of the supreme court on important questions of law upon solemn occasions as to the constitutionality of legislation after it has been enacted into law but before its effective date.

Article IV Legislative Branch

Sec. 1. The legislative power of the State of Michigan is vested in a senate and a house of representatives.

Sec. 2. The senate shall consist of 38 members to be elected from single member districts at the same election as the governor for four-year terms concurrent with the term of office of the governor.

In districting the state for the purpose of electing senators after the official publication of the total population count of each federal decennial census, each county shall be assigned an apportionment factor equal to the sum of its percentage of the state's population as shown by the last regular federal decennial census computed to the nearest one-one hundredth of one percent multiplied by four and its percentage of the state's land area computed to the nearest one-one hundredth of one percent.

In arranging the state into senatorial districts, the apportionment commission shall be governed by the following rules:

(1) Counties with 13 or more apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. After each such county has been allocated one senator, the remaining senators to which this class of counties is entitled shall be distributed among such counties by the method of equal proportions applied to the apportionment factors.

(2) Counties having less than 13 apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. Such counties shall thereafter be arranged into senatorial districts that are compact, convenient, and contiguous by land, as rectangular in shape as possible, and having as nearly as possible 13 apportionment factors, but in no event less than 10 or more than 16. Insofar as possible, existing senatorial districts at the time of reapportionment shall not be altered unless there is a failure to comply with the above standards.

(3) Counties entitled to two or more senate districts shall be divided into single member districts. The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the county by the number of senators to which it is entitled. Each such district shall follow incorporated city or township boundary lines to the extent possible and shall be compact, contiguous, and as nearly uniform in shape as possible.

Sec. 3. The house of representatives shall consist of 110 members elected for two-year terms from single member districts apportioned on a basis of population as provided in this article. The districts shall consist of compact and convenient territory contiguous by land.

Each county which has a population of not less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state shall constitute a separate representative area. Each county having less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state shall be combined with another county or counties to form a representative area of not less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state. Any county which is isolated under the initial allocation as provided in this section shall be joined with that contiguous representative area having the smallest percentage of the state's population. Each such representative area shall be entitled initially to one representative.

After the assignment of one representative to each of the representative areas, the remaining house seats shall be apportioned among the representative areas on the basis of population by the method of equal proportions.

Any county comprising a representative area entitled to two or more representatives shall be divided into single member representative districts as follows:

(1) The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the representative area by the number of representatives to which it is entitled.

(2) Such single member districts shall follow city and township boundaries where applicable and shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory as nearly square in shape as possible.

Any representative area consisting of more than one county, entitled to more than one representative, shall be divided into single member districts as equal as possible in population adhering to county lines.

Sec. 4. In counties having more than one representative or senatorial district, the territory in the same county annexed to or merged with a city between apportionments shall become a part of a contiguous representative or senatorial district in the city with which it is combined, if provided by ordinance of the city. The district or districts with which the territory shall be combined shall be determined by such ordinance certified to the secretary of state. No such change in the boundaries of a representative or senatorial district shall have the effect of removing a legislator from office during his term.

Sec. 5. Island areas are considered to be contiguous by land to the county of which they are a part.

Sec. 6. A commission on legislative apportionment is hereby established consisting of eight persons, four of whom shall be selected by the state organizations of each of the two political parties whose candidates for governor received the highest vote at the last general election at which a governor was elected preceding each apportionment. If a candidate for governor of a third political party has received at such election more than 25 percent of such gubernatorial vote, the commission shall consist of 12 members, four of whom shall be selected by the state organization of the third political party. One member of the commission shall be selected by each political party organization from each of the following four regions: (1) The upper peninsula; (2) The northern part of the lower peninsula, north of a line drawn along the northern boundaries of the counties of Bay, Midland, Isabella, Mecosta, Newaygo and Oceana; (3) Southwestern Michigan, those counties south of region (2) and west of a line drawn along the western boundaries of the counties of Bay, Saginaw, Shiawassee, Ingham, Jackson and Hillsdale; (4) Southeastern Michigan, the remaining counties of the state.

No officers or employees of the federal, state or local governments, excepting notaries public and members of the armed forces reserve, shall be eligible for membership on the commission. Members of the commission shall not be eligible for election to the legislature until two years after the apportionment in which they participated becomes effective.

The commission shall be appointed immediately after the adoption of this constitution and whenever apportionment or districting of the legislature is required by the provisions of this constitution. Members of the commission shall hold office until each apportionment or districting plan becomes effective. Vacancies shall be filled in the same manner as for original appointment.

The secretary of state shall be secretary of the commission without vote, and in that capacity shall furnish, under the direction of the commission, all necessary technical services. The commission shall elect its own chairman, shall make its own rules of procedure, and shall receive compensation provided by law. The legislature shall appropriate funds to enable the commission to carry out its activities.

Within 30 days after the adoption of this constitution, and after the official total population count of each federal decennial census of the state and its political subdivisions is available, the secretary of state shall issue a call convening the commission not less than 30 nor more than 45 days thereafter. The commission shall complete its work within 180 days after all necessary census information is available. The commission shall proceed to district and apportion the senate and house of representatives according to the provisions of this constitution. All final decisions shall require the concurrence of a majority of the members of the commission. The commission shall hold public hearings as may be provided by law.

Each final apportionment and districting plan shall be published as provided by law within 30 days from the date of its adoption and shall become law 60 days after publication. The secretary of state shall keep a public record of all the proceedings of the commission and shall be responsible for the publication and distribution of each plan.

If a majority of the commission cannot agree on a plan, each member of the commission, individually or jointly with other members, may submit a proposed plan to the supreme court. The supreme court shall determine which plan complies most accurately with the constitutional requirements and shall direct that it be adopted by the commission and published as provided in this section.

Upon the application of any elector filed not later than 60 days after final publication of the plan, the supreme court, in the exercise of original jurisdiction, shall direct the secretary of state or the apportionment commission to perform their duties, may review any final plan adopted by the commission, and shall remand such plan to the commission for further action if it fails to comply with the requirements of this constitution.

Sec. 7. Each senator and representative must be a citizen of the United States, at least 21 years of age, and an elector of the district he represents. The removal of his domicile from the district shall be deemed a vacation of the office. No person who has been convicted of subversion or who has within the preceding 20 years been convicted of a felony involving a breach of public trust shall be eligible for either house of the legislature.

Sec. 8. No person holding any office under the United States or this state or a political subdivision thereof, except notaries public and officers of the armed forces reserve, may be a member of either house of the legislature.

Sec. 9. No person elected to the legislature shall receive any civil appointment within this

1 state from the governor, except notaries public,
2 from the legislature, or from any other state
3 authority, during the term for which he is elected.

4 Sec. 10. No member of the legislature nor any 5 state officer shall be interested directly or in-
6 directly in any contract with the state or any 7 political subdivision thereof which shall cause a
8 substantial conflict of interest. The legislature
9 shall further implement this provision by appro-
10 priate legislation.

11 Sec. 11. Senators and representatives shall be 12 privileged from civil arrest and civil process dur-
13 ing sessions of the legislature and for five days
14 next before the commencement and after the 15 termination thereof. They shall not be ques-
16 tioned in any other place for any speech in either
17 house.

18 Sec. 12. The compensation and expense al-
19 lowances of the members of the legislature shall 20 be determined by law. Changes in compensation
21 or expense allowances shall become effective only
22 when legislators commence their terms of office
23 after a general election.

24 Sec. 13. The legislature shall meet at the seat
25 of government on the second Wednesday in Janu-
26 ary of each year at twelve o'clock noon. Each
27 regular session shall adjourn without day, on a
28 day determined by concurrent resolution, at 29 twelve o'clock noon. Any business, bill or joint 30 resolution pending at the final adjournment of 31 a regular session held in an odd numbered year
32 shall carry over with the same status to the 33 next regular session.

34 Sec. 14. A majority of the members elected
35 to and serving in each house shall constitute a 36 quorum to do business. A smaller number in 37 each house may adjourn from day to day, and 38 may compel the attendance of absent members in 39 the manner and with penalties as each house may 40 prescribe.

41 Sec. 15. There shall be a bi-partisan legisla-
42 tive council consisting of legislators appointed in 43 the manner prescribed by law. The legislature
44 shall appropriate funds for the council's opera-
45 tions and provide for its staff which shall main-
46 tain bill drafting, research and other services
47 for the members of the legislature. The council
48 shall periodically examine and recommend to the 49 legislature revision of the various laws of the 50 state.

51 Sec. 16. Each house, except as otherwise pro-
52 vided in this constitution, shall choose its own
53 officers and determine the rules of its proceedings,
54 but shall not adopt any rule that will prevent a
55 majority of the members elected thereto and
56 serving therein from discharging a committee
57 from the further consideration of any measure.
58 Each house shall be the sole judge of the quali-
59 fications, elections and returns of its members,
60 and may, with the concurrence of two-thirds of

1 all the members elected thereto and serving
2 therein, expel a member. The reasons for such 3 expulsion shall be entered in the journal, with 4 the votes and names of the members voting upon
5 the question. No member shall be expelled a
6 second time for the same cause.

7 Sec. 17. Each house of the legislature may 8 establish the committees necessary for the effi-
9 cient conduct of its business and the legislature
10 may create joint committees. Each committee
11 shall by roll call vote record the vote and name
12 of all action on bills and resolutions taken in 13 the committee. Such vote shall be available for 14 public inspection. Notice of all committee hear-
15 ings and a clear statement of all subjects to be 16 considered at each hearing shall be published in 17 the journal in advance of the hearing.

18 Sec. 18. Each house shall keep a journal of 19 its proceedings, and publish the same unless the 20 public security otherwise requires. The record
21 of the vote and name of the members of either
22 house voting on any question shall be entered 23 in the journal at the request of one-fifth of the 24 members present. Any member of either house
25 may dissent from and protest against any act,
26 proceeding or resolution which he deems injuri-
27 ous to any person or the public, and have the 28 reason for his dissent entered in the journal.

29 Sec. 19. All elections in either house or in 30 joint convention and all votes on appointments
31 submitted to the senate for advice and consent
32 shall be published by vote and name in the journal.

33 Sec. 20. The doors of each house shall be open
34 unless the public security otherwise requires.

35 Sec. 21. Neither house shall, without the con-
36 sent of the other, adjourn for more than two 37 intervening calendar days, nor to any place other
38 than where the legislature may then be in session.

39 Sec. 22. All legislation shall be by bill and 40 may originate in either house.

41 Sec. 23. The style of the laws shall be: The 42 People of the State of Michigan enact.

43 Sec. 24. No law shall embrace more than one
44 object, which shall be expressed in its title. No
45 bill shall be altered or amended on its passage
46 through either house so as to change its original
47 purpose as determined by its total content and 48 not alone by its title.

49 Sec. 25. No law shall be revised, altered or 50 amended by reference to its title only. The section
51 or sections of the act altered or amended shall 52 be re-enacted and published at length.

53 Sec. 26. No bill shall be passed or become a 54 law at any regular session of the legislature until 55 it has been printed or reproduced and in the pos-
56 session of each house for at least five days. Every 57 bill shall be read three times in each house be-58 fore the final passage thereof. No bill shall be-
59 come a law without the concurrence of a majority
60 of the members elected to and serving in each house. On the final passage of bills, the votes and names of the members voting thereon shall be entered in the journal.

Sec. 27. No act shall take effect until the expiration of 90 days from the end of the session at which it was passed, but the legislature may give immediate effect to acts by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to and serving in each house.

Sec. 28. When the legislature is convened on extraordinary occasions in special session no bill shall be passed on any subjects other than those expressly stated in the governor's proclamation or submitted by special message.

Sec. 29. The legislature shall pass no local or special act in any case where a general act can be made applicable, and whether a general act can be made applicable shall be a judicial question. No local or special act shall take effect until approved by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house and by a majority of the electors voting thereon in the district affected. Any act repealing local or special acts shall require only a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house and shall not require submission to the electors of such district.

Sec. 30. The assent of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house of the legislature shall be required for the appropriation of public money or property for local or private purposes.

Sec. 31. The general appropriation bills for the succeeding fiscal period covering items set forth in the budget shall be passed or rejected in either house of the legislature before that house passes any appropriation bill for items not in the budget except bills supplementing appropriations for the current fiscal year's operation. Any bill requiring an appropriation to carry out its purpose shall be considered an appropriation bill. One of the general appropriation bills as passed by the legislature shall contain an itemized statement of estimated revenue by major source in each operating fund for the ensuing fiscal period, the total of which shall not be less than the total of all appropriations made from each fund in the general appropriation bills as passed.

Sec. 32. Every law which imposes, continues or revives a tax shall distinctly state the tax.

Sec. 33. Every bill passed by the legislature shall be presented to the governor before it becomes law, and the governor shall have 14 days measured in hours and minutes from the time of presentation in which to consider it. If he approves, he shall within that time sign and file it with the secretary of state and it shall become law. If he does not approve, and the legislature has within that time finally adjourned the session at which the bill was passed, it shall not become law. If he does not approve, and the legislature continues the session at which the bill was passed, he shall return it within such 14-day period with his objections, to the house in which it originated. That house shall enter such objections in full in its journal and reconsider the bill. If two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in that house pass the bill notwithstanding the objections of the governor, it shall be sent with the objections to the other house for reconsideration. The bill shall become law if passed by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in that house. The vote of each house shall be entered in the journal with the votes and names of the members voting thereon. If any bill is not returned by the governor within such 14-day period, the legislature continuing in session, it shall become law as if he had signed it.

Sec. 34. Any bill passed by the legislature and approved by the governor, except a bill appropriating money, may provide that it will not become law unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon.

Sec. 35. All laws enacted at any session of the legislature shall be published in book form within 60 days after final adjournment of the session, and shall be distributed in the manner provided by law. The prompt publication of judicial decisions shall be provided by law. All laws and judicial decisions shall be free for publication by any person.

Sec. 36. No general revision of the laws shall be made. The legislature may provide for a compilation of the laws in force, arranged without alteration, under appropriate heads and titles.

Sec. 37. The legislature may by concurrent resolution empower a joint committee of the legislature acting between sessions to suspend until the end of the next regular legislative session any rule or regulation of an administrative agency promulgated when the legislature is not in regular session.

Sec. 38. The legislature may provide by law the cases in which any office shall be vacant and the manner of filling vacancies where no provision is made in this constitution.

Sec. 39. In order to insure continuity of state and local governmental operations in periods of emergency only, resulting from disasters occurring in this state caused by enemy attack on the United States, the legislature may provide by law for prompt and temporary succession to the powers and duties of public offices, of whatever nature and whether filled by election or appointment, the incumbents of which may become unavailable for carrying on the powers and duties of such offices; and enact other laws necessary and proper for insuring the continuity of governmental operations. Notwithstanding the power conferred by this section, elections shall always be called as soon as possible to fill any vacancies in elective offices temporarily occupied by operation of any legislation enacted pursuant to the provisions of this section.

Sec. 40. The legislature may by law establish a liquor control commission which, subject to statutory limitations, shall exercise complete control of the alcoholic beverage traffic within this state, including the retail sales thereof. The legislature may provide for an excise tax on such sales. Neither the legislature nor the commission may authorize the manufacture or sale of alcoholic beverages in any county in which a majority of the electors voting thereon shall prohibit the same.

Sec. 41. The legislature shall not authorize any lottery nor permit the sale of lottery tickets.

Sec. 42. The legislature may provide for the incorporation of ports and port districts, and confer power and authority upon them to engage in work of internal improvements in connection therewith.

Sec. 43. No general law providing for the incorporation of trust companies or corporations for banking purposes, or regulating the business thereof, shall be enacted, amended or repealed except by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house.

Sec. 44. The legislature may authorize a trial by a jury of less than 12 jurors in civil cases.

Sec. 45. The legislature may provide for indeterminate sentences as punishment for crime and for the detention and release of persons imprisoned or detained under such sentences.

Sec. 46. No law shall be enacted providing for the penalty of death.

Sec. 47. The legislature may authorize the employment of chaplains in state institutions of detention or confinement.

Sec. 48. The legislature may enact laws providing for the resolution of disputes concerning public employees, except those in the state classified civil service.

Sec. 49. The legislature may enact laws relative to the hours and conditions of employment.

Sec. 50. The legislature may provide safety measures and regulate the use of atomic energy and forms of energy developed in the future, having in view the general welfare of the people of this state.

Sec. 51. The public health and general welfare of the people of the state are hereby declared to be matters of primary public concern. The legislature shall pass suitable laws for the protection and promotion of the public health.

Sec. 52. The conservation and development of the natural resources of the state are hereby declared to be of paramount public concern in the interest of the health, safety and general welfare of the people. The legislature shall provide for the protection of the air, water and other natural resources of the state from pollution, impairment and destruction.

Sec. 53. The legislature by a majority vote of the members elected to and serving in each house, shall appoint an auditor general, who shall be a certified public accountant licensed to practice in this state, to serve for a term of eight years. He shall be ineligible for appointment or election to any other public office in this state from which compensation is derived while serving as auditor general and for two years following the termination of his service. He may be removed for cause at any time by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to and serving in each house. The auditor general shall conduct post audits of financial transactions and accounts of the state and of all branches, departments, offices, boards, commissions, agencies, authorities and institutions of the state established by this constitution or by law, and performance post audits thereof.

The auditor general upon direction by the legislature may employ independent accounting firms or legal counsel and may make investigations pertinent to the conduct of audits. He shall report annually to the legislature and to the governor and at such other times as he deems necessary or as required by the legislature. He shall be assigned no duties other than those specified in this section.

Nothing in this section shall be construed in any way to infringe the responsibility and constitutional authority of the governing boards of the institutions of higher education to be solely responsible for the control and direction of all expenditures from the institutions' funds.

The auditor general, his deputy and one other member of his staff shall be exempt from classified civil service. All other members of his staff shall have classified civil service status.

Article V

Executive Branch

Sec. 1. The executive power is vested in the governor.

Sec. 2. All executive and administrative offices, agencies and instrumentalities of the executive branch of state government and their respective functions, powers and duties, except for the office of governor and lieutenant governor and the governing bodies of institutions of higher education provided for in this constitution, shall be allocated by law among and within not more than 20 principal departments. They shall be grouped as far as practicable according to major purposes.

Subsequent to the initial allocation, the governor may make changes in the organization of the executive branch or in the assignment of functions among its units which he considers necessary for efficient administration. Where these changes require the force of law, they shall be set forth in executive orders and submitted to the legislature. Thereafter the legislature shall have 60 calendar days of a regular session, or a full session if of shorter duration, to disapprove each executive order. Unless disapproved in both houses by a resolution concurred in by a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house, each order shall become effective at a date thereafter to be designated by the governor.

Sec. 3. The head of each principal department shall be a single executive unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law. The single executives heading principal departments shall include a secretary of state, a state treasurer and an attorney general. When a single executive is the head of a principal department, unless elected or appointed as otherwise provided in this constitution, he shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate and he shall serve at the pleasure of the governor.

When a board or commission is at the head of a principal department, unless elected or appointed as otherwise provided in this constitution, the members thereof shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The term of office and procedure for removal of such members shall be as prescribed in this constitution or by law.

Terms of office of any board or commission created or enlarged after the effective date of this constitution shall not exceed four years except as otherwise authorized in this constitution. The terms of office of existing boards and commissions which are longer than four years shall not be further extended except as provided in this constitution.

Sec. 4. Temporary commissions or agencies for special purposes with a life of no more than two years may be established by law and need not be allocated within a principal department.

Sec. 5. At no time shall an examining or licensing board of a profession include less than a majority of members of that profession.

Sec. 6. Appointment by and with the advice and consent of the senate when used in this constitution or laws in effect or hereafter enacted means appointment subject to disapproval by a majority vote of the members elected to and serving in the senate if such action is taken within 60 session days after the date of such appointment. Any appointment not disapproved within such period shall stand confirmed.

Sec. 7. Vacancies in any office, appointment to which requires advice and consent of the senate, shall be filled by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. A person whose appointment has been disapproved by the senate shall not be eligible for an interim appointment to the same office.

Sec. 8. Each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor unless otherwise provided by this constitution. The governor shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. He shall transact all necessary business with the officers of government and may require information in writing from all executive and administrative state officers, elective and appointive, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices.

The governor may initiate court proceedings in the name of the state to enforce compliance with any constitutional or legislative mandate, or to restrain violations of any constitutional or legislative power, duty or right by any officer, department or agency of the state or any of its political subdivisions. This authority shall not be construed to authorize court proceedings against the legislature.

Sec. 9. Single executives heading principal departments and the chief executive officers of principal departments headed by boards or commissions shall keep their offices at the seat of government except as otherwise provided by law, superintend them in person and perform duties prescribed by law.

Sec. 10. The governor shall have power and it shall be his duty to inquire into the condition and administration of any public office and the acts of any public officer, elective or appointive. He may remove or suspend from office for gross neglect of duty or for corrupt conduct in office, or for any other misfeasance or malfeasance therein, any elective or appointive state officer, except legislative or judicial, and shall report the reasons for such removal or suspension to the legislature.

Sec. 11. The governor may make a provisional appointment to fill a vacancy occasioned by the suspension of an appointed or elected officer, other than a legislative or judicial officer, until he is reinstated or until the vacancy is filled in the manner prescribed by law or this constitution.

Sec. 12. The governor shall be commander-in-chief of the armed forces and may call them out to execute the laws, suppress insurrection and repel invasion.

Sec. 13. The governor shall issue writs of election to fill vacancies in the senate or house of representatives. Any such election shall be held in a manner prescribed by law.

Sec. 14. 44 thereon. Property assessed by the state shall be 45 assessed at the same proportion of its true
46 cash value as the legislature shall specify for 47 property subject to general ad valorem taxation.
48 The rate of taxation on such property shall be 49 the average rate levied upon other property in this 50 state under the general ad valorem tax law, or,
51 if the legislature provides, the rate of tax applicable
52 to the property of each business enterprise assessed
53 by the state shall be the average rate of ad valorem
54 taxation levied upon other property in all counties
55 in which any of such property is situated.

56 Sec. 6. Except as otherwise provided in this 57 constitution, the total amount of general ad valo-
58 rem taxes imposed upon real and tangible per-
59 sonal property for all purposes in any one year
60 shall not exceed 15 mills on each dollar of the

1 assessed valuation of property as finally equalized.
2 Under procedures provided by law, which shall
3 guarantee the right of initiative, separate tax
4 limitations for any county and for the townships
5 and for school districts therein, the aggregate of 6 which shall not exceed 18 mills on each dollar of 7 such valuation, may be adopted and thereafter
8 altered by the vote of a majority of the qualified
9 electors of such county voting thereon, in lieu 10 of the limitation hereinbefore established. These 11 limitations may be increased to an aggregate of 12 not to exceed 50 mills on each dollar of valuation,
13 for a period of not to exceed 20 years at any one
14 time, if approved by a majority of the electors,
15 qualified under Section 6 of Article II of this 16 constitution, voting on the question.

17 The foregoing limitations shall not apply to 18 taxes imposed for the payment of principal and 19 interest on bonds or other evidences of indebted-
20 ness or for the payment of assessments or con-
21 tract obligations in anticipation of which bonds
22 are issued, which taxes may be imposed without 23 limitation as to rate or amount; or to taxes im-
24 posed for any other purpose by any city, vil-
25 lage, charter county, charter township, charter
26 authority or other authority, the tax limitations
27 of which are provided by charter or by general
28 law.

30 or more counties, property taxes at the highest 31 rate available in the county which contains the

33 imposed and collected for school purposes through-34 out the district.

35 Sec. 7. No income tax graduated as to rate
36 or base shall be imposed by the state or any of 37 its subdivisions.

38 Sec. 8. The legislature shall not impose a
39 sales tax on retailers at a rate of more than

45 to propel motor vehicles upon highways and on 46 registered motor vehicles shall, after the payment
47 of necessary collection expenses, be used exclusi-
48 vely for highway purposes as defined by law.

49 Sec. 10. One-eighth of all taxes imposed on 50 retailers on taxable sales at retail of tangible 51 personal property shall be used exclusively for 52 assistance to townships, cities and villages, on 53 a population basis as provided by law. In de-
54 termining population the legislature may exclude 55 any portion of the total number of persons who 56 are wards, patients or convicts in any tax sup-

58 Sec. 11. There shall be established a state
59 school aid fund which shall be used exclusively
60 for the support of public education and school

One-half of all taxes imposed on retailers on taxable sales at retail of tangible personal property, and other tax revenues provided by law, shall be dedicated to this fund. Payments from this fund shall be made in full on a scheduled basis, as provided by law.

Sec. 12. No evidence of state indebtedness shall be issued except for debts authorized pursuant to this constitution.

Sec. 13. Public bodies corporate shall have power to borrow money and to issue their securities evidencing debt, subject to this constitution and law.

Sec. 14. To meet obligations incurred pursuant to appropriations for any fiscal year, the legislature may by law authorize the state to issue its full faith and credit notes in which case it shall pledge undedicated revenues to be received within the same fiscal year for the repayment thereof. Such indebtedness in any fiscal year shall not exceed 15 percent of undedicated revenues received by the state during the preceding fiscal year and such debts shall be repaid at the time the revenues so pledged are received, but not later than the end of the same fiscal year.

Sec. 15. The state may borrow money for specific purposes in amounts as may be provided by acts of the legislature adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house, and approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at any general election. The question submitted to the electors shall state the amount to be borrowed, the specific purpose to which the funds shall be devoted, and the method of repayment.

Sec. 16. The state, in addition to any other borrowing power, may borrow from time to time such amounts as shall be required, pledge its faith and credit and issue its notes or bonds therefor, for the purpose of making loans to school districts as provided in this section.

If the minimum amount which would otherwise be necessary for a school district to levy in any year to pay principal and interest on its qualified bonds, including any necessary allowances for estimated tax delinquencies, exceeds 13 mills on each dollar of its assessed valuation as finally equalized, or such lower millage as the legislature may prescribe, then the school district may elect to borrow all or any part of the excess from the state. In that event the state shall lend the excess amount to the school district for the payment of principal and interest. If for any reason any school district will be or is unable to pay the principal and interest on its qualified bonds when due, then the school district shall borrow and the state shall lend to it an amount sufficient to enable the school district to make the payment.

The term "qualified bonds" means general obligation bonds of school districts issued for capital expenditures, including refunding bonds, issued prior to May 4, 1955, or issued thereafter and qualified as provided by law pursuant to Section 27 or Section 28 of Article X of the Constitution of 1908 or pursuant to this section.

After a school district has received loans from the state, each year thereafter it shall levy for debt service, exclusive of levies for nonqualified bonds, not less than 13 mills or such lower millage as the legislature may prescribe, until the amount loaned has been repaid, and any tax collections therefrom in any year over and above the minimum requirements for principal and interest on qualified bonds shall be used toward the repayment of state loans. In any year when such levy would produce an amount in excess of the requirements and the amount due to the state, the levy may be reduced by the amount of the excess.

Subject to the foregoing provisions, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe and to limit the procedure, terms and conditions for the qualification of bonds, for obtaining and making state loans, and for the repayment of loans.

The power to tax for the payment of principal and interest on bonds hereafter issued which are the general obligations of any school district, including refunding bonds, and for repayment of any state loans made to school districts, shall be without limitation as to rate or amount.

All rights acquired under Sections 27 and 28 of Article X of the Constitution of 1908, by holders of bonds heretofore issued, and all obligations assumed by the state or any school district under these sections, shall remain unimpaired.

Sec. 17. No money shall be paid out of the state treasury except in pursuance of appropriations made by law.

Sec. 18. The credit of the state shall not be granted to, nor in aid of any person, association or corporation, public or private, except as authorized in this constitution.

Sec. 19. The state shall not subscribe to, nor be interested in the stock of any company, association or corporation, except that funds accumulated to provide retirement or pension benefits for public officials and employees may be invested as provided by law; and endowment funds created for charitable or educational purposes may be invested as provided by law governing the investment of funds held in trust by trustees.

Sec. 20. No state money shall be deposited in banks other than those organized under the national or state banking laws. No state money

1 shall be deposited in any bank in excess of 50
2 percent of the capital and surplus of such bank.
3 Any bank receiving deposits of state money shall 4 show the amount of state money so deposited as 5 a separate item in all published statements.

6 Sec. 21. The legislature shall provide by law
7 for the annual accounting for all public moneys,
8 state and local, and may provide by law for interim
9 accounting.

10 The legislature shall provide by law for the 11 maintenance of uniform accounting systems by 12 units of local government and the auditing of 13 county accounts by competent state authority
14 and other units of government as provided by law.

15 Sec. 22. Procedures for the examination and 16 adjustment of claims against the state shall be 17 prescribed by law.

18 Sec. 23. All financial records, accountings,
19 audit reports and other reports of public moneys
20 shall be public records and open to inspection. A
21 statement of all revenues and expenditures of pub-
22 lic moneys shall be published and distributed
23 annually, as provided by law.

24 Sec. 24. The accrued financial benefits of each
25 pension plan and retirement system of the state

28 or impaired thereby.

79 the year 1978, and in each 16th year thereafter
80 and at such times as may be provided by law, the 81 question of a general revision of the constitution
82 shall be submitted to the electors of the state. If 83 a majority of the electors voting on the question
84 decide in favor of a convention for such purpose,
85 at an election to be held not later than six months
86 after the proposal was certified as approved, the 87 electors of each representative district as then
88 organized shall elect one delegate and the elec-
89 tors of each senatorial district as then organized
90 shall elect one delegate at a partisan election.
91 The delegates so elected shall convene at the seat
92 of government on the first Tuesday in October
93 next succeeding such election or at an earlier date
94 if provided by law.

95 The convention shall choose its own officers,
96 determine the rules of its proceedings and judge
97 the qualifications, elections and returns of its mem-
98 bers. The governor shall appoint a qualified
99 resident of the same district to fill a vacancy
100 in the office of any delegate who shall be a mem-
101 ber of the same party as the delegate vacating
102 the office. The convention shall have power to ap-
103 point such officers, employees and assistants as 104 it deems necessary and to fix their compensation;
105 to provide for the printing and distribution of its
106 documents, journals and proceedings; to explain
107 and disseminate information about the proposed 108 constitution and to complete the business of the 109 convention in an orderly manner. Each delegate
110 shall receive for his services compensation pro-
111 vided by law.

112 No proposed constitution or amendment adopted
113 by such convention shall be submitted to the 114 electors for approval as hereinafter provided un-
115 less by the assent of a majority of all the delegates
116 elected to and serving in the convention, with the 117 names and vote of those voting entered in the journal. Any proposed constitution or amendments adopted by such convention shall be submitted to the qualified electors in the manner and at the time provided by such convention not less than 90 days after final adjournment of the convention. Upon the approval of such constitution or amendments by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon the constitution or amendments shall take effect as provided by the convention.

against the secretary of state, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, submits the following report:

In accordance with Resolution 96, the committee on action against secretary of state on May 14, 1962, filed with the circuit court for the county of Ingham, a petition for declaration of rights in an action entitled, Stephen S. Nisbet, President of the Michigan Constitutional Convention of 1961-1962 v. James M. Hare, Secretary of State. The relief sought was a declaration that the convention has the right to provide for submission of the proposed new constitution to the electors at the general election to be held November 6, 1962. The summons and petition were served on the secretary of state on the same day.

On May 22, having had no response from the attorney general, petitioner filed a motion for the entry of a decree. On May 25, the secretary of state appeared specially by the attorney general and moved to dismiss the petition on the ground that the case did not present an actual controversy. The trial court heard argument on the attorney general's motion on June 1 and on June 6 rendered an opinion denying the motion to dismiss. An order to that effect was entered on June 11.

Instead of proceeding to file an answer, the attorney general then filed an application to the supreme court for leave to appeal. This application was granted by the supreme court and the attorney general, on July 2, filed a claim of appeal.

The attorney general has not yet filed a brief and he states that he does not intend to do so until after August 7.

It is obvious that no judicial determination of the right of the constitutional convention to require submission of the proposed constitution to the electors on November 6 will be made in time to be useful to the convention. Accordingly, the committee recommends:

1) That section 15 [formerly section 16] of the schedule and temporary provisions of the proposed constitution be amended by striking from the first sentence the words "Tuesday after the first Monday of November, 1962" and inserting "first Monday in April, 1963."

2) That the committee be authorized to discontinue the action entitled, Nisbet v. Hare.

Richard C. Van Dusen, chairman.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I move the adoption of the report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen that the report be adopted. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The report is adopted. Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, in compliance with our rules, I think it would now be necessary to take a roll call vote on the amendment to the constitution changing the date.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Chase will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment recommended in the report is as follows:

1. Amend the schedule, section 15 [formerly section 16] (column 2) line 11, after "held on the" by striking out "Tuesday after the first Monday of November, 1962.", and inserting "first Monday in April, 1963."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary will call the roll. Those in favor of the amendment will vote aye as your name is called. Those opposed will vote no.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the constitution as amended, the yeas are 98; the nays are 43. (applause)
PRESIDENT NISBET: The constitution is adopted.

For the constitution as adopted, see below, page 3317.

Because of the hour, it being almost noon, the Chair recognizes Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VANDUSEN: Mr. President, I move that the convention now stand in recess until 2:00 p.m.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen that we recess until 2:00 p.m. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We are recessed until 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 11:50 o'clock a.m., the convention recessed; and, at 2:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

Will the delegates please take their seats. The convention will please come to order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I think we should recognize the fact that many of our employees are voluntarily back with us today, meeting with the delegates. I'm sure all of us are very happy to have them here. It brings about a happy result to see them and I think we ought to give them a good hand. (applause) Mr. Chase has an announcement.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are 3 announcements that possibly should have been made before we recessed for lunch.

First, there is mail for all of the delegates in the mail room downstairs.

Just prior to the May 11 adjournment, several of the delegates took out, on loan, sets of convention slides which have not been returned. Missing from our files are 12 complete sets of slides. Since we frequently have call from other delegates for the use of these slides, we would appreciate their return as soon as possible. Ink White, chairman of the committee on public information.

I am sure the delegates recall the lady on the civic center staff who took such good care of keeping the windows clean and the place well slicked up, who had to go to the hospital for a very critical operation. A number of the delegates contributed to a fund to help her over her financial difficulties. I have the following card:

It is very difficult to express my appreciation to all the wonderful people of con con. Let me say, with my heart, your kindness and generosity will always be remembered.

Sincerely,
Freda Adams.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Since the adjournment on May 11, we have added 2 new associate members to the delegation: Mrs. Charles Follo and Mrs. Gil Wanger.

I asked Charlie if Mrs. Follo was present so that he might present her, but he said she isn't. We are sorry, Charlie, she couldn't be with us.

Mr. Wanger, is your associate delegate present? Would you present her?

[Whereupon, the delegates accorded Mrs. Wanger a standing ovation.]

At the final session before the long recess the president was authorized to name a reunion committee for the constitutional convention. Accordingly, the president appoints, as members of the reunion committee: Mr. Erickson, Mrs. Koeze, Messrs. Jones, Bowens, Brake, Mrs. Conklin, Mr. Dean Doty, Mrs. Daisy Elliott, Messrs. Faxon, Kelsey, Kuhn, Powell, Sharpe, Wanger, White and Norris.

Without objection, the appointments are approved. You will notice that most of these delegates are within the area of Lansing, Detroit or Grand Rapids for their ease in getting together when they have to meet. Mr. Claud Erickson is chairman of the committee.

Returning to the order of business, approval of address to people. We will take up the report of the committee on public information. Mr. White, chairman.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President, under date of June 26, 1962, each delegate was mailed proof copies of the proposed address to the people. Since that time our committee has received numerous suggestions for corrections, additions, deletions and so on. Our committee has met and gone over these suggestions and they have been, for the most part, agreed to. I might say, parenthetically, the address in its present corrected form represents the writing and editing of upwards of 50 of our delegates.

Under date of July 27, 1962, each of you was mailed a 16 page multilith report which outlined in detail some 108 corrections. This communication also carried the recommendation that we be authorized to correct the text of the constitution as it appears in the address to conform with the style and drafting changes adopted at today's session, and to offer comments accordingly, if necessary. All of this material has been delivered again to each delegate's desk today. Additionally, you have a single white multilith sheet from our committee containing brief addenda to this 16 page report.

It seems to me, Mr. President, the delegates have had ample time to consider these matters, and to expedite our final deliberations, I move that the report of the public information committee, with the recommended addenda, be considered read.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it is so ordered.

Following is the report as submitted and considered read:

After careful consideration of suggestions from delegates, your committee on public information recommends the adoption of the following changes in the proof copy of the address to the people:

For document incorporating following changes, see below, page 3355. Page numbers in report refer to document pages.

1. Amend page 2, second full paragraph, line 3, after "that one" by striking out "must" and inserting "should"; to improve phraseology.

2. Amend page 2, third full paragraph, line 1, by striking out "Ordered by popular vote, its delegates selected by the people on the basis of one from each senatorial and representative district, the Constitutional Convention of 1961-62 met in Lansing on October 3, 1961.", and inserting "The convention was ordered by popular vote in April of 1961. There were 144 delegates, representing Michigan's 34 State Senatorial districts and 110 State Representative seats. They were elected in statewide voting on September 12, 1961, and convened at Lansing on October 3, 1961."; to improve awkward sentence construction and correct error by indicating "seats" rather than representative "districts."

3. Amend page 2, fifth full paragraph, line 2, after "overlapped" by striking out "each other"; to improve phraseology.

4. Amend page 2, fifth full paragraph, line 6, after

CONSTITUTION
OF THE
STATE OF MICHIGAN

as finally adopted
by the Convention
August 1, 1962

PREAMBLE

We, the people of the State of Michigan, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of freedom, and earnestly desiring to secure these blessings undiminished to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution.

Elections

Sec. 1. Every citizen of the United States who has attained the age of 21 years, who has resided in this state six months, and who meets the requirements of local residence provided by law, shall be an elector and qualified to vote in any election except as otherwise provided in this constitution. The legislature shall define residence for voting purposes.

Sec. 2. The legislature may by law exclude persons from voting because of mental incompetence or commitment to a jail or penal institution.

Sec. 3. For purposes of voting in the election for president and vice-president of the United States only, the legislature may by law establish lesser residence requirements for citizens who have resided in this state for less than six months and may waive residence requirements for former citizens of this state who have removed herefrom. The legislature shall not permit voting by any person who meets the voting residence requirements of the state to which he has removed.

Sec. 4. The legislature shall enact laws to regulate the time, place and manner of all nominations and elections, except as otherwise provided in this constitution or in the constitution and laws of the United States. The legislature shall enact laws to preserve the purity of elections, to preserve the secrecy of the ballot, to guard against abuses of the elective franchise, and to provide for a system of voter registration and absentee voting. No law shall be enacted which permits a candidate in any partisan primary or partisan election to have a ballot designation except when required for identification of candidates for the same office who have the same or similar surnames.

Sec. 5. Except for special elections to fill vacancies, or as otherwise provided in this constitution, all elections for national, state, county and township offices shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in each even-numbered year or on such other date as members of the congress of the United States are regularly elected.

Sec. 6. Whenever any question is required to be submitted by a political subdivision to the electors for the increase of the ad valorem tax rate limitation imposed by Section 6 of Article IX for a period of more than five years, or for the issue of bonds, only electors in, and who have property assessed for any ad valorem taxes in, any part of the district or territory to be affected by the result of such election or electors who are the lawful husbands or wives of such persons shall be entitled to vote thereon. All electors in the district or territory affected may vote on all other questions.

Sec. 8. Laws shall be enacted to provide for the recall of all elective officers except judges of courts of record upon petition of electors equal in number to 25 percent of the number of persons voting in the last preceding election for the office of governor in the electoral district of the officer sought to be recalled. The sufficiency of any statement of reasons or grounds procedurally required shall be a political rather than a judicial question.

Sec. 9. The people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and to enact and reject laws, called the initiative, and the power to approve or reject laws enacted by the legislature, called the referendum. The power of initiative extends only to laws which the legislature may enact under this constitution. The power of referendum does not extend to acts making appropriations for state institutions or to meet deficiencies in state funds and must be invoked in the manner prescribed by law within 90 days following the final adjournment of the legislative session at which the law was enacted. To invoke the initiative or referendum, petitions signed by a number of registered electors, not less than eight percent for initiative and five percent for referendum of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected shall be required.

No law as to which the power of referendum properly has been invoked shall be effective thereafter unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at the next general election.

Any law proposed by initiative petition shall be either enacted or rejected by the legislature without change or amendment within 40 session days from the time such petition is received by the legislature. If any law proposed by such petition shall be enacted by the legislature it shall be subject to referendum, as hereinafter provided.

If the law so proposed is not enacted by the legislature within the 40 days, the state officer authorized by law shall submit such proposed law to the people for approval or rejection at the next general election. The legislature may reject any measure so proposed by initiative petition and propose a different measure upon the same subject by a yea and nay vote upon separate roll calls, and in such event both measures shall be submitted by such state officer to the electors for approval or rejection at the next general election.

Any law submitted to the people by either initiative or referendum petition and approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon at any election shall take effect 10 days after the date of the official declaration of the vote. No law initiated or adopted by the people shall be subject to the veto power of the governor, and no law adopted by the people at the polls under the initiative provisions of this section shall be amended or repealed, except by a vote of the electors unless otherwise provided in the initiative measure or by three-fourths of the members elected to and serving in each house of the legislature. Laws approved by the people under the referendum provision of this section may be amended by the legislature at any subsequent session thereof. If two or more measures approved by the electors at the same election conflict, that receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail.

The legislature shall implement the provisions of this section.

ARTICLE III

General Government

Sec. 4. The militia shall be organized, equipped and disciplined as provided by law.

Sec. 5. Subject to provisions of general law, this state or any political subdivision thereof, any governmental authority or any combination thereof may enter into agreements for the performance, financing or execution of their respective functions, with any one or more of the other states, the United States, the Dominion of Canada, or any political subdivision thereof unless otherwise provided in this constitution. Any other provision of this constitution notwithstanding, an officer or employee of the state or of any such unit of government or subdivision or agency thereof may serve on or with any governmental body established for the purposes set forth in this section and shall not be required to relinquish his office or employment by reason of such service. The legislature may impose such restrictions, limitations or conditions on such service as it may deem appropriate.

Sec. 6. The state shall not be a party to, nor be financially interested in, any work of internal improvement, nor engage in carrying on any such work, except for public internal improvements provided by law.

Sec. 8. Either house of the legislature or the governor may request the opinion of the supreme court on important questions of law upon solemn occasions as to the constitutionality of legislation after it has been enacted into law but before its effective date.

ARTICLE IV

Legislative Branch

Sec. 1. The legislative power of the State of Michigan is vested in a senate and a house of representatives.

Sec. 2. The senate shall consist of 38 members to be elected from single member districts at the same election as the governor for four-year terms concurrent with the term of office of the governor.

In districting the state for the purpose of electing senators after the official publication of the total population count of each federal decennial census, each county shall be assigned apportionment factors equal to the sum of its percentage of the state's population as shown by the last regular federal decennial census computed to the nearest one-one hundredth of one percent multiplied by four and its percentage of the state's land area computed to the nearest one-one hundredth of one percent.

In arranging the state into senatorial districts, the apportionment commission shall be governed by the following rules:

(1) Counties with 13 or more apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. After each such county has been allocated one senator, the remaining senators to which this class of counties is entitled shall be distributed among such counties by the method of equal proportions applied to the apportionment factors.

(2) Counties having less than 13 apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. Such counties shall thereafter be arranged into senatorial districts that are compact, convenient, and contiguous by land, as rectangular in shape as possible, and having as nearly as possible 13 apportionment factors, but in no event less than 10 or more than 16. Insofar as possible, existing senatorial districts at the time of reapportionment shall not be altered unless there is a failure to comply with the above standards.

(3) Counties entitled to two or more senators shall be divided into single member districts. The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the county by the number of senators to which it is entitled. Each such district shall follow incorporated city or township boundary lines to the extent possible and shall be compact, contiguous, and as nearly uniform in shape as possible.

Sec. 3. The house of representatives shall consist of 110 members elected for two-year terms from single member districts apportioned on a basis of population as provided in this article. The districts shall consist of compact and convenient territory contiguous by land.

Each county which has a population of not less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state shall constitute a separate representative area. Each county having less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state shall be combined with another county or counties to form a representative area of not less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state. Any county which is isolated under the initial allocation as provided in this section shall be joined with that contiguous representative area having the smallest percentage of the state's population. Each such representative area shall be entitled initially to one representative.

After the assignment of one representative to each of the representative areas, the remaining house seats shall be apportioned among the representative areas on the basis of population by the method of equal proportions.

Any county comprising a representative area entitled to two or more representatives shall be divided into single member representative districts as follows:

(1) The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the representative area by the number of representatives to which it is entitled.

(2) Such single member districts shall follow city and township boundaries where applicable and shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory as nearly square in shape as possible.

Any representative area consisting of more than one county, entitled to more than one representative, shall be divided into single member districts as equal as possible in population, adhering to county lines.

Sec. 4. In counties having more than one representative or senatorial district, the territory in the same county annexed to or merged with a city between apportionments shall become a part of a contiguous representative or senatorial district in the city with which it is combined, if provided by ordinance of the city. The district or districts with which the territory shall be combined shall be determined by such ordinance certified to the secretary of state. No such change in the boundaries of a representative or senatorial district shall have the effect of removing a legislator from office during his term.

Sec. 5. Island areas are considered to be contiguous by land to the county of which they are a part.

Sec. 6. A commission on legislative apportionment is hereby established consisting of eight electors, four of whom shall be selected by the state organizations of each of the two political parties whose candidates for governor received the highest vote at the last general election at which a governor was elected preceding each apportionment. If a candidate for governor of a third political party has received at such election more than 25 percent of such gubernatorial vote, the commission shall consist of 12 members, four of whom shall be selected by the state organization of the third political party. One resident of each of the following four regions shall be selected by each political party organization: (1) the upper peninsula; (2) the northern part of the lower peninsula, north of a line drawn along the northern boundaries of the counties of Bay, Midland, Isabella, Mecosta, Newaygo and Oceana; (3) southwestern Michigan, those counties south of region (2) and west of a line drawn along the western boundaries of the counties of Bay, Saginaw, Shiawassee, Ingham, Jackson and Hillsdale; (4) southeastern Michigan, the remaining counties of the state.

No officers or employees of the federal, state or local governments, excepting notaries public and members of the armed forces reserve, shall be eligible for membership on the commission. Members of the commission shall not be eligible for election to the legislature until two years after the apportionment in which they participated becomes effective.

The commission shall be appointed immediately after the adoption of this constitution and whenever apportionment or districting of the legislature is required by the provisions of this constitution. Members of the commission shall hold office until each apportionment or districting plan becomes effective. Vacancies shall be filled in the same manner as for original appointment.

The secretary of state shall be secretary of the commission without vote, and in that capacity shall furnish, under the direction of the commission, all necessary technical services. The commission shall elect its own chairman, shall make its own rules of procedure, and shall receive compensation provided by law. The legislature shall appropriate funds to enable the commission to carry out its activities.

Within 30 days after the adoption of this constitution, and after the official total population count of each federal decennial census of the state and its political subdivisions is available, the secretary of state shall issue a call convening the commission not less than 30 nor more than 45 days thereafter. The commission shall complete its work within 180 days after all necessary census information is available. The commission shall proceed to district and apportion the senate and house of representatives according to the provisions of this constitution. All final decisions shall require the concurrence of a majority of the members of the commission. The commission shall hold public hearings as may be provided by law.

Each final apportionment and districting plan shall be published as provided by law within 30 days from the date of its adoption and shall become law 60 days after publication. The secretary of state shall keep a public record of all the proceedings of the commission and shall be responsible for the publication and distribution of each plan.

If a majority of the commission cannot agree on a plan, each member of the commission, individually or jointly with other members, may submit a proposed plan to the supreme court. The supreme court shall determine which plan complies most accurately with the constitutional requirements and shall direct that it be adopted by the commission and published as provided in this section.

Upon the application of any elector filed not later than 60 days after final publication of the plan, the supreme court, in the exercise of original jurisdiction, shall direct the secretary of state or the commission to perform their duties, may review any final plan adopted by the commission, and shall remand such plan to the commission for further action if it fails to comply with the requirements of this constitution.

Sec. 7. Each senator and representative must be a citizen of the United States, at least 21 years of age, and an elector of the district he represents. The removal of his domicile from the district shall be deemed a vacation of the office. No person who has been convicted of subversion or who has within the preceding 20 years been convicted of a felony involving a breach of public trust shall be eligible for either house of the legislature.

Sec. 8. No person holding any office, employment or position under the United States or this state or a political subdivision thereof, except notaries public and members of the armed forces reserve, may be a member of either house of the legislature.

Sec. 9. No person elected to the legislature shall receive any civil appointment within this state from the governor, except notaries public, from the legislature, or from any other state authority, during the term for which he is elected.

Sec. 10. No member of the legislature nor any state officer shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with the state or any political subdivision thereof which shall cause a substantial conflict of interest. The legislature shall further implement this provision by appropriate legislation.

Sec. 11. Senators and representatives shall be privileged from civil arrest and civil process during sessions of the legislature and for five days next before the commencement and after the termination thereof. They shall not be questioned in any other place for any speech in either house.

Sec. 12. The compensation and expense allowances of the members of the legislature shall be determined by law. Changes in compensation or expense allowances shall become effective only when legislators commence their terms of office after a general election.

Sec. 13. The legislature shall meet at the seat of government on the second Wednesday in January of each year at twelve o'clock noon. Each regular session shall adjourn without day, on a day determined by concurrent resolution, at twelve o'clock noon. Any business, bill or joint resolution pending at the final adjournment of a regular session held in an odd numbered year shall carry over with the same status to the next regular session.

Sec. 14. A majority of the members elected to and serving in each house shall constitute a quorum to do business. A smaller number in each house may adjourn from day to day, and may compel the attendance of absent members in the manner and with penalties as each house may prescribe.

Sec. 15. There shall be a bi-partisan legislative council consisting of legislators appointed in the manner prescribed by law. The legislature shall appropriate funds for the council's operations and provide for its staff which shall maintain bill drafting, research and other services for the members of the legislature. The council shall periodically examine and recommend to the legislature revision of the various laws of the state.

Sec. 16. Each house, except as otherwise provided in this constitution, shall choose its own officers and determine the rules of its proceedings, but shall not adopt any rule that will prevent a majority of the members elected thereto and serving therein from discharging a committee from the further consideration of any measure. Each house shall be the sole judge of the qualifications, elections and returns of its members, and may, with the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members elected thereto and serving therein, expel a member. The reasons for such expulsion shall be entered in the journal, with the votes and names of the members voting upon the question. No member shall be expelled a second time for the same cause.

Sec. 17. Each house of the legislature may establish the committees necessary for the efficient conduct of its business and the legislature may create joint committees. On all actions on bills and resolutions in each committee, names and votes of members shall be recorded. Such vote shall be available for public inspection. Notice of all committee hearings and a clear statement of all subjects to be considered at each hearing shall be published in the journal in advance of the hearing.

Sec. 18. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and publish the same unless the public security otherwise requires. The record of the vote and name of the members of either house voting on any question shall be entered in the journal at the request of one-fifth of the members present. Any member of either house may dissent from and protest against any act, proceeding or resolution which he deems injurious to any person or the public, and have the reason for his dissent entered in the journal.

Sec. 19. All elections in either house or in joint convention and all votes on appointments submitted to the senate for advice and consent shall be published by vote and name in the journal.

Sec. 20. The doors of each house shall be open unless the public security otherwise requires.

Sec. 21. Neither house shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than two intervening calendar days, nor to any place other than where the legislature may then be in session.

Sec. 22. All legislation shall be by bill and may originate in either house.

Sec. 23. The style of the laws shall be: The People of the State of Michigan enact.

Sec. 24. No law shall embrace more than one object, which shall be expressed in its title. No bill shall be altered or amended on its passage through either house so as to change its original purpose as determined by its total content and not alone by its title.

Sec. 25. No law shall be revised, altered or amended by reference to its title only. The section or sections of the act altered or amended shall be re-enacted and published at length.

Sec. 26. No bill shall be passed or become a law at any regular session of the legislature until it has been printed or reproduced and in the possession of each house for at least five days. Every bill shall be read three times in each house before the final passage thereof. No bill shall become a law without the concurrence of a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house. On the final passage of bills, the votes and names of the members voting thereon shall be entered in the journal.

Sec. 27. No act shall take effect until the expiration of 90 days from the end of the session at which it was passed, but the legislature may give immediate effect to acts by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to and serving in each house.

Sec. 28. When the legislature is convened on extraordinary occasions in special session no bill shall be passed on any subjects other than those expressly stated in the governor's proclamation or submitted by special message.

Sec. 29. The legislature shall pass no local or special act in any case where a general act can be made applicable, and whether a general act can be made applicable shall be a judicial question. No local or special act shall take effect until approved by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house and by a majority of the electors voting thereon in the district affected. Any act repealing local or special acts shall require only a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house and shall not require submission to the electors of such district.

Sec. 30. The assent of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house of the legislature shall be required for the appropriation of public money or property for local or private purposes.

Sec. 31. The general appropriation bills for the succeeding fiscal period covering items set forth in the budget shall be passed or rejected in either house of the legislature before that house passes any appropriation bill for items not in the budget except bills supplementing appropriations for the current fiscal year's operation. Any bill requiring an appropriation to carry out its purpose shall be considered an appropriation bill. One of the general appropriation bills as passed by the legislature shall contain an itemized statement of estimated revenue by major source in each operating fund for the ensuing fiscal period, the total of which shall not be less than the total of all appropriations made from each fund in the general appropriation bills as passed.

Sec. 32. Every law which imposes, continues or revives a tax shall distinctly state the tax.

Sec. 33. Every bill passed by the legislature shall be presented to the governor before it becomes law, and the governor shall have 14 days measured in hours and minutes from the time of presentation in which to consider it. If he approves, he shall within that time sign and file it with the secretary of state and it shall become law. If he does not approve, and the legislature has within that time finally adjourned the session at which the bill was passed, it shall not become law. If he disapproves, and the legislature continues the session at which the bill was passed, he shall return it within such 14-day period with his objections, to the house in which it originated. That house shall enter such objections in full in its journal and reconsider the bill. If two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in that house pass the bill notwithstanding the objections of the governor, it shall be sent with the objections to the other house for reconsideration. The bill shall become law if passed by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in that house. The vote of each house shall be entered in the journal with the votes and names of the members voting thereon. If any bill is not returned by the governor within such 14-day period, the legislature continuing in session, it shall become law as if he had signed it.

Sec. 34. Any bill passed by the legislature and approved by the governor, except a bill appropriating money, may provide that it will not become law unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon.

Sec. 35. All laws enacted at any session of the legislature shall be published in book form within 60 days after final adjournment of the session, and shall be distributed in the manner provided by law. The prompt publication of judicial decisions shall be provided by law. All laws and judicial decisions shall be free for publication by any person.

Sec. 36. No general revision of the laws shall be made. The legislature may provide for a compilation of the laws in force, arranged without alteration, under appropriate heads and titles.

Sec. 37. The legislature may by concurrent resolution empower a joint committee of the legislature, acting between sessions, to suspend any rule or regulation promulgated by an administrative agency subsequent to the adjournment of the last preceding regular legislative session. Such suspension shall continue no longer than the end of the next regular legislative session.

Sec. 38. The legislature may provide by law the cases in which any office shall be vacant and the manner of filling vacancies where no provision is made in this constitution.

Sec. 39. In order to insure continuity of state and local governmental operations in periods of emergency only, resulting from disasters occurring in this state caused by enemy attack on the United States, the legislature may provide by law for prompt and temporary succession to the powers and duties of public offices, of whatever nature and whether filled by election or appointment, the incumbents of which may become unavailable for carrying on the powers and duties of such offices; and enact other laws necessary and proper for insuring the continuity of governmental operations. Notwithstanding the power conferred by this section, elections shall always be called as soon as possible to fill any vacancies in elective offices temporarily occupied by operation of any legislation enacted pursuant to the provisions of this section.

Sec. 40. The legislature may by law establish a liquor control commission which, subject to statutory limitations, shall exercise complete control of the alcoholic beverage traffic within this state, including the retail sales thereof. The legislature may provide for an excise tax on such sales. Neither the legislature nor the commission may authorize the manufacture or sale of alcoholic beverages in any county in which a majority of the electors voting thereon shall prohibit the same.

Sec. 41. The legislature shall not authorize any lottery nor permit the sale of lottery tickets.

Sec. 42. The legislature may provide for the incorporation of ports and port districts, and confer power and authority upon them to engage in work of internal improvements in connection therewith.

Sec. 43. No general law providing for the incorporation of trust companies or corporations for banking purposes, or regulating the business thereof, shall be enacted, amended or repealed except by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house.

Sec. 44. The legislature may authorize a trial by a jury of less than 12 jurors in civil cases.

Sec. 45. The legislature may provide for indeterminate sentences as punishment for crime and for the detention and release of persons imprisoned or detained under such sentences.

Sec. 46. No law shall be enacted providing for the penalty of death.

Sec. 47. The legislature may authorize the employment of chaplains in state institutions of detention or confinement.

Sec. 48. The legislature may enact laws providing for the resolution of disputes concerning public employees, except those in the state classified civil service.

Sec. 49. The legislature may enact laws relative to the hours and conditions of employment.

Sec. 50. The legislature may provide safety measures and regulate the use of atomic energy and forms of energy developed in the future, having in view the general welfare of the people of this state.

Sec. 51. The public health and general welfare of the people of the state are hereby declared to be matters of primary public concern. The legislature shall pass suitable laws for the protection and promotion of the public health.

Sec. 52. The conservation and development of the natural resources of the state are hereby declared to be of paramount public concern in the interest of the health, safety and general welfare of the people. The legislature shall provide for the protection of the air, water and other natural resources of the state from pollution, impairment and destruction.

Sec. 53. The legislature by a majority vote of the members elected to and serving in each house, shall appoint an auditor general, who shall be a certified public accountant licensed to practice in this state, to serve for a term of eight years. He shall be ineligible for appointment or election to any other public office in this state from which compensation is derived while serving as auditor general and for two years following the termination of his service. He may be removed for cause at any time by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to and serving in each house. The auditor general shall conduct post audits of financial transactions and accounts of the state and of all branches, departments, offices, boards, commissions, agencies, authorities and institutions of the state established by this constitution or by law, and performance post audits thereof.

He shall report annually to the legislature and to the governor and at such other times as he deems necessary or as required by the legislature. He shall be assigned no duties other than those specified in this section.

Nothing in this section shall be construed in any way to infringe the responsibility and constitutional authority of the governing boards of the institutions of higher education to be solely responsible for the control and direction of all expenditures from the institutions' funds.

The auditor general, his deputy and one other member of his staff shall be exempt from classified civil service. All other members of his staff shall have classified civil service status.

ARTICLE V

Executive Branch

Sec. 1. The executive power is vested in the governor.

Sec. 2. All executive and administrative offices, agencies and instrumentalities of the executive branch of state government and their respective functions, powers and duties, except for the office of governor and lieutenant governor and the governing bodies of institutions of higher education provided for in this constitution, shall be allocated by law among and within not more than 20 principal departments. They shall be grouped as far as practicable according to major purposes.

Subsequent to the initial allocation, the governor may make changes in the organization of the executive branch or in the assignment of functions among its units which he considers necessary for efficient administration. Where these changes require the force of law, they shall be set forth in executive orders and submitted to the legislature. Thereafter the legislature shall have 60 calendar days of a regular session, or a full regular session if of shorter duration, to disapprove each executive order. Unless disapproved in both houses by a resolution concurred in by a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house, each order shall become effective at a date thereafter to be designated by the governor.

Sec. 3. The head of each principal department shall be a single executive unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law. The single executives heading principal departments shall include a secretary of state, a state treasurer and an attorney general. When a single executive is the head of a principal department, unless elected or appointed as otherwise provided in this constitution, he shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate and he shall serve at the pleasure of the governor.

When a board or commission is at the head of a principal department, unless elected or appointed as otherwise provided in this constitution, the members thereof shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The term of office and procedure for removal of such members shall be as prescribed in this constitution or by law.

Terms of office of any board or commission created or enlarged after the effective date of this constitution shall not exceed four years except as otherwise authorized in this constitution. The terms of office of existing boards and commissions which are longer than four years shall not be further extended except as provided in this constitution.

Sec. 4. Temporary commissions or agencies for special purposes with a life of no more than two years may be established by law and need not be allocated within a principal department.

Sec. 5. A majority of the members of an appointed examining or licensing board of a profession shall be members of that profession.

Sec. 6. Appointment by and with the advice and consent of the senate when used in this constitution or laws in effect or hereafter enacted means appointment subject to disapproval by a majority vote of the members elected to and serving in the senate if such action is taken within 60 session days after the date of such appointment. Any appointment not disapproved within such period shall stand confirmed.

Sec. 7. Vacancies in any office, appointment to which requires advice and consent of the senate, shall be filled by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. A person whose appointment has been disapproved by the senate shall not be eligible for an interim appointment to the same office.

Sec. 8. Each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor unless otherwise provided by this constitution. The governor shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. He shall transact all necessary business with the officers of government and may require information in writing from all executive and administrative state officers, elective and appointive, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices.

The governor may initiate court proceedings in the name of the state to enforce compliance with any constitutional or legislative mandate, or to restrain violations of any constitutional or legislative power, duty or right by any officer, department or agency of the state or any of its political subdivisions. This authority shall not be construed to authorize court proceedings against the legislature.

Sec. 9. Single executives heading principal departments and the chief executive officers of principal departments headed by boards or commissions shall keep their offices at the seat of government except as otherwise provided by law, superintend them in person and perform duties prescribed by law.

Sec. 10. The governor shall have power and it shall be his duty to inquire into the condition and administration of any public office and the acts of any public officer, elective or appointive. He may remove or suspend from office for gross neglect of duty or for corrupt conduct in office, or for any other misfeasance or malfeasance therein, any elective or appointive state officer, except legislative or judicial, and shall report the reasons for such removal or suspension to the legislature.

Sec. 11. The governor may make a provisional appointment to fill a vacancy occasioned by the suspension of an appointed or elected officer, other than a legislative or judicial officer, until he is reinstated or until the vacancy is filled in the manner prescribed by law or this constitution.

Sec. 12. The governor shall be commander-in-chief of the armed forces and may call them out to execute the laws, suppress insurrection and repel invasion.

Sec. 13. The governor shall issue writs of election to fill vacancies in the senate or house of representatives. Any such election shall be held in a manner prescribed by law.

Sec. 14. The governor shall have power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons after convictions for all offenses, except cases of impeachment, upon such conditions and limitations as he may direct, subject to procedures and regulations prescribed by law. He shall inform the legislature annually of each reprieve, commutation and pardon granted, stating reasons therefor.

Sec. 15. The governor may convene the legislature on extraordinary occasions.

Sec. 16. The governor may convene the legislature at some other place when the seat of government becomes dangerous from any cause.

Sec. 17. The governor shall communicate by message to the legislature at the beginning of each session and may at other times present to the legislature information as to the affairs of the state and recommend measures he considers necessary or desirable.

Sec. 18. The governor shall submit to the legislature at a time fixed by law, a budget for the ensuing fiscal period setting forth in detail, for all operating funds, the proposed expenditures and estimated revenue of the state. Proposed expenditures from any fund shall not exceed the estimated revenue thereof. On the same date, the governor shall submit to the legislature general appropriation bills to embody the proposed expenditures and any necessary bill or bills to provide new or additional revenues to meet proposed expenditures. The amount of any surplus created or deficit incurred in any fund during the last preceding fiscal period shall be entered as an item in the budget and in one of the appropriation bills. The governor may submit amendments to appropriation bills to be offered in either house during consideration of the bill by that house, and shall submit bills to meet deficiencies in current appropriations.

Sec. 19. The governor may disapprove any distinct item or items appropriating moneys in any appropriation bill. The part or parts approved shall become law, and the item or items disapproved shall be void unless re-passed according to the method prescribed for the passage of other bills over the executive veto.

Sec. 20. No appropriation shall be a mandate to spend. The governor, with the approval of the appropriating committees of the house and senate, shall reduce expenditures authorized by appropriations whenever it appears that actual revenues for a fiscal period will fall below the revenue estimates on which appropriations for that period were based. Reductions in expenditures shall be made in accordance with procedures prescribed by law. The governor may not reduce expenditures of the legislative and judicial branches or from funds constitutionally dedicated for specific purposes.

Sec. 21. The governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state and attorney general shall be elected for four-year terms at the general election in each alternate even-numbered year.

The lieutenant governor, secretary of state and attorney general shall be nominated by party conventions in a manner prescribed by law. In the general election one vote shall be cast jointly for the candidates for governor and lieutenant governor nominated by the same party.

Vacancies in the office of the secretary of state and attorney general shall be filled by appointment by the governor.

Sec. 22. To be eligible for the office of governor or lieutenant governor a person must have attained the age of 30 years, and have been a registered elector in this state for four years next preceding his election.

Sec. 23. The governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state and attorney general shall each receive the compensation provided by law in full payment for all services performed and expenses incurred during his term of office. Such compensation shall not be changed during the term of office except as otherwise provided in this constitution.

Sec. 24. An executive residence suitably furnished shall be provided at the seat of government for the use of the governor. He shall receive an allowance for its maintenance as provided by law.

Sec. 25. The lieutenant governor shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided. He may perform duties requested of him by the governor, but no power vested in the governor shall be delegated.

Sec. 26. In case of the conviction of the governor on impeachment, his removal from office, his resignation or his death, the lieutenant governor, the elected secretary of state, the elected attorney general and such other persons designated by law shall in that order be governor for the remainder of the governor's term.

In case of the death of the governor-elect, the lieutenant governor-elect, the secretary of state-elect, the attorney general-elect and such other persons designated by law shall become governor in that order at the commencement of the governor-elect's term.

If the governor or the person in line of succession to serve as governor is absent from the state, or suffering under an inability, the powers and duties of the office of governor shall devolve in order of precedence until the absence or inability giving rise to the devolution of powers ceases.

The inability of the governor or person acting as governor shall be determined by a majority of the supreme court on joint request of the president pro tempore of the senate and the speaker of the house of representatives. Such determination shall be final and conclusive. The supreme court shall upon its own initiative determine if and when the inability ceases.

Sec. 27. The legislature shall provide that the salary of any state officer while acting as governor shall be equal to that of the governor.

The question submitted to the electors shall state the amount to be borrowed, the specific purpose to which the funds shall be devoted, and the method of repayment.

Sec. 16. The state, in addition to any other borrowing power, may borrow from time to time such amounts as shall be required, pledge its faith and credit and issue its notes or bonds therefor, for the purpose of making loans to school districts as provided in this section.

If the minimum amount which would otherwise be necessary for a school district to levy in any year to pay principal and interest on its qualified bonds, including any necessary allowances for estimated tax delinquencies, exceeds 13 mills on each dollar of its assessed valuation as finally equalized, or such lower millage as the legislature may prescribe, then the school district may elect to borrow all or any part of the excess from the state. In that event the state shall lend the excess amount to the school district for the payment of principal and interest. If for any reason any school district will be or is unable to pay the principal and interest on its qualified bonds when due, then the school district shall borrow and the state shall lend to it an amount sufficient to enable the school district to make the payment.

The term "qualified bonds" means general obligation bonds of school districts issued for capital expenditures, including refunding bonds, issued prior to May 4, 1955, or issued thereafter and qualified as provided by law pursuant to Section 27 or Section 28 of Article X of the Constitution of 1908 or pursuant to this section.

After a school district has received loans from the state, each year thereafter it shall levy for debt service, exclusive of levies for nonqualified bonds, not less than 13 mills or such lower millage as the legislature may prescribe, until the amount loaned has been repaid, and any tax collections therefrom in any year over and above the minimum requirements for principal and interest on qualified bonds shall be used toward the repayment of state loans. In any year when such levy would produce an amount in excess of the requirements and the amount due to the state, the levy may be reduced by the amount of the excess.

Subject to the foregoing provisions, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe and to limit the procedure, terms and conditions for the qualification of bonds, for obtaining and making state loans, and for the repayment of loans.

The power to tax for the payment of principal and interest on bonds hereafter issued which are the general obligations of any school district, including refunding bonds, and for repayment of any state loans made to school districts, shall be without limitation as to rate or amount.

All rights acquired under Sections 27 and 28 of Article X of the Constitution of 1908, by holders of bonds heretofore issued, and all obligations assumed by the state or any school district under these sections, shall remain unimpaired.

Sec. 17. No money shall be paid out of the state treasury except in pursuance of appropriations made by law.

Sec. 18. The credit of the state shall not be granted to, nor in aid of any person, association or corporation, public or private, except as authorized in this constitution.

This section shall not be construed to prohibit the investment of public funds until needed for current requirements or the investment of funds accumulated to provide retirement or pension benefits for public officials and employees, as provided by law.

Sec. 19. The state shall not subscribe to, nor be interested in the stock of any company, association or corporation, except that funds accumulated to provide retirement or pension benefits for public officials and employees may be invested as provided by law; and endowment funds created for charitable or educational purposes may be invested as provided by law governing the investment of funds held in trust by trustees.

Sec. 20. No state money shall be deposited in banks other than those organized under the national or state banking laws. No state money shall be deposited in any bank in excess of 50 percent of the capital and surplus of such bank. Any bank receiving deposits of state money shall show the amount of state money so deposited as a separate item in all published statements.

Sec. 21. The legislature shall provide by law for the annual accounting for all public moneys, state and local, and may provide by law for interim accounting.

The legislature shall provide by law for the maintenance of uniform accounting systems by units of local government and the auditing of county accounts by competent state authority and other units of government as provided by law.

Sec. 22. Procedures for the examination and adjustment of claims against the state shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. 23. All financial records, accountings, audit reports and other reports of public moneys shall be public records and open to inspection. A statement of all revenues and expenditures of public moneys shall be published and distributed annually, as provided by law.

Sec. 24. The accrued financial benefits of each pension plan and retirement system of the state and its political subdivisions shall be a contractual obligation thereof which shall not be diminished or impaired thereby.

Financial benefits arising on account of service rendered in each fiscal year shall be funded during that year and such funding shall not be used for financing unfunded accrued liabilities.

AMENDMENT AND REVISION

By legislature.

Sec. 1. Amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate or house of representatives. Proposed amendments agreed to by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house on a vote with the names and vote of those voting entered in the respective journals  shall be submitted, not less than 60 days thereafter, to the electors at the next general election or special election * as the legislature shall direct. * If a majority of electors  voting on a proposed amendment  approve the same, it shall become part of the constitution and shall abrogate or amend existing provisions of the constitution at the end of 45 days after the date of the election at which it was approved.

This is a revision of Sec. 1, Article XVII, of the present constitution. Principal change is the requirement that amendments proposed by the legislature "shall be submitted not less than 60 days" after they have been agreed upon. This is inserted to discourage a tendency in recent years to submit legislative proposals for amendment so late that election officials find it impossible to observe statutory deadlines for ballot printing and delivery.

A final clause in the section makes it clear that amendments adopted become effective 45 days after the date of the election at which they are approved.

By petition of electors.

Sec. 2. Amendments may * be proposed to this constitution by petition of the  registered electors of this state. Every petition shall include the full text of the proposed amendment, * and be signed by  registered electors of the state equal in number to at least 10 percent of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected. Such petitions shall be filed with the  person authorized by law to receive the same at least 120 days before the election at which the proposed amendment is to be voted upon. Any such petition shall be in the form, and shall be signed and circulated in such manner, as prescribed by law. * *The person * authorized by law to receive such petition, shall, upon its receipt, determine, as provided by law, the validity and sufficiency of the signatures on the petition, and make an official announcement thereof of least 60 days prior to the election at which the proposed amendment is to be voted upon.*
