Overview of the Constitutional Convention Process

Provisions generally began as Committee Proposals and were then brought to the convention floor for first reading. The majority of debate on the substance of provisions occurred during the first and second readings. There were two third readings; the first on an article-by-article basis and the second reviewing the Constitution as a whole. Following the third readings the entire Constitution was voted on by the delegates. The delegates then created the Notice of Address to the People, summarizing the Constitution on a provision-by-provision basis, which was distributed so that the people could be informed when making their ratification votes.

The convention used ALL CAPS to denote added material and [brackets] to denote removed material.

Following is Committee Proposal 91 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

Mr. Danhof, chairman of the committee on judicial branch, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 91:

Sec. a. This section supplants section a, article VII of the Constitution of 1908 increasing the total number of justices to 9. It eliminates a former provision concerning the chief justice, "to be chosen by the electors of the state" and, in the last section, provides for the election of the chief justice by the members of the court. This section continues the present statutory 8 year term of office. By reason of the increase in total membership of the court, the last sentence provides for not more than 3 terms of office to expire at the same time—thus replacing the present provision that "Not more than 2 justices shall go out of office at the same time."

Sec. b. This is a new section. The first sentence clearly provides for the selection of the chief justice by the members of the court. This has been the practice of the court for several decades, although section 2 of article VII of the Constitution of 1908 would appear to require that the chief justice "be chosen by the electors of the state."

The committee is of the opinion that the members of the court are better qualified than the electors to make the selection of their own chief justice. This provision will give constitutional sanction to the existing practice.

The second sentence clearly provides a method for establishing the duties of the chief justice.

The third and fourth sentences implement the language appearing in section 4 with reference to the power of "superintending control" over all courts of lesser jurisdiction. This language will give constitutional sanction to the existing office of the court administrator, and will clearly spell out the source of his authority.

Sec. c. This section is a revision of section 4 of article VII of the Constitution of 1908. It substitutes the general term, "prerogative and remedial writs" for the list of historic writs contained in the 1908 constitution. The change accomplished by the final language permits the court to control its appellate jurisdiction by rule. It is the opinion of the committee that the language proposed will shorten and clarify this section.

Sec. d. This section is a revision of section 5 of article VII of the Constitution of 1908. In addition to existing powers of the court, power is conferred to simplify both practice and procedure. The second sentence gives constitutional sanction to the judiciary act of 1960, by which distinctions between law and equity have been abolished. The last sentence continues the language of the 1908 constitution without change so that the office of master in chancery is prohibited.

Sec. e. This section is a revision of section 7 of article VII of the Constitution of 1908. The reference to "prerogative writs" replaces the list of historic writs contained in the present constitution. The proposed section continues the requirement of written opinions with a statement of facts and reasons for each decision. The final sentence requires a statement of reasons for all dissents whether in whole or in part. The eliminated language of the 1908 constitution requiring signature of opinions and filing of the same is, in the opinion of the committee, unnecessary. This practice is well established and it appears unnecessary to encumber the constitution with this requirement.

Sec. f. This is a new section, replacing and simplifying section 6. It extends the appointive power of the supreme court and its supervising control to its entire staff, instead of limiting it to the officers named in section 6 of article VII of the Constitution of 1908.

It continues the existing requirement that all receipts of the court shall be credited to the general fund. It also continues the prohibition against appointments by the supreme court to public office, excepting for the appointment of the staff of that court and other appointments of retired members of the judiciary to fill vacancies in the courts of the state by appointment of retired members of the judiciary. The details of such appointment which will continue only until such vacancies are filled by election, are covered in other sections of this committee's proposals.

Other proposals of this committee, which will be separately dealt with, permit the supreme court to authorize persons who have served as judges and who have voluntarily retired, to perform judicial duties for a limited period of time until a vacancy in judicial office is filled by election. The final language of this proposal is for the purpose of permitting the supreme court to make such interim appointments, and in the opinion of the committee, is necessary to correlate these 2 sections.

Sec. g. The committee on judicial branch has had under consideration since November 7, 1961, Delegate Proposal 1218. This was revised and again submitted on December 1, 1961, as Delegate Proposal 1488. The committee has heard the testimony from scores of witnesses bearing upon the method to be used in nomination and election of the justices of the supreme court. It has been faced with a choice between:

1. Some appointive method providing either for appointment of justices of the supreme court by the governor:

(a) With the advice and consent of the senate; or

(b) From a list of qualified appointees submitted in accordance with the so called "Missouri plan", or "ABA plan".

2. The continuance of the present provisions of section 23, as implemented by statute, which results in partisan nomination of justices of the supreme court followed by "nonpartisan" statewide election.

3. A constitutional change or direction to the legislature to provide for a statewide nonpartisan primary followed by a statewide nonpartisan election or, in the alternative, a statewide partisan primary followed by a statewide partisan election.

4. A plan for election of justices of the supreme court from areas within the state so arranged as to be as nearly as possible equal in population and availability of qualified candidates.

On January 16, 1962, the committee first considered the general subject of appointment as a general principle, with a vote of 18 opposing, one in favor and 2 absent.

On the same date, the committee took a tentative vote on the Missouri and ABA plans with the result that 15 opposed this principle; 3 were in favor of it and 3 were absent.

This was followed by a tentative vote on the principle of continuing some elective system. This vote resulted in 10 in favor, 8 opposed and 3 absent.

Following these tentative votes, additional work continued by members of the committee toward further refinement and perfection of the plan for district nonpartisan nomination and election of justices of the supreme court.

This work was completed and a revised proposal was submitted on January 25, 1962.

This revised plan established 7 judicial districts and provided for the nonpartisan nomination and election of 3 members of a 9 man court from judicial district 1, comprising the county of Wayne and containing 1/3 of the state's population; one justice from Oakland county, containing slightly less than 1/9 of the state's population but having a growth potential; and one justice each from each district as follows:

JUDICIAL DISTRICT 3, COMPRISING THE COUNTIES OF MONROE, LENAWEE, WASHTENAW, LIVINGSTON, SHIAWASSEE AND GENESEE.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT 4, COMPRISING THE COUNTIES OF MACOMB, ST. CLAIR, SANILAC, HURON, LAPEER, TUSCOLA AND SAGINAW.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT 5, COMPRISING THE COUNTIES OF BERRIEN, CASS, VAN BUREN, KALAMAZOO, ST. JOSEPH, BRANCH, CALHOUN, HILLSDALE, JACKSON AND INGHAM.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT 6, COMPRISING THE COUNTIES OF MUSKEGON, KENT, OTTAWA, MONTCALM, IONIA, GRATIOT, CLINTON, ALLEGAN, BARRY AND EATON.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT 7, COMPRISING ALL OTHER COUNTIES OF THE STATE.

The relative population of the districts so established would then be as follows:

Judicial district number	Number of counties	Number of justices	Population per justice
1	1	3	888,766
2	1	1	690,259
3	6	1	817,341
4	7	1	855,308
5	10	1	999,019
6	10	1	904,908
7	48	1	890,062

A study was also made of the distribution of lawyers in the state within each judicial district. This indicated that aside from public officers, house counsel and law school professors, the lawyer population including judiciary and inactive members of the bar in the proposed districts would be approximately as follows:

Judicial districts	Lawyer population
1	4,215
7	516

This tabulation illustrates the fairly constant proportion of lawyers to population in each of the proposed judicial districts.

Arguments presented before the committee in support of the district election plan included the following:

1. Candidates would be better known to voters of districts in which they were candidates.

2. The compact and contiguous areas comprising the districts (except possibly district 7) would make it possible for candidates to meet and know the voters which they cannot do when elected on a statewide basis.

3. The division of the state is on a population basis as nearly as possible equal.

4. Balance would be maintained in the type of men sitting on the court between all parts of the state, thus assuring a statewide approach to cases before the court. While such balance is now maintained in part by the present nominating process in which recognition is given to residence of the candidate, among other factors, there is no assurance or legal requirement that this will always obtain.

5. It is consistent with the overwhelming sentiment for a nonpartisan judiciary.

6. It would eliminate the present inconsistency of partisan nomination followed by "nonpartisan" election.

7. It would remove the inordinate expense to be borne by each candidate of having to campaign statewide for nomination (absent nomination at party convention) followed by a second statewide campaign at the individual expense of the candidate presumably without any party backing.

8. Elimination of items mentioned in paragraphs 6 and 7 could be expected to attract as candidates men of the highest ability, regardless of party affiliation or financial status.

9. The assured geographic distribution of justices would make it possible for every lawyer in the state to strive for such excellence that his fellow lawyers and the public might think him worthy to serve on this high court even though he should not become famous as a great trial lawyer.

10. This plan could be equally applicable to the election of judges of the court of appeals and with the same advantages.

11. The districts could be integrated into a court of appeals structure, with

One court of appeals serving district 1;

One court of appeals serving districts 2, 3, 4;

One court of appeals serving districts 5, 6, 7;

and possibly sitting in divisions at:

(a) Grand Rapids;

(b) Some place in the northern portion of the lower peninsula;

(c) Some place in the upper peninsula.

12. The districts are drawn in correspondence to presently existing circuit court boundaries. Thus all cases from any given circuit would be appealed to the same court of appeals.

13. While this plan would be new in Michigan, it is not unique. Some states already have it, notably Illinois, and they thought so highly of it that they retained it in their very recent overhaul of their court system.

14. Such a structure would provide an appellate court located at no great distance from any place in the state and should result in a reduction in both time and expense for those using these courts. Thus the best interest of the public would be served.

The majority of the committee rejected the argument that the district plan would lead to "balkanization of the state and to parochialization of the state's judicial process". It was pointed out by members of the committee who had served as circuit judges in many parts of the state that justice was administered with an even hand regardless of where an individual judge might reside or the location of the court in which he might preside.

It was further pointed out that over the years the justices of the supreme court have been called to that bench from many parts of the state but that once elected they performed their duties with a view to the law in the state as a whole. There was no evidence that the district plan would in any wise change the statewide view of those elected to the supreme court.

Certain members of the committee continued to advocate some appointive system modeled on the Missouri or ABA plan. Others favored continuance of the present partisan nomination followed by nonpartisan election. Still others suggested a return to complete statewide partisan nomination and election. This division in the committee continued until January 31, 1962, at which time the committee voted in favor of the plan as submitted and revised, with 11 votes in favor, 5 opposed and 5 absent or abstaining.

The committee proposal, therefore, contemplates nonpartisan primary and election on a district basis as therein set forth.

It further provides flexibility in permitting transfer of counties from one judicial district to another following each decennial census, so that no single judicial district would have a population of less than $\frac{1}{4}$ or more than $\frac{1}{2}$ of the population of judicial district 1, (Wayne county). Such transfer, however, shall not result in removal of a justice, nor shall it disqualify him for reelection.

The proposal makes existing election laws applicable to all primaries and elections for justices of the supreme court. It continues in office incumbent justices without regard to place of residence and permits their reelection. It empowers the legislature to provide for transition from present methods of election to the method provided in the proposal.

Following is minority report A to Committee Proposal 91 as offered (no reasons were submitted in support thereof):

Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Leibrand and McAllister, a minority of the committee on judicial branch, submit the following minority report to Committee Proposal 91:

A minority of the committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. b. ONE JUSTICE OF THE SUPREME COURT SHALL BE SELECTED BY THE COURT AS ITS CHIEF JUSTICE IN THE MANNER AND FOR THE TERM PROVIDED BY THE RULES OF THE COURT.

Sec. c. THE SUPREME COURT SHALL HAVE: A GENERAL SUPERINTENDING CONTROL OVER THE DOCKETS OF THE APPELLATE COURT AND CIRCUIT COURTS; POWER TO ISSUE, HEAR, AND DETERMINE PREROGATIVE AND REMEDIAL WRITS; APPELLATE JURISDICTION AS PROVIDED BY SUPREME COURT RULE, IT BEING PROVIDED THAT THE SUPREME COURT SHALL NOT HAVE THE POWER TO REMOVE OR SUSPEND A JUDGE.

Sec. d. THE SUPREME COURT SHALL BY GENERAL RULES ESTABLISH, MODIFY, AMEND AND SIMPLIFY THE PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE IN ALL COURTS IN THE STATE, IT BEING PROVIDED THAT WHERE THERE IS A CONFLICT BETWEEN SUPREME COURT RULE AND A STATUTE CONCERNING EVIDENCE OR SUBSTANTIVE LAW THE STATUTE SHALL PREVAIL. THE DISTINCTIONS BETWEEN LAW AND EQUITY PROCEEDING SHALL, AS FAR AS PRACTICABLE, BE ABOLISHED. THE OFFICE OF MASTER IN CHANCERY IS PROHIBITED.

Sec. e. DECISIONS OF THE SUPREME COURT, INCLUDING ALL DECISIONS ON PREROGATIVE WRITS, SHALL BE IN WRITING AND SHALL CONTAIN A CONCISE STATEMENT OF THE FACTS AND REASONS FOR EACH DECISION AND DENIAL OF LEAVE FOR APPEAL. WHEN A JUDGE DISSENTS IN WHOLE OR IN PART HE SHALL GIVE IN WRITING THE REASONS FOR HIS DISSENT.

Following is minority report B to Committee Proposal 91 as offered and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

Messrs. Ford, Garvin, Bledsoe, Miss McGowan, Messrs. Ostrow, Barthwell and Krolkowski, a minority of the Committee on judicial branch, submit the following minority report to Committee Proposal 91:

A minority of the committee recommends that the following be excluded from the constitution:

Messrs. Ford, Garvin, Bledsoe, Miss McGowan, Messrs. Ostrow, Barthwell and Krolkowski, a minority of the committee on judicial branch, submit the following reasons in support of the foregoing minority report, which accompanied Committee Proposal 91:

The purpose of the minority report is to eliminate all of section g, which contains the plan for "balkanizing" the supreme court by establishing districts for the election of judges to replace the present system of election on an at large basis. It is the belief of the proponents of this minority report that the present system wherein the election of supreme court justices is on a statewide nonpartisan basis, has worked very well in our state.

The legislature has provided a system of nomination and election under the 1908 constitution which has worked very well in the state of Michigan. By removing the language contained in section g, the legislature would have the power to revise the present procedure to meet changing needs of the state and devise the best possible system: Provided however, That election of supreme court judges would be on a statewide, nonpartisan basis.

The state bar committee on court administration, consisting of 42 members headed by Judge Noel P. Fox, recommended in 1961 in its report to the state bar that "the present system of nominating and electing supreme court justices be retained, the same provisions to apply to judges of an intermediate court of appeals, if the latter court be established by the constitution".

The district plan for election of supreme court justices would result in disenfranchising a majority of the electors in the state from voting for all of the judges exercising statewide power and jurisdiction. It is difficult to conceive of any principle which would limit a supreme court justice's opinions and point of view to a particular district of the state rather than to the state as a whole. The district plan would strongly tend to inject sectionalism into the opinions and decisions of the court.

In conclusion, the proponents of this minority report believe, after listening to testimony by representatives of the bench and bar throughout the state and at all levels, as well as representatives from the bar associations of other states, that our present system for selection of supreme court justices is far superior to any alternative plan presented before our committee.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The Chair would inquire of the chairman of the committee: is it your desire that we take this proposal up section by section?

MR. DANHOF: It is, sir.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Mr. Danhof, with respect to section a of Committee Proposal 91.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, section a sets up a supreme court of 9 justices, one more than we have now. It provides that they shall be elected by the electors of the state, the term to be 8 years and not more than 3 terms shall expire at the same time.

I should like to point out that section a is tied inexorably to section g of Committee Proposal 91, section g being the majority report of the committee concerning the selection of the supreme court.

The majority report is that the justices shall be elected from various districts as are set forth in section g. I would point out to the committee that it will be necessarily determined that if section g is adopted by the majority of this committee, then section a should go with it in order that there be a logical number to fit the various districts that have been proposed by the majority of the committee.

I would, therefore, recommend and move that at this time the provision and the matter relating to section a be passed until we get to section g and have determined the method and the selection and that we then return, after consideration of section g, to the provisions of section a and I so move.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The question is on the motion of Mr. Danhof that further consideration of section a be postponed until following consideration of section g of the proposal. Mr. Ford.

Explanation—Matter within [] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

problem is, if you are afraid of the supreme court and the people on it, you have one way you could solve that fear: make sure that you can kick them out when they behave in an abominable manner. Make sure they are elected, and the people can kick them out if they don't like them. Do it by voting.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The Chair will ask the speakers to confine themselves to the amendment currently before us. The question is on the amendment offered by Miss Donnelly, Mr. Leibbrand and Mr. McAllister. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is:

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: I would like a division on this question.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. McAllister requests a division. Is the request supported? It is supported. The question is on the amendment offered by Miss Donnelly and others. Those who favor it will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment offered by Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Leibbrand and McAllister, the yeas are 32, the nays are 75.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The amendment is not adopted. Are there further amendments to section d?

SECRETARY CHASE: None on file, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: There being no further amendments, it will pass.

Section d is passed. The secretary will read section e.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section e:

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: For an explanation of section e, the Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Again I would like to yield to the gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. Tubbs, on section e.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is a rewrite of the present section 7 of article VII of the constitution. It changes the language a little bit to clarify it, and requires that reason shall be given, and that all decisions of the court shall be in writing. Even a dissenting judge must give the reasons for his dissent. This has been in the constitution for a long time, and I can see no reason why it should not be continued, and hope that you will pass this provision.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: I should also like to call upon the delegate from Detroit, Mr. Cudlip.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Cudlip is recognized.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, the change with respect to writing these dissenting opinions is, "When there is a dissent in whole or in part" is the proposed rule. Today the constitution simply provides for dissenting opinions.

One of the justices that appeared before us said this in his report, and we in the committee thought it had a great deal of meaning and merit:

Some members of the court have in the past followed the practice of signing on the left side of the opinion when they agreed with the result but didn't agree with all the reasoning in the majority opinion. By this they mean they do not agree with the reasoning and statements in the opinion, but agreed only with the result obtained.

Either the section should provide for writing opinions and giving reasons when they disagree in whole or in part, or the provision with respect to writing dissenting opinions serves no useful purpose.

The reason the committee felt that the words "in part" should be included in its proposal are these: lawyers in advising their clients pay great attention to these dissenting opinions, and we know that as life moves forward, that sometimes the dissenting opinion and the views expressed therein become the majority opinion, and it is very useful for a member of the bar to sense the trend of the court. And it is particularly true of a dissenting opinion that is joined by 2 or 3 or 4—or 2 or 3 judges in the cases of our court.

The same reasoning applies in the case of a judge or 2 judges who agree in the result of a case, the majority opinion, but don't necessarily agree in the reasoning, and that is where they sign, we will say, sometimes on the left, to indicate that very result.

We members of the committee feel, and I think the bar of Michigan felt, that if they do not agree with the reasoning, even though they agree with the result, they should say so. They don't have to be verbose, but they should say so, so that we who have to advise clients can detect those trends and, as I say, sometimes those trends become the majority rule, and that is a very important thing for lawyers to know: what these attitudes are of the appellate courts.

For that reason I ask that the delegates support the committee proposal.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Danhof, do you have anything further at this time? The secretary has an amendment on his desk. Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask a couple of questions, if I may, of the committee chairman.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: You may if the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. NORRIS: First, Mr. Danhof, is a writ of habeas corpus a prerogative writ?

MR. DANHOF: It would be our interpretation that decisions involving the writs of that type, yes.

MR. NORRIS: Would require an opinion?

MR. DANHOF: I would hope so, yes. I would imagine the court would have some reason that they might interpret it another way, but I would think that they would write an opinion on it. I would hope so, anyway.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Pursuant to their minority report, Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Leibbrand and McAllister offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 11, after "decision" by inserting "and denial of leave for appeal"; so the sentence will read:

Decisions of the supreme court, including all decisions on prerogative writs, shall be in writing and shall contain a concise statement of the facts and reasons for each decision and denial of leave for appeal.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Does one of the movers seek recognition? Mr. McAllister?

MR. McALLISTER: I yield to Miss Donnelly.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The lady from Highland Park, Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I think, initially, "denial of leave to appeal" probably would be more usual language and perhaps a better use. Our main thought here is that today the supreme court does not ever give a reason for denial of leave to appeal. They merely say it is denied. This leaves the litigant and their attorney in the position of not knowing why. They maybe can guess, and when the client comes to the office and asks, the attorney can guess, the client can guess, and everybody can have a fine time, but they don't know.

It is our position at this time that having created an intermediate appellate court, instances when a person would go to the supreme court would probably be cut by a fantastic number. Therefore, when one does go to the supreme court—in all probability this is double guessing because we have not outlined here any reason why the supreme court must listen. Up until now the supreme court has given many instances and has heard many cases where there is any right to appeal. There are leaves to appeal in other instances.

With the creation of an intermediate appellate court there is great likelihood that the supreme court might find that one should have leave to appeal in practically every instance, except for a very few that they can set out in their court rule.

However, the problem of why this case will not be heard in the supreme court would thus become even more important to a litigant who wishes to know. It would be very advisable for all litigants coming after them. Therefore, we move to amend to include a denial of leave for appeal—or to appeal would be added—so that the supreme court, when refusing to give the hearing, will give the reason why. The reason may merely be this is merely an issue of fact which has been adequately determined. They could give that reason very readily, very quickly. Then the individual litigant will know.

This is a way of allowing people to in the future gauge what they should try to take and spend their money for and time and energy in hoping to be heard in the supreme court, and will give guidance to them all, as well as the reason for dissenting opinion, to give guidance to the future, to others who will have a case somewhat analogous to this, and this is in furtherance of this basic theory that people have a right to know.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: On the amendment, the chairman of the committee, Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, this particular amendment as put forth by the minority was discussed at length within the committee. Now, it was the thinking of the majority of the committee that the provision that we have adopted will allow the Supreme Court of the state of Michigan to function very closely to the Supreme Court of the United States. You will have a trial on a circuit court level. Undoubtedly there will then be appeal, if the case is appealed, to the court of appeals, where you will get a written decision. This is very similar to what happens in the federal court.

Now, if you desire to go further, and you have approved that appellate jurisdiction shall be divided by rule, we shall assume for the moment that the supreme court will set up rules regarding appeals as a matter of right perhaps in criminal cases involving life sentences. The rest they will probably say shall be by leave. Now, in the federal court, when you finish in the court of appeals, you file a writ of certiorari in the supreme court. You file a brief, and the court, if it grants the writ—you proceed to argue your case. If the writ is denied, normally that is what it says.

On occasions the court will say: the writ is denied; see such and such a case, or handled previously, no substantial question, very similar, or something to that effect.

But when you write in a provision that requires the court to give the reason for denial of leave to appeal, you are almost, in effect, asking the court to judge each particular case. Because if it is going to deny the leave, it says to set up the reason, and the reason will only be after it examines it, and so you might just as well grant an appeal as a matter of right.

Now, you may make them as long or as short as you desire, but it was the thinking of the majority of the committee that this could best be left to the discretion of the court. Now, if the court says your leave is denied, it very adequately means that the court of appeals becomes your court of last resort, and the decision therein written, as you know at the federal level, will passively become that in the law of the state of Michigan. That means that the supreme court of this state agrees with the court of appeals; agrees with the trial court. If it didn't, it probably would grant the leave to appeal.

Assuming that the court of appeals affirms the trial court, the supreme court agrees, it sees no particular reason to give its reason therefor, and consequently we felt that this would be putting an undue burden of detail within the constitution and upon the court. We have granted the appellate jurisdiction as provided by supreme court rule.

In the next section to be determined we state that the jurisdiction of the court of appeals shall be by law, and we think that perhaps the legislature should best pass the statute stating what cases would be appealed as a matter of right. If the supreme court picks up the case, of course it will, and of necessity, write an opinion, as we have required. But to tell them in each and every case they have to give the reasons as to why they have denied the appeal, we think, is undue detail and undue burden once you have established, as you have implied, that the appellate jurisdiction of what the supreme court shall do will be actually upon what the supreme court deems to be important.

As such, the majority of the committee—we discussed this quite in detail in the committee, and the majority felt that the section as we now have it would be complete, would make mandatory the writing of decisions which clearly set out what the court had to write, and we did take out where it should be filed. It says with the clerk. We think the supreme court will file them with the clerk, or with the recorder, or whoever they have.

Therefore I would oppose the amendment on the basis that it is details that we had best leave to the court, since we have allowed the appellate jurisdiction to be by supreme court rule.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Danhof, Miss Donnelly requests you yield to her.

MR. DANHOF: Certainly.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I would like to ask Mr. Danhof 2 questions. One—this may be my lack of knowledge; this may have happened in my absence, and, if it is, I do wish to know this. You say the majority believes. The last time this came up in committee, to my best knowledge, the vote was 9 to 9, and I lack the knowledge of when the majority made the decision that you say they made. Now, maybe they did. I don't want to impute that this isn't true, but to my best knowledge the vote was 9 to 9.

MR. DANHOF: I never argue with a lady. If that was the vote, I don't have the details. But let me put it this way: the majority would not concur in putting in what the minority wanted to. If that was the case, I will not argue with Miss Donnelly as to the vote.

MISS DONNELLY: May I ask you another question? You impute to me—and I am sure you don't wish to, and I think this is for the clarification of everybody—that when the supreme court does deny leave of appeal they do decide this, don't they, and therefore they do analyze the facts, and when you say this requires them practically to make the decision you do not wish to impute that they don't review everything first, do you?

MR. DANHOF: I am not present in the chambers. I would hope that they give due consideration to it. I don't know. But I would imagine they do, not wishing to impute the honesty and integrity of the court. I may have to practice there some day.

MISS DONNELLY: I just wanted to clarify that. I didn't think you meant to say that they didn't consider them. All we are saying is, give the reasons in writing. It is not that we think they didn't consider them; we hope they did consider them. We just want to know what they decided.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The Chair will recognize Mr. Garry Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, a couple of short questions, one to Mr. Danhof and one to Miss Donnelly. First of all, from your answer, Mr. Danhof, it appears that you do not interpret "decision" as meaning a decision on leave to appeal. Is that correct?

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Danhof, if the gentleman cares to answer, he can.

MR. DANHOF: Oh, you mean that when they deny a leave that that is not a decision? No. We interpret decision when they have taken the case and it has been argued and the briefs submitted and the record put before it. That would be the consideration of the committee, yes.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Now I am wondering what—it seems to me I have come across some cases where there has been a leave from an intermediate court of appeals, or an appeal from an intermediate court decision. Those are reported cases, on occasions, I believe, to some other jurisdiction. Is this the way other jurisdictions handle it? Do you know?

MR. DANHOF: You mean are the decisions of the court of appeals reported? My answer, I would imagine, is yes. As far as I know, they are, yes.

MR. G. E. BROWN: The decisions of those courts, yes, but I am asking you about the applications to the higher court, then.

MR. DANHOF: You mean when leave to appeal is filed and denied, is that reported?

MR. G. E. BROWN: Yes.

MR. DANHOF: To my knowledge, yes, but this would be a matter of practice and procedure, but I would assume the book publishing companies would pick that up in a hurry.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Okay. Now, leave to appeal in our supreme court, those matters are treated as window matters, so to speak, and it isn't a reported case as such on them. Now, then, I am wondering now, to direct a question to Miss Donnelly, and that is, did you contemplate that by adding this language, that you would make this a reported case, or merely that in the opinion rendered to the litigant that they would set forth their reasons? Now, where you have put this language, you have it after the preceding words that say "the facts and reasons shall be set forth," and do you contemplate then that the court would be required to set forth the facts as well as the reasons for denying the leave to appeal?

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The question is directed to Miss Donnelly. Miss Donnelly is recognized.

MISS DONNELLY: I would contemplate that—to go back momentarily, originally the issue on the writ, or the question on the habeas corpus writ, is now treated as a window matter. To follow this logically, then, Mr. Danhof would have to say that window matters will be decided. Now, I don't interpret that window matters necessarily, except where they refer to prerogative writs, would be, but I believe that an individual is entitled to know.

Now, whether they have to publish in the long form is not what I intend. I would say a very short and concise statement could be made interpreting what the—in effect, if they were to print the intermediate courts, then the need to print all the facts would not be. But I don't think we are anticipating intermediate court's opinions being printed.

I think particularly of value to all people would be why this leave is denied, as well as why one is granted. This, in effect, gives them another decision. Therefore it would seem to me that a very short, concise statement that leave to appeal in case so and so versus so and so is denied because it is merely a question of fact, wherein the inferior court has more than adequately explored the field. A very short, concise statement.

I will stipulate that the nature of this draft is a little loose there, and I can see the reason for your question. Perhaps we should have redrafted this better. I think there is reason to think that. I wouldn't anticipate that they would have to write the whole case history up, no.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: I think there is some merit in your amendment. However, I think the place it is put in the language of the committee will require them to, in effect, recite the facts and recite the reasons much like they would in any other decision. That is why I wanted to clarify this point, because I would not be in favor of that. Conceivably this is a matter that style and drafting could take care of.

MR. DANHOF: If Mr. Brown will yield for just a moment.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Brown, will you yield to Mr. Danhof?

MR. DANHOF: Now, you talk about the window matters, and of course they are not reported. However, it would be of very little import since the circuit court cases are not, as such, reported. I mean, there is no use reporting a denial for leave to appeal unless you are going to set up all the case history of it, when you don't have the circuit court case history in front of you. And when you get the federal type of reporting, where you have first a district court, if it is a case of fair import, and all of the court of appeals, then when the supreme court denies the writ or the leave to appeal it has real import.

Now, this is a matter that you can't spell out in the constitution, about whether they are going to publish the court of appeals, but I think that if you wanted a court rule or practice or procedure even by statute, that if the appeals and the decisions are fully reported from the court of appeals, that then the supreme court would begin to publish as they do in the back of the U. S. Reports, the case of so and so, writ denied. This would in turn mean something. But I don't think we should write that in and make it mandatory. Now, maybe that is what you have in mind, Mr. Brown. I don't know.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Danhof already has asserted the rules, but would you say this possibly could be done by the legislature in setting forth what matters shall be done in connection with the leave to appeal? I am wondering about what happens to section c where we have just said that the court shall have complete jurisdiction over the practice and procedure, and therefore very conceivably the court may say that we will not issue any reasons, we will not do anything in this regard, we will continue the practice of merely filing and sending back an order of the application for leave to appeal denied.

MR. DANHOF: I wasn't talking about who or what could be appealed. I was talking about the publication of court decisions, which I think might—our public records, in effect, could be moved that they all be—I suppose we could pass a law that all court decisions will be published. I don't know. This is what I was referring to, more than knowing who would appeal, and the manner and method is court rules of practice. This would be regulated by the court.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, first I would like to, with your permission, direct a question to Mr. Danhof.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: If the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. NORRIS: I wonder if he would pull the shade on window matters? Just what do we mean by window matters?

MR. DANHOF: As near as I can figure out, it is everything the supreme court handles that you do not read about in books, Dr. Norris. It is petitions for writs of habeas corpus, leaves to appeal, or various requests for writs that are forwarded to the court which are not, you might say, substantive cases wherein Jones, plaintiff, appeals a case against Smith, defendant, or vice versa. They are never quite clear just what they mean by window matters, but it involves not necessarily the appeal of the particular case, but rather, perhaps, after somebody has been convicted, he goes to jail, and then begins to file for writ of habeas corpus, or petition to remand, or something like that. We obtained this from the supreme court justices. Maybe some of the other members of my committee can enlighten you a little bit further. Maybe Mr. Cudlip, maybe even Dr. Nord can. This is where we obtained the language, but it is everything but the actual cases that are actually formally appealed. It is prerogative writ requests, and things along that manner.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: It is the recollection of the Chair, Mr. Norris, that the term derived from a habit of the justices of the supreme court in the early days of putting these requests up on the window sill until they were prepared to deal with them.

MR. NORRIS: Well, I had hoped the question would throw a little light on that subject. I am not so sure it has. I gather that what amounts to a window matter is that upon which the court has not exercised its judicial power to write a decision, and I am a little disturbed about it.

I am quite sympathetic to the amendment, Mr. Chairman. I think that a day in court includes an opinion at all levels, and as much as possible on all matters. I think that the litigant is, after all, a member of the public, and there is a little disposition on the part of the bench and bar sometimes not to remember that the bench and bar exist to serve the public, and the public doesn't exist to serve the bench and bar. And if we are going to take what I believe is the position that our service of the judicial power by way of the constitution is to fulfill the needs of the public, the public has a right to know the reasons that are assigned for denial on appeal.

I think this wording here, when it refers to prerogative writs, then I take it there would be a decision on all prerogative writs, and I would assume that would include a writ of mandamus, quo warranto, writ of prohibition, and all the rest of them, including writ of habeas corpus.

I am a little disturbed by the attitude of some of the judiciary, and a little bit disturbed by what Mr. Danhof suggested, that the writ of habeas corpus by people who are in jail, that is, that people who don't have the means to hire counsel, have used a petition for writ of habeas corpus for the purpose of getting a review of facts and law regarding their incarceration, and I don't think the fact that they do not have the means to procure a counsel ought to be a reason for not having reasons assigned for the denial of the writ.

I support the amendment because I believe that there ought to be a statement of facts and the reasons therefor. If the supreme court considers it at all, it must have arrived at a rational basis for its decision to deny appeal, and if it has a rational basis there is no reason why it ought not to say so in writing to the parties who are appealing. I support the amendment.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: This is where Mr. Danhof and I begin to part company. I am happy at last to have an opportunity to join with these 3 hard working members of the committee who have been up until now carrying the load all by themselves. This was a matter that the committee was somewhat evenly divided upon, and my recollection was that we really didn't spend a lot of time on it, because not all the lawyers on the committee had had the experience of the terrible disappointment of having these matters denied up there and then wondering forevermore why.

I don't think there is anything more difficult or frustrating to a lawyer, and particularly if you are representing a municipality — and these things, Mr. Norris, come up very, very frequently with respect to writs of mandamus and to injunctions whether they are granted or not granted — because you don't have a final order from which you have an appeal as a matter of right, and they frequently involve great sums of money and a great many personal and individual and community rights.

For example, this weekend I spent about a day and a half of my two days home working on a brief, answering a brief on an application for a leave to appeal. The person making the application against the municipality filed about an 18 or 20 page brief. Mine is much shorter. But after one of the judges reads this over there, I think that the very least he could do would be to write a single paragraph and say this is the reason why I am denying it.

If the application for leave to appeal is granted, then you find out what happened because you then go on with the trial of the matter in the supreme court, the hearing. You perfect the record, and it goes into the books, and everybody knows why the court did what it did. But your rights are as fully and as completely terminated, if you happened to be the applicant, when that court says no, we won't listen to your appeal, as if you had the full hearing and then they said no.

If they grant you leave to appeal, and then you have the hearing, then you find out why they are not going to give you the relief that you think you are entitled to. But if you simply get a form — and this is the way it is done: you get a form back, and there is a place to fill in the word "not," and it says "The application for leave to appeal the above entitled case has — blank — been approved," and if they deny it they put the word "not" in there. Now, this is a rather summary way to dispose of it, and Bob indicates they occasionally go to the extent of saying "because we heard a case similar to this before," but I have seen several of these in the last 5 or 6 years, and I have never seen anything beyond 3 or 4 words, cursory words — a very cursory explanation, and nothing that you can take back, for example, to a municipal board or body or to the citizens of the community and explain why they are going to have a gasoline station right on the corner next door to a church, for example.

This is a very serious matter, and Garry Brown raises a very good question. I don't think that anybody, at the time that we discussed this in committee, anticipated that we were going to inject this point of procedure into the record books to the extent of requiring the printing of these as a permanent record.

The reasons for denial in these matters are only of interest primarily to the people involved. They are not binding on anybody else. They do provide direction for people so that — as a matter of fact, it has been suggested that the supreme court would have more work if this were done. I believe the converse is true. I believe that if, for example, all of the attorneys involved with a particular type of municipal problem were able to obtain a copy of a well reasoned reason, even a few paragraphs, as to why a particular action was taken, it would prevent other attorneys from going back and asking for the same thing knowing they weren't going to get it.

As Mr. Norris has said, all of us hate to believe that the supreme court or any member thereof — and you must remember that these matters are generally determined by a single judge, not the court sitting en banc — must have some reason for saying to a person: we are not going to hear you further. You are through. You have gone as far as you can go.

Now, having made up its mind that the court shouldn't entertain this matter any further, it is a rather simple matter, it seems to me, to dictate a couple of paragraphs to say why. This would produce the second result, and that is that we have no assurance and no way of knowing that there is any consistency in the way these are handled between different judges on the bench.

I had one granted about 3 or 4 years ago, and very competent counsel — I had a whole battery of them. I had even the proverbial big city lawyers from New York on the other side — who had a whole string of cases showing me that the court wouldn't entertain a petition in this type of matter, and they did. But if they had been able to show me why, they probably could have talked me out of it and saved everybody a lot of time and trouble. But nobody knows why they turned them down, so you have to just take your chances up there and see what happens.

Now, case A is turned down by Judge 1, and 2 months later the same set of circumstances come up, and Judge 2 happens to catch it on his window sill, and he says, "Okay, the court will hear this." Now, those 2 cases might be identical, but Judge 2 is so busy, they are both so busy, that they rarely know what's going on between them on miscellaneous or window sill matters, as they are called, and if there was a reason given and a record kept, I think it would tend to cause the reasons for them being allowed or disallowed to become more uniform, and instead of increasing the work over there, it would cut it down immeasurably.

It doesn't seem at all right that you should ever go into a court with a valuable right and have a decision made, so to speak, under a bushel basket and not really know why unless you happen to, by accident, bump into the supreme court justice who happens to catch that matter, and he happens to remember it from the many hundreds of others, and he says, "Oh, yes, I remember that one, and this is what I thought at the time." This is a very unsatisfactory way to find out what happened up there.

One correction could possibly be made — maybe Miss Donnelly might consent to changing it — to meet Garry Brown's question. Where you add the words "and denial of leave to appeal," maybe "and reasons for denial of leave to appeal" would make it clear that with respect to the denial of leave to appeal we don't want a reiteration of the facts, but just a statement of reasons.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: As a matter of fact, I think we had that in originally, and it sort of got lost. I definitely agree.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Miss Donnelly, it would be appreciated, the Chair is sure, by the secretary, if you would prepare your amendment in the precise form in which you would like to have it approved, and present it to him while we are hearing from Mr. Ostrow and Mr. Garry Brown. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: I support the Donnelly amendment. As a matter of fact, one of the reasons why I was in favor of an intermediate court of appeals was to give the supreme court the time to handle leaves to appeal properly. Now, for the benefit of the laymen, that is, the nonlawyers in this committee, there are very, very many cases in which the application for the leave to appeal is the end of the litigation. It is not just in criminal cases or municipal cases.

I am not sure of the law at the present time, but at one time workmen's compensation cases could only get into the supreme court by applications for leave to appeal. In those days, if I remember correctly, they didn't even have this blank that they sent back to you. We had a clerk of the supreme court once who didn't want to clutter up the office with a lot of files and filing system, and so he just wrote on the back of your application "Application denied." There was always a suspicion, never confirmed, that he either denied them or a single judge denied them; nobody knew quite how or why they were denied.

These things are very important matters. Every supreme court case is an important matter not only to the litigant, but every day of your life you are affected by supreme court cases that you never heard of. I know it is a tendency on the part of some laymen to say, "I have never even been in the circuit court; what do I care about the supreme court? That is for the lawyers." Well, you should care about the supreme court; you should care about the circuit court; because whether you have ever had a lawsuit in your life, you are daily affected by cases you never heard of.

I want to give you one. We had a statute in the state of Michigan that required factories to pay women the same wages as men. But it was a penal statute. It provided—I forget—$100 fine, 30 days in jail, and nobody paid any attention to it because corporations don't go to jail, and if you got a hundred women working for you, and you are saving 20 cents an hour, you can afford to pay a $100 dollar fine. The case went to the Supreme Court of the state of Michigan, and the supreme court held that the women could sue and recover the difference in wages, and the women did sue and did recover the difference in wages, and since then, because every employer knows that if he doesn't pay women the same as men, that is, in factories, they can sue and recover. It is automatic. And very few people have ever heard of the case. It happened over 20 years ago.

While I am here I may as well take this opportunity to say this to the nonlawyers: here is your greatest chance to get free legal advice. You have got 56 lawyers here. If you don't understand what they are talking about, get up on your feet and make them explain it to you. Because if you don't understand, how are you going to go back home and explain why you voted for or against something? There is nothing so technical that it can't be explained to you, and anybody who knows what they are talking about can explain it so that you can understand it.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The Chair recognizes Mr. Garry Brown.

MR. MADAR: Point of personal privilege.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: State your point, Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Well, I just thought that I would like to find out now from Mr. Ostrow how we are going to get this good information. It seems to me there have been quite a few attorneys here who didn't know what the other attorneys were talking about. (laughter)

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: As the Chair has pointed out also, from time to time they have talked largely to one another; but notes that our attendance this evening is much better. Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: Let me say this in connection with that question: that is one thing that attorneys always get, that attorneys disagree. Certainly they disagree. Courts disagree. But at least you can get both sides of the question and then make up your own mind as to which you think is the better side. I don't claim that we can resolve all questions or agree, but at least get both sides of the question so you can talk intelligently on either side. Then your guess is as good as ours, but at least make it an educated guess and don't just toss a coin.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Garry Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, with respect to the question raised by Mr. Norris a few minutes ago, I thought it still might be worthy of an answer to that question. In addition to the matters he mentioned as far as the appeals in the matter, of course, all of your motions and so on, that are pending in the case before its final adjudication are treated as window matters; such as motions for emergency consideration of appeal, and things of this nature. I think in fairness we should say, too, that the court, at least my understanding has been that not only one judge decides this matter, but he tries by a telephone conference to confirm that which he has decided. Now, I trust that he does attempt to contact a majority of the court with respect to these matters, and I will share that doubt at least in preference of the court before I decide to go along with Bill Ford that one man decides all this.

I think that this also raises a further problem, though, with respect to this matter of giving reasons for denial of leave to appeal, and that is that if this is done on a telephone conference basis, very conceivably it would be impossible for each of the judges to set forth his dissent as to whether or not there is going to be granted a leave to appeal. Really, I think that this is a matter which you cannot dispose of by just inserting a word or two; but very probably should be the subject of an entirely new sentence dealing with matters involving leave to appeal.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Brown, will you yield to Mr. Norris? Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Do I understand you, sir, to defend a practice of deciding leaves to appeal by one person confirming it by a phone call?

MR. G. E. BROWN: It isn't my privilege to say, really, Mr. Norris, as to how that should be decided. I think that should be decided by the court, of course, but I am saying that this is the practice, as I understand it. I am sure that if one of the justices were here, he would say that this is decided by the full court. "Of course, we don't meet together to decide these things, very possibly, but we all concur in the decision." Whether that is true or not, I don't know. I think, though, that with an appellate court you wouldn't have so much of this window matter, and that very possibly this will permit the supreme court, as such, to actually set forth their reasons, and to meet to determine these things such as on every Tuesday morning when they decide motions.

MR. NORRIS: I appreciate what you said, but I do think that what you have said, which may have some semblance to the actual practice, is added confirmation for the need to support the Donnelly amendment.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The Chair would suggest that some of the recent argument has tended to wander slightly from the point, and would request the succeeding speakers to confine themselves to the Donnelly amendment, on which the Chair will recognize Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: I would like to point out, Mr. Norris, that I also favor the Donnelly amendment, with the objections I have raised in the wording of it.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I would like to address a question to the chairman of the committee, Mr. Danhof, if I may.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: If the gentleman cares to answer.

MR. KING: Mr. Danhof, do you know of any state where the court states its reason for denying appeal? In your study of this matter did you uncover any state?

MR. DANHOF: Offhand I can't recall any, no. You mean where they have a court of appeals, I assume?

MR. KING: Well, either where they have an intermediate court or where they don't.

MR. DANHOF: You see, if I may, that is where you have to read this particular idea into the context. You can't read the present procedure into the court system that we have tentatively agreed to set up. That is the problem that I think is developing now. In those states where they have intermediate courts, New York, Illinois and New Jersey, I cannot recall any where they make it mandatory in the constitution. They might have it in the court rules, or someplace like that, but not that I can recall in the constitution.

MR. KING: I don't recall ever running into that kind of situation in my study of the law as a student, and I further think that there is great danger in asking a court for brief reasons for denying leave. I don't see how they can do it in one or two sentences. This is contrary to my understanding of the judicial system in this country.

I could cite many cases where the court has reversed itself over a number of years, and I am sure you can. Brown vs. School Board of Topeka, Kansas; Mapp vs. Ohio. But I don't want to say anything that is controversial here.

But it seems to me that this is something which is best left to the discretion of the court; that as time goes on, if and when the court feels constrained to reverse itself on an earlier decision, at that time it can, and it does, and it should have that right. I don't for a minute deny them that right.

I think perhaps that if you want to make sure that each judge has read the leave for appeal, then put in the constitution that each judge shall sign that he either concurs or does not concur in the denial. Perhaps at a later date he will be embarrassed if in fact he hasn't read the case. I think this is a dangerous step forward, and it is contrary to my understanding of the judicial practice in this country.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Iverson.

MR. IVERSON: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I am rather amazed, myself, at the action of many lawyers around here attempting to undo what this committee has already done. You will recall the other day that you agreed to what amounts to a 5 tier court system, and you have agreed to set up a court of appeals. One of the main reasons for that court of appeals is the fact that one of our other committees proposed that an appeal in all criminal cases as a matter of right shall be granted. That was one of the reasons. Another reason why this court of appeals was set up was for the purpose of relieving the supreme court of many so called minor matters, window sill matters, if you please, and I submit, and I am not inviting this, but I submit that if any language of this kind is necessary at all it belongs in Committee Proposal 92, where we set up and created actually the court of appeals.

I think you are completely undoing, if you adopt this amendment, everything that we are trying to do here. Has anyone any doubt in this room that on an appeal as a matter of right to the court of appeals, that there would not be a written opinion? Has anybody in this room got any idea that if someone asks for leave to appeal to the supreme court, that if that court denied the appeal without any comment, that there would be any question but what they agreed with the court of appeals?

So what you are doing by this amendment is absolutely nullifying what we are trying to do in this court system. I am not inviting it, but if you need it any place at all, and I don't say you need it, you need it in the other provision setting up the court of appeals. I hope you will not go along with this amendment. If you do, you are completely nullifying what we have already done here in the past few days.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: Well, I agree with Mr. Iverson, but probably a little more than he will agree with me. I think that he is right when he says that this belongs in Committee Proposal 92, but I think it belongs there, also. If you read over Committee Proposal 92, that mentions, in passing almost, an intermediate appellate court that will be set up along any rules that the supreme court may see fit to set this court up with. Now, there is no provision in Committee Proposal 92 for any type of decision in the appellate court. We may wind up with an appellate court here that has no written record. We have trial courts now that have no written record outside of the file, and we have all these items going to the supreme court where we have no written records right now.

This is what we are trying to undo. We want attorneys who come around a year from now with the same problems that an attorney has today to know whether or not it is going to serve his client any purpose, or whether or not he is going to save his client any money, or possibly get his client off with a bad decision, or a decision that he considers bad, from a lower court. Without these opinions, all attorneys are in the dark, and all clients are in the dark. You tell your client: possibly we can do something on appeal, we will apply for an appeal, and your client calls you up some time later and says: when are we going up? And all you can tell him is that the supreme court said no, and you can't say why or any other reason. All you can give your client is a no for the fee that he has paid you, if you are lucky enough to have gotten it already, because from there on in you can just whistle for it because you are not going to get it.

Now, because of the fact that I think 92 is just too wide open and just too vague as far as what this intermediate appellate court is going to provide for us, I feel that we should adopt the amendment to at least 91, and possibly 92, also, for the simple reason that we will want written records between the trial level and possibly the appellate level to stem off this future work.

Now, as far as taking a dangerous step forward, I think, frankly, this is a situation that a lot of attorneys have objected to for quite a while now, and as far as myself is concerned, and obviously the proponents here, this is not a dangerous step forward. As far as the other remarks tend to lead us to the belief that the appellate court will have nothing but an excess amount of work here: obviously they read these matters now, they make a decision and they write "not" on the little blank line in your request for an appeal.

It is not asking for too much to ask the court to just go a little further and write out 2 or 3 sentences giving you exactly, in as short a form as possible, their reasons for not entertaining your appeal. This is all that we are asking the court to do, is write down what they are deciding in their minds right now. For these reasons I would support the proposed amendment.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: The Chair will recognize one of the movers of the amendment, Mr. McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: I examined one file of leave to appeal the other day over at the supreme court. I don't even remember the case. But I asked for a case where there had been leave to appeal filed, and I looked that file over very carefully, and that file only bore the signature of one judge, and that individual had practically no criminal experience; and this involved a criminal case, of course. If you have a case now which involves over $500, why, you can appeal to the supreme court as a matter of right, and then they have to give you a decision.

Another thing on leave to appeal, on this application for leave to appeal, a denial of it: a written decision would have to be signed by all 8 judges or 8 or 9 judges, whatever there is, and then you will know that each looked at it, because a judge is not going to sign that decision unless he is familiar with the case. So that if a man is charged with murder or manslaughter or embezzlement, or some serious crime, I think he is entitled to know why the supreme court has decided the case against him. I think that everybody — the lawyer is entitled to know. And, as was previously stated, then you will be guided in the future by their decision.

So I ask you to support this amendment. I think it is of great benefit and of no damage to anyone.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, in speaking in opposition to this amendment, I do so, not because I am out of sympathy with some of the people who have urged it, but rather because I think that this amendment approaches the problem in absolutely the wrong way. It approaches it from the wrong direction. An application for leave for appeal is something which any one who is disgruntled with the decision that he received in the court below can send up to the supreme court. It is a request. It admits we don't have a right to appeal under the law, but it says "We would like to appeal anyway, and in the exercise of your discretion won't you let us appeal?"

It seems to me rather than force the court to write an opinion, even a short one, on each of these that come up, it would be much better to take these important matters which have been talked about, and which the lawyers are all concerned about, and make a provision in the law that there shall be a right to appeal, and to save the court from the burden of having to write an opinion discussing the reasons and the facts of these little minor matters which anybody can send up to them and try to get a decision on. And believe me, a lot of people will try to get such a decision, and it can prove to be embarrassing, and the reason that it can prove to be embarrassing is because of the fact that even a short opinion of the court, if it is printed up officially or unofficially and passed around, can become precedent for future action. We don't want those precedents to be based on snap judgments, whether by 1 judge or 2 judges or 3 or a dozen judges.

That is all they are going to be if you require one of these written opinions for every little matter that somebody wants to appeal on. They have to come down. This is going to be a snap judgment, and it is going to be, as Mr. Ford pointed out some minutes ago, it will be regarded as a precedent. We don't want that kind of precedent in Michigan, and it would be much better to approach this in the other direction by taking those important matters and giving them a right to appeal on those, rather than requiring an opinion on everything.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Chairman, I thought perhaps we might be able to get a vote, and I inquired, and there are some 3 or 4 speakers left, and in view of the hour I move that we do now rise.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Danhof moves the committee do now rise. All in favor say aye. Opposed?

The motion prevails. The committee will rise.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration several matters of which the secretary will give a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 91, has considered amendments thereto, has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I appreciate the comments of Mr. Ostrow, being a layman. For the encouragement of all of you the proposals come from the committee, the minority reports and the amendments.

I think I feel like this individual who was on the rubberneck wagon in the city of Detroit. They were going along in the rubberneck wagon, and the ballyhooper said, "On the right, ladies and gentlemen, we have the home of Mr. Ford," and an old lady leaned forward and said, "Henry Ford?" The ballyhooper said, "No, Edsel Ford."

After a while he said, "On the left we have the home of Mr. Dodge." The old lady leaned forward and said, "Horace Dodge?" The ballyhooper said, "No, John Dodge."

A little later on the ballyhooper said, "On the left we have Christ Church." The old lady didn't say a thing, and a man back of her tapped on her shoulder and said, "Go ahead, lady, you can't always be wrong." (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Leppien.

MR. LEPIEN: Mr. President, I move the convention recess until 8:00 p.m. this evening.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: You have heard the motion. Those in favor say aye. Opposed?

We stand in recess until 8:00 p.m. this evening.

[Whereupon, at 6:00 o'clock p.m., the convention recessed; and, at 8:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

Will the convention come to order please.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Delegate Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I move that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for the purpose of considering items on the calendar of general orders.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: You have heard the motion. All those in favor say aye. Opposed?

The motion prevails. Delegate Van Dusen will preside.

[Whereupon, Mr. Van Dusen assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The committee will be in order. When last the committee sat, it was considering section e of Committee Proposal 91. The business before the committee is an amendment to section e offered by Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Leibbrand and McAllister, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The minority report amendment offered by Miss Donnelly and Messrs. Leibbrand and McAllister has been revised so that it now reads:

1. Amend page 2, line 11, after "decision" by inserting "and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal"; so that the sentence will read:

Decisions of the supreme court, including all decisions on prerogative writs, shall be in writing and shall contain a concise statement of the facts and reasons for each decision and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: On the amendment, the Chair had when we last sat 3 delegates seeking recognition. The first of those was the delegate from Detroit, Dr. Nord. Do you see recognition at this time, Dr. Nord?

MR. NORD: Mr. Chairman, on this question of whether or not there should be a written decision on a denial of a leave to appeal, I have heard both sides of the argument during debate and also during dinner, and I believe there is a great deal to be said on both sides. But I would like to speak only on one side at a time. It is certainly true that this is by no means an open and shut case on either side, and that is evidenced to by the 9 to 9 vote in the committee.

I think the underlying problem is the thinking that causes the trouble, and we may not be able to cure that. The underlying trouble has to do, in my opinion, with the nature of the leave to appeal. Leave to appeal, in essence, means that the court says there is a review, but—that is, you have a right to file an application for review—they may decide to hear it and then again they may not entirely in their discretion, entirely as a matter of grace. Now, that is bound to cause trouble no matter what we do with it, because it is just antagonistic to our whole idea of justice that a court, if it feels like it, without any reason, can say, "Well, we will give you a hearing," and, if it feels like it, can say, "Well, we will not give you a hearing." So therefore we are probably not going to solve this whole problem as long as there is an appeal of that nature.

But assuming that the court rules will continue to permit leave to appeal in some cases, that is to say that they will provide by rule for a review of 2 kinds similar to what the United States supreme court does, namely, review by appeal where there is a right to review and review by certiorari where there is only leave to appeal or you request leave to appeal. Assuming that they will continue those both, and that we will have these cases where you have to request leave to appeal, then we get down to the meat of the question as proposed by Miss Donnelly, and that is this: if the court has said there can be review of that type, is it proper for the court then, absolutely at their own discretion, for no reason stated, to deny a hearing? Miss Donnelly has said the answer to that question is no; that if there is a review at all of that type, even if it is a matter of leave, that the least the court should do is state why they are not hearing.

It seems to me that the basic type of appeal here or review is not a very high class type of justice because of the fact that it's got this matter of grace or discretion in it. But, however, as long as that exists we ought to at least do something to make it reasonably fair. What we ought to do with it, if we retain it at all, or if the court retains it at all, is to make sure that every person who goes to the trouble of filing an application for leave to appeal, even if they are not given a hearing, at least they are not turned down just point blank, cold, in a rather cool and calculated manner, with no reason stated whatsoever.

I understand the point of view that has been raised by a number of delegates that this is a departure from established practice. This is by no means a settled or well settled approach. It is a new approach, in my opinion. I don't believe that makes it a bad approach. I believe we have to judge on the merits whether it is a good idea or bad idea. It seems to me that on the whole, if there is going to be such type of review, the least we can expect from the court is a decision, and we should not be deterred from requiring the court to make such a decision or such statement of reason, rather, merely on the grounds that this will be a nuisance to the court and it will be trouble, and they don't like it. My feelings about that is it is unfortunate if it is a nuisance, unfortunate they don't like it, but it is more important that the person who believes he has valuable rights, who by court rule is permitted to apply to the court for review, be given some answer more than just the word "no."

Therefore, on the whole, I believe the amendment is well founded and it ought to be supported, and I intend to support it.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The secretary will reread the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment as revised is as follows:

1. Amend page 2, line 11, after "decision" by inserting "and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal".

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: On the amendment the Chair will recognize the gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I am going to speak in favor of the adoption of the amendment. I am particularly appreciative of Mr. Ostrow's remarks this afternoon when he asked us if we didn't understand what the lawyers were talking about, that we please get up and ask questions, and I don't know if you understand quite thoroughly, Mr. Ostrow, what you have laid yourself open to, because now the laymen are going to get into the act.

But it seems to me that here is something that we non-lawyers can understand. I don't believe there is any question about it. It simply says that if we are unfortunate enough to get into court, and we get all the way up to the supreme court and they say: no, we are sorry, we can't hear your case, that they simply must give us some reason in writing. Now it seems to me that that is a rather reasonable request. It seems to me there is something that the nonlawyers can understand. It seems to me that here is an opportunity for the nonlawyers in this committee to help the lawyers who are apparently unable to make up their minds which way this thing is going to go, and we should support their amendment and decide for them.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Oakland, Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask Miss Donnelly a question, if she would care to answer.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: If the lady cares to answer.

MR. KUHN: Miss Donnelly, under your amendment if I had a case which would have original jurisdiction in the Supreme Court of Michigan, and the supreme court would deny my motion, would they have to write a reason out under your amendment?

MISS DONNELLY: If I understood your question, if you have a case that has original jurisdiction in the supreme court?

MR. KUHN: Of the state of Michigan; a writ of mandamus against a state official, which would be—the original jurisdiction would be the only place I could go.

MISS DONNELLY: I would say yes. The only thing that bothers me is, I am not so sure we have got anything that's got original jurisdiction in the supreme court anymore, assuming the constitution is passed. This is what bothers me. Assuming that there is such a thing, the answer would be yes.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask one question of the chairman of the committee, Mr. Danhof.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: If Mr. Danhof cares to answer.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Danhof, are you aware that today, under our present setup, that we could have a case which the supreme court would have original jurisdiction on a writ of mandamus of a state official, and that the supreme court could deny it and give us no reason why they denied it?

MR. DANHOF: Yes.

MR. KUHN: Do you think this is a good practice to be following? In other words, it would be our first chance to have our day in court, and yet we wouldn't know what the reason was we were thrown out of court.

MR. DANHOF: I think if you are going to grant, as you are in this case, where you are going to have most of this by rule, I would imagine that these things will be—there may be a question of what the supreme court has. But I think part and parcel of it, if the case is of sufficient import, the court will, under the new system, begin to report this, too, in their cases. I think we have tried to judge the past too much by what we intend for the future. I think in the past they have found that because of the work load there, and the numerous motions, they have not tended to write long decisions or report them. But in the future we would hope that the decisions that they make will be of sufficient import that they will be reported.

I can think there may be cases where a particular case should not be reported regarding the facts or what is involved. There might be a time when the court will say it is better that this one not be reported, and maybe they should be allowed that leeway. If it involves, like you say, a state official, there may be some personal reasons or something in there that it is not as good that it be reported, but the fact is, the only thing you find on the record is the writ granted or not, and all of the reasons and the thinking behind it should well be left to the court.

You have rules now to suppress a lot of cases, at least on the trial level. I don't know. We aren't prohibiting the court from doing anything. If they want to write their reasons for denying an appeal, let them do it. But what we are setting up is a new practice, and I don't think we can look 20, 30 years in the future to find out. Let them work it out as their practice. I have never known a court that is so shrinking that it has not printed most of its decisions that it can possibly get into print. It has been my knowledge that the lawyers are getting more books, not less.

MR. KUHN: Mr. Chairman, I would like to say I support the Donnelly amendment for the reasons I was trying to state.

We had a case several years ago which did involve a state official. It was a very serious question on an election; whether or not an election law was constitutional. I thought I hired the best attorney in our city. He told me it was unconstitutional. All the circuit judges seemed to think it was unconstitutional, and that was the word we had by way of grapevine. We went to the supreme court, and the only thing we got there was the word "denied," and this was the court of original jurisdiction.

Now we do not know whether the statute is constitutional, whether it was a matter of timing, being too close to election, or what their problem was, and I think it is time that the supreme court put their decisions in writing on why they are denying these motions.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The Chair will suggest that the question at the moment is on the Donnelly amendment, which deals with statement of reasons for denial of leave to appeal, and will request the delegates to confine themselves to that question. Mr. Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Fellow delegates, I think it may be interesting to all of us to give a thought to what by way of work volume this proposed amendment will mean to the supreme court of our state.

I have before me one document that was furnished to the members of our committee on judicial branch, A Review of Judicial Administration at the Appellate Level in the State of Michigan, prepared under the supervision of Dr. Joiner of the University of Michigan law school. Two short excerpts I think will give you some idea of the work volume with which we are dealing in this amendment. Reading from page 3 of the pamphlet, the statement is made that "In 1956," which, incidentally, was the last year for which such statistics were available, "there were 250 written opinions handed down by the supreme court of this state." This is in fully prepared and presented cases with printed record and printed briefs. The pamphlet continues:

This is one of the heaviest loads carried by any court of a state of comparable size.

Skipping to the next following paragraph:

This, however, is but a part of the total work of this court. (In addition to the 250 cases the court in 1956 was faced with the decision of 591 interlocutory motions or window matters.) Thus, each week 14 of these matters must be decided, many of which are inadequately briefed, the decision of which determines in many instances the merits of a lawsuit. In most of the 591 interlocutory motions an informal memorandum is prepared by a judge and circulated among the justices. Often the time taken in preparation of this memorandum involves extensive research and briefing. Thus weekly each judge must first study briefs and records, prepare and polish substantially one major written opinion for the court.

Second, study briefs and records of opinions of 7 other cases and prepare and polish such dissenting and concurring opinions as may be necessary, and, third, be prepared to discuss and decide up to 14 interlocutory motions and prepare a memorandum in at least 2 of them.

The appendix supporting this study appearing on page 48 analyzes some 50 different types of interlocutory motions that came before the court in the year under study, the year 1956.

I won't deal with all of them, but the most significant categories are leave to appeal in civil cases, of which there were 186, of which 104 were denied and 82 granted; leave to appeal in criminal cases, a total of 95, 72 denied and 23 granted; original writs or application for writs of mandamus 29, all denied; 42 writs of habeas corpus, 5 granted and 37 denied. And so I might analyze the rest of these categories. In summation, of these 548 interlocutory matters in that year, 186 were granted, 349 were denied.

The amendment we have under consideration would require the preparation and filing in that year of 349 decisions of the court. Although brief, they would certainly require the research that was referred to here. They would require a reason, statement of reasons for denial. I simply want to present these facts before you so you may intelligently vote upon the additional volume of work—I would dare say at least an increase of 100 per cent of the work load of the supreme court if this amendment be adopted.

Now, it may be said that the intervention of an intermediate court of appeals would screen out many of these applications, and I think this may be true. I have seen during my years in the attorney general's office many of these matters that have been referred to as window matters. They come primarily from a single source. They are very inadequately prepared, they are very inadequately briefed, an intelligent decision of them requires no end of research on the part of the justice who is required to write upon them, and unless we were to substantially increase the manpower of our courts at the appellate level, the proposed amendment would simply make impossible the work load that would be imposed upon our highest tribunal.

And until we can make some decisions on this other matter of the size of our courts and the establishment of an intermediate court of appeals, I find myself compelled to vote against the amendment because of the insuperable work load that statistically would be imposed upon our courts.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Ypsilanti, Mr. Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I rise to speak in support of the Donnelly amendment. I think it is about time that we gave some consideration to the litigants in these cases, and I don't think that the denial of the right, the power exercised by the court in merely saying "denied," is a proper showing of consideration to the litigants.

I don't have the figures before me, but the Supreme Court of Michigan decided only about half the cases in the year cited by Mr. Prettie that it did back in the '20s. There were some years in which it decided in written opinions over 500 cases, and now it is below 300.

I think that the amendment is foresighted in that it takes into consideration 2 factors that we haven't had in the past. First, that the committee report at least proposes to increase the number on the supreme court from 8 to 9; thus giving one more justice. It also takes into consideration that we will have an intermediate appellate court to act as a buffer between the circuit court, so to speak, and the supreme court. Therefore it seems to me that if a party has gone from the circuit court to the intermediate appellate court and had his case tried there—whether it is for or against him makes no difference—and then takes an application to the supreme court for leave to appeal, which is a matter of grace, that the least the supreme court can do is give the reason for that decision.

I don't say that it contemplates the type of decision that we get in an appeal that is heard on the merits, the length of it, but they can at least say that under the facts it is denied, or by virtue of such and such a decision it is denied, and at least the litigant—and again I am not speaking of the lawyers, but I am speaking of the parties—the party who has taken the trouble and gone to the expense of asking the supreme court to determine what his rights are, his basic rights in any case, is at least entitled to know why those 9 men denied him the right to have his case heard in the supreme court.

For that reason it just seems to be a matter of basic rights, it seems to be a matter that would be for the benefit of the entire state, and that the party involved at least would know why the door has been closed to him. For that reason I urge you to vote in favor of the Donnelly amendment.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Taylor, Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I looked for my copy of the document that Mr. Prettie was using, and he went through the figures rather rapidly. I wonder if I could ask, through the Chair, of Mr. Prettie if his statistics show what amount of the 349 not granted were criminal cases?

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: Yes, they do, Mr. Ford. The number of leaves to appeal in criminal cases not granted was 72. I might add that many of these, in my experience, come up on a writ of habeas corpus, and of 42 such applications, 37 were denied.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: So that we would have 72 plus 37 denials in criminal matters, is that correct?

MR. PRETTIE: That would be what the appendix to this pamphlet indicates.

MR. FORD: So we would have 109 cases included in your statistics that, if we have an intermediate court of appeals, will probably not find their way to the supreme court as window matters, but will go directly to the appellate court as a matter of right, is that right?

MR. PRETTIE: Hopefully that is true, although if Mr. Garry Brown's statement that an appeal is an appeal contemplates that you get into the supreme court as a right, they may, many of them, find their way there, too.

MR. FORD: I am going on the presumption that we are talking here in terms of the intent of the committee up until this point. Wasn't this their intentions, Mr. Prettie, in discussing the court, that by granting an automatic right to appeal in criminal matters, that those matters would go, in the first instance, directly to the intermediate appellate court?

MR. PRETTIE: In the first instance, yes.

MR. FORD: Thank you. Now, we shouldn't be too alarmed with these figures, because as I indicated a little while ago I agree with Dr. Nord that there is never an excuse for the courts to give less than full justice to the citizen because they are too busy. This would be an intolerable concept if we were to for one instant give in to it, and any argument that seeks to persuade you by saying that we should give people anything less than the full measure of their day in court because we might be burdening the court with a little more work than they would like to have seems to me to have no place in the consideration of the rights of people in a democracy.

Now, the intermediate court of appeals is going to be discussed later, but you must realize that when we are talking about this matter we are talking on the assumption that an intermediate court of appeals will be established, and on the assumption that it will follow pretty much the pattern of similar courts in other states, and somewhat the pattern of the federal system.

For example, our supreme court now has a great deal of its time taken up with appeals in negligence cases arising out of automobile accidents primarily. They are not cases of prime importance to anybody except the litigants involved. They are not making new law. They are up there on technical questions. They are up there on questions of the amount of damages, the measure of damages, the method used in measuring the damages, and as you review these advance sheets you read the same old stuff over and over and over again, because the supreme court is being asked to make the same decision, and the reason is that once you are involved in a civil case that involves more than $500, it doesn't matter how good your reason is for appealing, the supreme court has to listen to you, and when it denies your appeal it has to give you a reason, and it has to, in fact, print it in the books for all time to come.

Now, this kind of case very likely will not go to the supreme court in the first instance, and will meet its demise in the form of a formal decision at the appellate court level. So we are going to take this load off of the supreme court's shoulders.

Another series of cases that very recently have started to go up in larger numbers than they have been for some time are divorce cases, and again they are up there on questions of custody, questions of possible abuse of the judge's discretion — many things that are of importance and are not making rules that are to be followed by people throughout the state, but merely are important for that one case. And it would be our fond hope that cases that are not of general statewide concern, and cases that are not calculated to establish new principles of law or clarify otherwise hazy principles of law will not go beyond the appellate court level, and that in order to get beyond the appellate court level they would require something more than something in the nature of the application for leave, and that these would be very limited in their number.

I don't think if you consider from this point of view that the argument that we might be burdening the court over there by asking them to state the reasons why they do what they do has much merit.

I urge the support of the amendment proposed by Judge Leibrand, Mr. McAllister and Miss Donnelly.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Mahinske. The Chair will remind the delegates that the subject under discussion is the Donnelly amendment. The Chair recognizes that relevant to that amendment are many other concerns, but will, nevertheless, ask respectfully that the delegates confine themselves as closely as possible to the subject under discussion. Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I rise a second time on the proposed amendment here in view of the statistics that have been thrown out to us by Mr. Prettie. I am a little bit familiar with the report Mr. Prettie cites. There are 3 points that I would like to bring out that come to mind. One, the criminal matters that are so inadequately prepared, and so forth, that are denied, are, I would say, 98 per cent coming out of Cooper street down in Jackson and that is where the boys are all practicing law. This is why they are not too adequately prepared. Two, you notice that these are 1956 figures that Mr. Prettie has cited to us. There are 2 reasons for this, as far as I can see: the 1956 figures are the lowest work load figures that the supreme court has shown since 1929, and since they have reached that alltime low the supreme court has seen fit, for one reason or another, not to publish these figures anymore, and I would hesitate to think why, but I would assume that it is possibly because the figures are continually going down, and they would just rather not have these figures published. And this is something that is not mandatory on their part over there. And then, of course, we have all the arguments for the intermediate appellate court taking some of this proposed work load off of them. So, in view of these facts, I think that the statistics as presented should not — at least have not influenced my position in this matter and I still would rise in support of the amendment proposed.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. Chairman, I do believe we ought to be somewhat cautious here and move our remarks to inculcate a spirit of respect, and place the supreme court where it should be, on the apex of our system of jurisprudence, and be cautious in indicating that there might be some reason that might not meet with public approval regarding the information on statistics.

I would be quite charitable with regard to the motivation as to why or why not certain data may be available. I do think, however, that we ought to weigh with due care and caution the data that was given to us by Delegate Prettie, and I am certain, too, that the data there was accurate, but he referred to the large number of interlocutory matters.

This motion, as I understand it, this amendment before us, deals with "and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal," and not with interlocutory matters. It deals exclusively with reasons assigned for the denial of leave to appeal.

Now, with regard to the data involved in that matter, I went over to Mr. Winters, the clerk of the Michigan supreme court, and he sent a letter to me on supreme court stationery dated November 27, 1961. This was with regard to the question of a right of appeal on a criminal case that I was preparing a memorandum on for our committee on declaration of rights, and this is what he indicated with regard to the data for the last year that data were available:

In reply to your request of November 16, please be advised that during the period from November 1, 1960, to November 1, 1961, this court entered orders in 218 criminal cases. Of the 218 only 29 represented applications for leave to appeal granted. Of 39 petitions for writ of habeas corpus, 2 were granted. Of 30 petitions for writ of mandamus, none were granted.

During the same period the court entered orders in 153 applications for leave to appeal in civil cases. Of the 153, 58 were granted and 95 were denied. In addition, 21 petitions for extraordinary writs were filed involving civil cases, of which 6 were granted and 15 denied.

I hope this gives you the information you need in the form you can use.

Mr. Donald Winters.

So that the volume that we are talking about, assuming that we have an intermediate appellate court to which there would be a right of appeal in a criminal case, and which would take care of that part of the problem, is some 95 cases out of 153 where leave was denied in a civil case, and I think that is the volume that we are talking about.

I think, further, that the question which was raised by Mr. Kuhn with respect to writ of mandamus was covered in the first sentence of the section proposed by the committee "decisions of the supreme court including all decisions of prerogative writ shall be in writing," and so forth. The writ of mandamus is a prerogative writ. And it does not envision that there would be a decision. It does mean in terms of the work load of 1960-61, where there were 30 petitions for writ of mandamus and none were granted, in those 30 cases there would be a decision to be expected from the Michigan supreme court in accordance with the committee's recommendation. And rightfully so, particularly in view of the fact that with reference to writ of mandamus the supreme court has original jurisdiction.

So, then, I think in terms of the volume of work involved, it would not be so voluminous as to call into question the second reconsideration of this matter, and I think that the Donnelly amendment ought to be supported. But I would, before leaving, suggest this point, and that is that what is significant is not only that there would be reasons assigned for the denial of appeal—and this would help the litigant, and would be in the best interest of the public—but it would indicate again that there would be a full day in court in the sense that a full day in court includes the reasons for a denial of leave to appeal.

And basically we are all under the umbrella of the proposition that this is a government of laws and not of men. That means that decisions cannot be arbitrary; that they be based on some rational reasons, and that the reasons ought to be declared in writing. And under the concept, the high concept of the exercise of judicial power under a government of laws and not of men, we ought to ask the supreme court, with the respect to which we accord it, to assign to us a reason when the important right to appeal is denied; remembering, remembering that the right of appeal is not a part of due process. It is not a constitutional right. It is a matter of grace in some respects, except as the constitution herein provides. So I urge support for the Donnelly amendment.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Allegan, Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, in rising again in support of the Donnelly amendment, I am compelled to do so by the reason that our good friend, Ken Prettie from Hillsdale, gave us—the reason why we shouldn't go for the amendment—and the reason he gave was that it involved additional work to quite considerable extent. Well, what is this thing, Mr. Prettie, that we call justice? Is it something that we dole out to people when we are not very busy, or is it something that we give to them whether we are busy or whether we are not? This matter of research that you referred to: am I to believe that possibly the supreme court would take my matter under consideration and make a decision to deny the right to a review prior to the time that they made the research? Would they make that decision without going into the facts, completely researching it before they made that decision?

Now, I don't think the supreme court would, and so if they did make the research, I can see that a little extra work is required in writing down their reasons, or the results, or whatever they found out.

Again I am rising, Mr. Chairman, to try to help the lawyers out, believe me. This is with the best of intentions. I think we should heartily support the Donnelly amendment.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Grand Rapids, Mr. Tubbs.

MR. TUBBS: Mr. Chairman—thank you, Mr. Farnsworth, I am sure we need it—I am sure that all of the arguments pro and con on this thing far outstrip this necessity in this constitution.

But I am constrained to add just 1 or 2 things. I would like to ask one member of the sponsors of this amendment a question or two—perhaps Miss Donnelly—she seems to be one that is sponsoring it. I assume that this sentence applies only to application for leave to appeal; that the answer given by the court would be something like this, "Appeal denied. Reasons, none." Would that satisfy this amendment?

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Miss Donnelly, does the lady care to answer?

MISS DONNELLY: Mr. Tubbs, I suggest that you as a member of the bar are not serious in saying this.

MR. TUBBS: Let me ask you another question. I would like to ask a second question, Mr. Chairman, if Miss Donnelly would permit me. Now, this next opinion says "Appeal denied. Reasons, we do not like the brief filed for the appellant."

MISS DONNELLY: I like to use my first reasoning again. I don't believe they will do that, and I don't think you do, either.

MR. TUBBS: Third question: suppose the supreme court issues an opinion "Appeal denied. No reasons." Who and what will enforce the constitution?

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Does the lady care to answer, Miss Donnelly?

MISS DONNELLY: I think you know the answer, Mr. Tubbs. Nothing will. But if the supreme court will so violate that part of the constitution, then we have a very, very serious problem in this state.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Detroit, Mr. Madar. The Chair is sure, Mr. Madar, that you are impelled by the same motivations which brought Mr. Farnsworth to his feet.

MR. MADAR: Well, I can assure you, Mr. Chairman, that I believe that the laymen should say something this evening about this particular portion of the judicial proposal, and I might say that this is following along the lines of what I said before, that somewhere we ought to be able to find an attorney who got himself a good enough education in our colleges, our law schools, so that he would be able to write into our constitution something that would absolutely give us force, enforcing the legislature and the judges to do something about our constitution, and obey it. Now, I didn't get up to say just that. In fact, I hadn't intended to say that at all, but when the Chair made the facetious remark that he did, I thought he should be answered with something like that; as I understand he is also an attorney.

Fellow delegates, I don't find myself agreeing with Jim Farnsworth too often. However, I do know that Jim Farnsworth is a successful businessman, and I have been associated with him in the local government committee, and he has been doing a fine job, and I feel that we ought to take into consideration something here besides law.

The first night that I spent in Lansing, we were told that we should write a constitution that would even be understood by the supreme court judges. You know, I sometimes think that when it costs a man $500 to $800 to try to get an appeal, this should be understood and understandable to any judge that that is quite expensive, and that the man who is asking the attorney to get him an appeal is spending an enormous amount of money that 10 chances to 1 he can't afford, and he ought to get something more than just a plain, "denied".

I sat here listening to Mr. Prettie talk about a work load. Work load. Well, I have watched judges work in circuit courts, recorder's court, common pleas court, and, if you please, I set on more than one occasion in Lansing, Michigan, listening to the supreme court justices, and if you call this work, and if you think that this is putting in a lot of time for the money that they get, I am going to tell you right now that we here should get 75,000 bucks a year.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The Chair is sure that we all agree with you, Mr. Madar, but hopes you will confine yourself a little more closely to the point.

MR. MADAR: I am confining myself to the point, in that I am trying to stress the reasons why they ought to be able to give us more than just a "denied", and I certainly am going to vote for the amendment.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Garry Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, it seems to me that too often when we are reviewing a proposal such as this one, that we lose the forest for the trees. In this regard I think that much of the criticism to the Donnelly amendment—and I am speaking in behalf of it as I shall later explain—comes from the fact that this is writing into the constitution many of those things which can better be left to either court rule or legislative act.

We set forth in the section that the facts and reasons for each decision shall be given. When we say decisions of the supreme court, and use practically the same wording that has been used in the past, we are expecting and, in effect, concurring in a similar interpretation of what the supreme court should do with respect to this decision. This would, of course, leave out any decision or the giving of any reason on any decision involving leave to appeal.

In Committee Proposal 92, which the committee has reported out—and which deals with the appellate court—in the very last section we say the jurisdiction of the court of appeals shall be prescribed by law, and then, of course, the practice and procedure shall be provided by court rule. Inasmuch as we do not know at this point what the jurisdiction—in fact we won't know in this convention if that proposal is passed — of the appellate court will be, how can we say with any degree of certainty what decisions should be reported, should be promulgated, and which one should bear facts and reasons in support thereof?

In answer to Mr. Prettie, I am not quite sure what he meant when he said that my statement indicated that an appeal is an appeal. I know that I have been familiar with many briefs that have been filed in connection with leave to appeal which were 30 pages in length. I think this is adequate to prompt a decision from the court that would at least set forth in a paragraph or so its reasons. I think that it is justified, and it should be given.

I don't think that the Donnelly amendment, as such, is the answer to this problem. I certainly would support it, however, and do support it, if we are going to leave the committee proposal as it presently stands. But it occurs to me that it would be better to set forth in this section, rather than specifying that facts and reasons shall be stated, but rather some language to this effect should be stated: that all decisions of the supreme court shall be reported and promulgated as provided by law.

We are unable at this point to determine what the jurisdiction of the supreme court shall be, what matters will be subject to leave to appeal. All of Mr. Prettie's statistics have no bearing insofar as this section is concerned until we know what that jurisdiction shall be. We certainly thought it would be original jurisdiction in the supreme court, and that there would be matters that can only get to the supreme court by virtue of leave from the intermediate appellate court.

I want to say, if there is not to be any general language which will permit these things to be worked out by the legislature insofar as reporting and promulgating of decisions are concerned, we should support the Donnelly amendment.

As I say, I think that it would be better to use general language in this section. It is more constitutional in nature, and would be more fitting in view of the fact that we do not know what will be the jurisdiction and the ramifications of an appellate court in this field.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: In response to numerous requests, the Chair would advise that he has 2 speakers seeking recognition. The first is Mr. Gover.

MR. GOVER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, as a layman like Mr. Farnsworth and Art Madar, it seems to us nonattorneys that we are like a jury hearing both the pros and cons of this case, of this amendment. I am inclined to believe that this is good for the small people of Michigan who should have a right to know the reasons for denial. I believe we should support this amendment.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I think a word should be said in behalf of the judiciary committee. I think Dr. Nord put his finger on part of the problem that may be had in understanding what is involved when he said that the petition for leave to appeal is a peculiar thing. This is a request for the laymen. This is a request asking permission for a fullblown argument and submission of briefs. The judiciary committee, in considering this matter — and several hours ago I think our chairman of our committee touched upon it — consideration of this matter involved the fact that we will have an appellate court.

Delegate King asked a question that I don't believe was answered; as to what can be expected of the appellate court with respect to a decision, and he asked whether or not we had looked into other states. Now, the state of New York has such an appellate division that renders decisions in writing, and these are digested in a set of books called the New York Supplement. I have used, on occasion, opinions of that court in argument.

Now, our anticipation, the anticipation of the judiciary committee was, I think, that where a petition for leave to appeal was filed and denied, that the supreme court, in effect, would be affirming the decision of the appellate court. The consideration was that, in my mind as a member of the committee, you would have on file a written opinion of the appellate court for reference.

If the court, the supreme court, is required to write a fullblown opinion in response to a petition for leave to appeal, you have, in effect, destroyed the whole nature of a leave to appeal. This isn't a leave to appeal anymore. This is an appeal. I am not certain that that is what the amendment contemplates, and I have been quiet here, but I would like to ask a member of the committee, or a member of the minority offering this amendment — and, as I read it, they do not anticipate a fullblown opinion. Ann, would you care to answer? The way I read this, all you ask for is reason for denial; you do not require a concise statement of the facts, is that right?

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. Higgs yields to Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I believe that is what the language says.

MR. HIGGS: I am asking what your intention is. I am also on style and drafting. We may have to face this. Do you anticipate a concise statement of facts?

MISS DONNELLY: On their reasons for denial of leave?

MR. HIGGS: Yes.

MISS DONNELLY: I would say that if the supreme court decided that it wished to give a concise statement of facts and say "This is ridiculous," they could, in effect, because of these facts it is obvious why we have done it.

I am not attempting to say that they must state everything and make as complete a decision as they would if they were granting the leave, although I think there is good argument why they should. At this moment I am not asking that much, although I think it is a worthwhile thought.

MR. HIGGS: You kind of left me. I would like to say this: if what is contemplated is simply a statement of a very concise reason without going into the facts, I think it is not such a bad idea. But if the supreme court must give a concise statement of facts as well as reasons, this they should not do on a matter of this kind without a fullblown hearing. Because if they do do it, then they are laying down precedent type of law that will be controlling throughout the state of Michigan, and this should not be done without a fullblown hearing, the arguments, the briefs, the whole matter. And if this is what you contemplate, then what you are doing is destroying this particular avenue of appeal, the leave to appeal.

MISS DONNELLY: I don't know if you are asking me a question or making a speech still.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. Higgs, were you asking a question or making a speech?

MR. HIGGS: I had asked the question, and I wasn't sure that the answer was clear, and if Delegate Donnelly would like to clarify that, then I would like to have it.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. Higgs yields to Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: If I remember correctly, the amendment says "reasons for each denial of leave to appeal." Now, then, let's go a step further. I am not attempting, and I don't think anybody is attempting in this, to say that the supreme court may not make a comment on the facts. I think if the supreme court, in its discretion and in its decision and determination, feels that it is pertinent, it could certainly do so. To say that they can't is not what I am trying to do. I am just saying that they should give a reason for each denial of leave to appeal. Now, how they want to give their reasoning I would leave within their discretion.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I want to assure you this is the last time I will appear before you on this matter. When you ask the supreme court for relief, you expect the utmost consideration and fairness. The justices of this court are the supreme justices of the state of Michigan. They are supposed to be the cream of the legal profession.

Work volume is not a factor. This is not a factor in justice. This is the poorest argument advanced so far for the defeat of our amendment. No expense is spared to convict an individual and give him a red carpet prosecution. Oftentimes this alleged violator is acquitted. The time spent in telling a man convicted of murder, bank robbery, embezzlement, or any other serious crime, the reasons why his appeal has been denied takes only an hour or two, and is the least that any court can do for a man under those circumstances.

I yield to Leslie W. Richards.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. McAllister yields to Mr. Richards.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, some 5 or 6 hours ago I was no authority at all on this particular subject. At the present time I feel quite an authority, and I might add at this time, as Art Madar referred to Jim Farnsworth, it isn't always he agrees with Jim; and Art, I am quite pleased to say I agree with you on the particular position you took and I rise to support the amendment and I realize, at least my interpretation of the tremendous cost that is involved for an individual to get his case as far as the supreme court, and with such cost certainly he should have a right of explanation why it was denied. And I believe all the lawyers here will agree with me that this is a tremendous cost, because, after all, I believe they would be a part of the cost rising to that height.

Up until now, folks, I had strenuously opposed the gag rule. It has been discussed a number of times, and I have really opposed it. But I have felt up to the present time if the lay people here in the group would go along with me probably this would be the right time to place the gag rule into effect, and while we are on the judicial committee I would be inclined to go along and vote with it.

I certainly support this for one other reason: I supported Tom McAllister on the last several amendments and lost my vote. I would like to again be on the winning side, and last but not least, Tom asked in his behalf if I would ask for a division vote when we are ready to vote.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Richards requests a division. Is the demand for a division supported?

It is supported. The gentleman from Pontiac, Mr. King.

MR. KING: I take it when the division is requested that means I should be very brief. I am still very much concerned about what we are doing here, Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the committee. The right to appeal is not a right at all. If you want to write in that in every case there shall be a right to appeal, then perhaps that is what we ought to do, if that is the sentiment of this committee. But, frankly, I am concerned about this short statement giving reasons why the right of appeal is denied or why the leave to appeal is denied. This is where the danger lies. This will become precedent making law.

I think some of us forget how the judicial system in this country operates. You can't have a brief, concise statement as to why the court decided not to hear your case. Either they don't hear it or they do hear it. If they hear it, they have got to hear it completely, and they have got to outline their reasons completely. If I personally were going up to the supreme court asking leave to appeal, if I were denied, naturally, I would want to know why, I would love to know why, and I would like to have them send me a dozen long stem roses when they sent the reason back, too. Dean Doty says that is a good point. (laughter)

I have a friend who is an author, and he wrote a story, and he sent it to a publisher, and all he got back was a rejection slip. Now, naturally he would like to have, I suppose, a book review instead of a rejection slip, and I don't blame him. But the supreme court is not a counselling service, nor is it a post-graduate school for attorneys.

We are missing the whole point here. The supreme court should not find itself in the position of writing a 3 line or 4 line reason why it has turned down the appeal. I am not really concerned about the work load. I am concerned about the American system of jurisprudence, and that is what we are tampering with at this point. And I don't think there is a jurisdiction in the United States of America which has any set rule in its constitution, and, frankly, I think that if this committee is prepared to adopt this amendment, as apparently they are, I think it may be well to move to give the committee on judicial branch an extra 24 hours to see if perhaps there are some other jurisdictions which have taken this rather drastic step.

This is not a light matter. I just want to impress that upon you, ladies and gentlemen. This is a very serious step that we are contemplating.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The gentleman from Ypsilanti, Mr. Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: I think Mr. King has given the answer that I was trying to get. If the supreme court should not be required to give only a 3 or 4 line opinion, if that is wrong, certainly it is much "wronger" to give one word "denied."

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The question is on the amendment offered by Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Leibrand and McAllister. The Chair, unfortunately, has kept no record of those who have spoken for and those who have spoken against, and therefore it will be necessary to call for the vote, and the secretary will read the amendment. Mr. Wanger now desires recognition.

MR. WANGER: I want to make one comment. It seems to me that most of the people supporting this amendment all think that every case that is coming up will be a federal case; that the circuit court is not good enough, no, sir, and the court of appeals is not good enough, either. By golly, if I got a case going up, it's got to go to the supreme court. Whether I've a right to appeal or not, I've got a right to have the supreme court set out some reasons why my case, my client's case, my uncle or my brother's case shouldn't get up there and have a full hearing.

The only trouble with that is that if we go on that theory, why should we have any other court except the supreme court? If you want your reasons put out in writing, let's remember that your reasons are no good unless those reasons are based on a thorough understanding of the case, and if you want those kinds of reasons, then you are going to have to expect the supreme court to spend the time and research necessary to get those good reasons all in form.

And if you don't, why those reasons are not worth any more than any other thumbnail sketch or slipshod reason or excuse. No, the reason why our court system is divided is because we found out that the work load has to be adjusted, and that everybody's case isn't worth taking up to the supreme court.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Danhof, do you desire recognition?

MR. DANHOF: Only, Mr. Chairman, to perhaps wind this up and try to get back and get a vote so we can go on to the next section, which would, I am sure, promote, being new, much more discussion than something which we have had since 1908.

If the provision as amended — if the amendment is adopted, then this committee should realize what they are indirectly doing, what they are doing in making an appeal as a matter of right in every single case. Mr. King is completely correct. This, then, in effect, would be undoing what we had tried to do by setting up a court of appeals.

Mr. Farnsworth talked about the expense, and 2 days ago last Thursday we voted to have a court of appeals. This is in Committee Proposal 90. If you add this amendment, all you are doing is adding on the expense of going through another layer of courts, and you might just as well take out the court of appeals. If you are going to require the supreme court to write a decision every time it denies a leave, you might as well go there in the first place, and you might as well save your client the cost of the court of appeals, and this is where the real savings will come, Mr. Farnsworth.

Maybe Mr. Wanger had a point too in doing away with the circuit court. But the idea that the committee had in making a court of appeals was to make the cost less and not greater, and by adopting the amendment, both you and Mr. Richards should realize that if you approve a court of appeals, as you did, you then will be adding to the cost, because the cost will come not in going to the supreme court but in going to the court of appeals where you will be forced to go in between. The idea that the committee had was that when you file your petition for leave to appeal, if you are going to force reasons, you are going to get these curbstone opinions, which is just about what they are going to be, because the court will not have considered the case fully, will not have had all of the briefs, and when they look at a leave it is necessarily considerably less than a full hearing, a full brief and a full record, and they have to determine whether or not the case is of such merit or such magnitude or such importance that it should go up.

And what Mr. King is stating is absolutely correct. We are putting here a strangle hold upon the supreme court. The 1908 article was known as a very forward looking article because of the broad and very few restrictions placed upon the court. I am beginning to think that the article of 1962 will nowhere approach in relative importance what they did in 1908. Michigan has been copied by these other states very recently. What we do now will certainly put a strangle hold thereon.

I think we are letting the personal experiences of too many lawyers enter into the consideration of what is a good system. The fact that one of us might have had a case one time where we didn't like what the court said or how it was said to us should be thrown out. Those that try to try their personal matters have no place in this particular convention, and I submit that over the last 2 days this is what we have been doing.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Dr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. Chairman, I believe that we are again getting overconcerned about terrible things that are bound to happen if we do this. The supreme court is not nutty. They can handle this problem with no difficulty. Of course if they were nutty, they would have a problem. But the point is this, all they need to do is adopt some rule. They would have to adopt some rules. That's true. They can't let everyone appeal from the justice of the peace court and all the way up just automatically and say that he has an opportunity to file a leave to appeal.

No doubt—I don't have the slightest doubt in my mind that they will do something like the United States supreme court. They will adopt rules stating under what circumstances there can be any review whatever, any review whatever, from the appellate court. They will state what those circumstances are, and if you don't fit within those circumstances you can never even file the application, or, if you do, it will be destroyed. It won't be even returned to you. Or if it is returned, it will be returned with one word, "not within rule 57" or some such thing.

Now another misapprehension is that the supreme court is going to give a decision on the merits in one paragraph. They would have to be absolutely asinine to do that. They will not give a decision on the merits for the reason it hasn't got to the merits yet. All they will do is decide whether they are going to hear the case. That is the only decision they will make. For example, the reason they will give will not be that your case doesn't appear to us to be just or right, or something like that, but what they will say will be something, for example, like this: the legal point involved according to the briefs has already been settled in 2 or 3 or however many different divisions of our appellate court there are, and it's uniform, and since it is uniform there is no reason for us to reconsider it.

On the other hand, if it had been nonuniform they would have listened to it. They may give that as a reason, that the rule is uniform, or they may say there is no jurisdiction to hear this appeal, and that is why they are not hearing it. Or they may say there is no rule supporting a view of any type in such a case. Or they may say the only thing that has been raised is a question of fact, and they may say on that basis they don't intend to go into it because it has already been gone into twice. They will give some reason of that type, and then you will know what was their reason for not hearing the case. You will not know what they would have done if they had heard the case.

So let's not get nervous that everyone will be able to appeal to the supreme court. They will not. Or that every time a motion is filed for a leave to appeal there will be an absolute appeal as a right. There will not. Or let's not get nervous that we will be getting decisions which are thumbnail descriptions or off the cuff opinions. We will not. All we will be getting is possibly a sentence or 2 or 3 stating one of these grounds or some such grounds, and then you will know exactly what you did wrong, and you will know better next time.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. Garry Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I shall be very brief, and hope that the others will be likewise. I would only direct the committee's attention to section 4 of this white sheet which I think is section 3, which we dealt with on Thursday and Friday, and in that, of course, it says, "The supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction as provided by supreme court rule." Now, this only tends to supplement what Dr. Nord has said; that in these cases in connection with appellate review, that the court can limit those cases that will be coming to it purely and absolutely, and that there will be no application for leave to appeal in many matters, and that those matters that do come under the gray area, so to speak, between those which are appeals as a matter of right and those which cannot be appealed, those which have to be subject to a leave to appeal, will certainly be limited so the court can handle the matter adequately and give the reasons for its decision.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I feel impelled to rise to my feet to make a long discussion on this subject. I think we are getting very repetitious, and my recommendation from my legal training is 3 words: let us vote.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: The question is on the amendment to section e offered by Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Leibbrand and McAllister, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment is as follows:

1. Amend page 2, line 11, after "decision" by inserting "and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal".

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. For what purpose does the gentleman rise, Mr. Walker?

MR. WALKER: I believe a division was asked for and seconded.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: That is correct, and that is why the people are voting aye and voting no on the machine. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the amendment, the yeas are 78; the nays are 47.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: The amendment is adopted. Are there further amendments to section e?

SECRETARY CHASE: None on file.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: If not, it will pass.

Section e, as amended, is passed and the secretary will read section f.

SECRETARY CHASE: Section f:

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: For an explanation on section f the Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee, Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Chairman, I should like at this time to yield to the vice chairman of the committee for the explanation of this section, Mr. Ford.

CHAIRMAN VANDUSEN: Mr. Danhof yields to Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: The chairman of the committee in his infinite wisdom relegated to me the truly noncontroversial section of the judiciary article.

This is somewhat new. The committee rationale is on page 466 of the journal. I might say that we were out of Journal 71 for some time, and there are copies available now. For some reason we had a run on them, but there are now copies available that might be handy to you for the balance of the discussion of the whole judiciary article. I will read first what the committee had to say:

This is a new section, replacing and simplifying section 6, article VII of the Constitution of 1908. It extends the appointive power of the supreme court and its supervising control to its entire staff, instead of limiting it to

Sec. c. The jurisdiction of the court of appeals shall be prescribed by law and the practice and procedure therein shall be as provided by supreme court rule.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 91, A proposal pertaining to the supreme court. The committee of the whole reports the proposal back to the convention with several amendments thereto, recommending that the amendments be agreed to and the proposal as thus amended be adopted.

[Following are the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole:

1. Amend page 1, line 6, after "Sec. a.", by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "The supreme court shall consist of 9 justices to be elected on a nonpartisan statewide basis. The term of office shall be for 8 years and not more than 3 terms of office shall expire at the same time. Each political party at party convention may nominate 1 candidate for election for each position to be filled. Any incumbent justice whose term is to expire may become a candidate for reelection by filing an affidavit of candidacy, in the form and manner as prescribed by law, not less than 180 days prior to the expiration of his term. Any person otherwise qualified to be a supreme court justice may become a candidate for election upon filing a nominating petition, in the form and manner prescribed by law, signed by qualified electors of this state in a number equal to 3 per cent of the total vote cast for the office of governor at the last previous election."
2. Amend page 1, line 14, after "assistants" by inserting "of the supreme court".
3. Amend page 1, line 16, after "shall" by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "perform such administrative duties as may be assigned by the court."
4. Amend page 2, line 3, after "rule" by changing the period to a comma and inserting "it being provided that the supreme court shall not have the power to remove a judge."
5. Amend page 2, line 11, after "decision" by inserting "and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal".
6. Amend page 2, line 15, after "control of" by inserting "the preparation of its budget recommendations and".
7. Amend page 2, line 21, after "fund.", by striking out "No justice of the supreme court" and inserting "Neither the supreme court nor any justice thereof".
8. Amend page 2, line 25, by striking out all of section g.]

The first amendment is the amendment offered by Mr. Danhof:

[The amendment was read by the secretary. For text, see above.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Danhof. Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I would like to move that this question be divided, and that section a and section g each be voted on separately.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Boothby, the Chair is informed that's going to be done anyway the way they are being read to the convention. The question is on the Danhof amendment.

DELEGATES: Division.

PRESIDENT NISBET: A division has been asked for. Is the demand seconded? There is a sufficient number up. Those in favor of the Danhof amendment—Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. President, I believe that I must rise to oppose the Danhof amendment. I believe that what has happened is just what I spoke to last night. I believe if we adopt this amendment that we really will have something to explain to our constituents.

Prior to the convening of this convention I'm sure each one of us was aware of the criticism that was directed toward the present method of selection of the supreme court. Every organization, every group, the press, practically unanimously, ridiculed the fiction of maintaining a partisan nomination and a nonpartisan election of supreme court justices. All of the argument that we heard from any of the organizations particularly interested in the convening of this convention was directed to this matter. So we maintain the partisan nomination of supreme court justices. All of the argument that we heard directed here on the floor to the statewide campaign that a supreme court justice must make, the expensive campaign, the obligation that that candidate may incur which may affect his judicial decisions, because of the necessity of getting support from organized groups in order to hope to be elected, apparently is to no avail. We maintain a statewide nonpartisan election of justices.

We have added a few interesting complications. We now would permit the incumbent justice, regardless of what his politics might be or how he was originally elected, to nominate himself; and he would bear the designation on the ballot of supreme court justice. Both parties could then nominate another candidate—and this is not at all inconceivable, contrary to what Mr. Danhof says. I can think of one instance right now where it could happen. We would have at least 3 candidates then—not for nomination, but for election. In addition to that, any lawyer that might want to brag at some time that he was a candidate for supreme court justice could arrange to nominate himself by circulating petitions. The vote that the people of the state would have then on the election of this justice would be 1 vote only, the final election. If we had more than 2 candidates, a minority of the people of the state would elect the supreme court justice. That minority could in some instances be as low as 25 per cent of the people of the state who would elect the justice.

Now, what sort of effect would that have upon the incumbent justice? His party, by threatening to withhold the party nomination, could certainly affect his decisions while he was on the bench. It would be a most effective threat.

If we aren't going to pay any attention to the public opinion that has been expressed upon this question, I would direct the attention of every delegate to a preconvention poll that each one of you filled out and sent back in. At least, a majority of you did so. In that, by a great majority, these same criticisms were voiced by you as individual delegates. So now are we going to reverse our own thinking, even if we pay no attention to public opinion?

If you cannot buy this present amendment, if you do not believe that this is the proper method of selection of supreme court justices, regardless of what plan you might favor, you would in all conscience be compelled to vote against concurrence in this amendment. For if you concur in this amendment, you have locked it in so far as this reading is concerned and the matter will be referred to style and drafting. If you are not convinced then that this is the best method of selecting supreme court justices, I strongly urge you vote no on concurrence with this amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. President, members of the convention, we are asked here to vote against what the committee adopted, but we are not given something better to put in its place. It seems apparent that this is designed to get us back by non-concurrence with the amendments of the committee of the whole to the district plan. I urge you to vote for the committee of the whole's amendment, and I demand the yeas and nays.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The yeas and nays are demanded. Is the demand seconded? There is a sufficient number up. Judge Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. If we do not concur in the recommendation of the committee of the whole by voting nay, then as I understand it we are left with section a of the original committee report, is that correct?

PRESIDENT NISBET: That is correct. Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. President, I would merely join the others that have spoken and urge nonconcurrence in the committee report and a nay vote on this proposition.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. President, members of the convention, I think again the issue is squarely before us. Mr. Wanger has stated it very succinctly, very quickly, and so will I. I am not sure that the amendment we adopted in the committee of the whole is the ultimate answer. But a vote of nonconcurrence will in effect leave you basically with nothing, unless you go back to the district plan in section g. We have heard all of the arguments pro and con for not 1 day, but at least 4. We know everything about all plans—appointive, elected, by any means or methods whatsoever. I would urge that we vote concurrence in the report of the committee of the whole.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Young.

MR. YOUNG: I have a point of parliamentary inquiry. Judge Leibrand says that a vote nay on the present question would take us back to section a. I would like to know if section a as proposed by the committee is in fact the district plan.

DELEGATES: No. No.

MR. YOUNG: Well, what is it?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Section a is Committee Proposal 91, Mr. Young. The Chair recognizes Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I would urge a no vote, for about the same reason as Delegate Wanger urged a yes vote. That is, he said if we throw this out we are right back to what the committee reported, which I think is where the majority of us want to be. Because if we have section a, then we set the stage for section g, which is the district plan. Now, on every vote that has been taken there have been more of us that wanted the district plan—and when I say “us,” I say that advisedly, reading between the lines—than on any other plan that has been offered. And yet we have come short of getting it into actual operation. I think the very simple thing now is to vote no on the amendments that were made to section a and to section g, and then we will have what the majority of us have wanted, which is the district plan. I certainly would urge that we vote no on the pending amendment to section a.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, members of the convention, I have been brought somewhat reluctantly around to the position where it would leave no doubt in anyone's mind. I would urge wholeheartedly that we vote in favor of the committee of the whole's recommendation, affirming its action. I have already stated my fears and doubt before, but I feel that this is the best alternative that has been offered and the best way to resolve the problem.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. President, 2 parliamentary inquiries. One, section a provides simply for a supreme court. Is that correct? A vote of nonconcurrence would leave section a as reported by the committee intact?

PRESIDENT NISBET: That is correct.

MR. HABERMEHL: The second question, if this amendment is not concurred in, is the committee proposal subject to further amendments?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Surely.

MR. HABERMEHL: Then this could not possibly have the effect that Mr. Wanger said.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Wanger?

MR. WANGER: Mr. President, I don't wish to abuse the privilege of speaking before the convention, which is only once, so I will pass.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I would like to support and urge that all support the committee proposal, section a, as amended by Mr. Danhof, after many hours of great work. To say that we do not concur will leave section a as it is, and then will get us eventually to section g as it is, which again will put you back to the district plan. Now, the issue is: do you want the district plan, more or less? And section a as written by this compromise under Mr. Danhof's name, with the support of numerous people in helping him draft it, is the best compromise that this committee has been able to reach. I therefore urge that we support the committee of the whole, and I move the previous question.

MR. MAHINSKE: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President. PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: There has been much talk here that if there is a no vote adopted on the recommendations of the committee of the whole, we will be back to section a as submitted by the committee. I don't know that this is exactly true, because certain amendments were adopted to section a as supported by the committee, and then the Danhof amendment was adopted as a substitute for section a, as amended. Now, if the vote, in essence, is against the Danhof amendment here, are we going back to section a as submitted by the committee, or as amended as submitted by the committee?

PRESIDENT NISBET: We are going back to the proposed section a as submitted by the committee on the green sheet. The previous question has been demanded. Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Point of information, Mr. President. I am somewhat confused. Isn't it true, Mr. Secretary, that it was the Ford amendment, which we will get to eventually, that kicked out section g, and isn't there confusion that exists here at the moment, and there are people on this floor perhaps that think by nonconcurrence in the committee report they will automatically have the district plan back in?

SECRETARY CHASE: The situation, as the secretary understands it, at present is this. We are voting now only upon the question of concurring in the recommendation of the committee of the whole to adopt the amendment which was adopted in committee of the whole this morning by a vote of 82 to 46. The question on concurring in the recommendation of the committee of the whole as to section g will come up later.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The previous question has been demanded. Is that demand seconded? There is a sufficient number up. The question now is: shall the previous question be put? Those in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

The previous question is ordered. The question is now on the Danhof amendment. Those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote nay. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

SECRETARY CHASE: On the question of concurring in the amendment to section a, as recommended by the committee of the whole, the yeas are 72; the nays are 61.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is adopted. The next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The next amendment recommended by the committee of the whole:

2. Amend page 1, line 14, after "assistants" by inserting "of the supreme court"; so the language will there read, "The supreme court shall appoint an administrator of the courts and other judicial assistants of the supreme court as shall be deemed necessary...."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment as recommended by the committee of the whole. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. The next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The next amendment recommended by the committee of the whole:

3. Amend page 1, line 16, after "shall" by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "perform such administrative duties as may be assigned by the court."; so that the language will then read, "The administrator shall perform such administrative duties as may be assigned by the court."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the amendment as reported by the committee of the whole. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. The next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The next amendment:

4. Amend page 2, line 3, after "rule" by changing the period to a comma and inserting "it being provided that the supreme court shall not have the power to remove a judge."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the amendment. Mr. Everett.

MR. EVERETT: Mr. President, fellow delegates, I voted for this amendment in committee of the whole, and I intend to vote for it here. But at the time of the debate there were comments made by at least one of the proponents of the amendment which I think should not go unchallenged. If you will recall, we had before us a proposed amendment which said that the supreme court could not suspend or remove other judges. By amendment within committee of the whole, we struck out the word "suspend," which I think most of us recognize as an implication that the supreme court could suspend but could not remove. The comment was made to the effect that this meant that the supreme court could not conduct a hearing before arriving at this decision. Now, to me at least, there's nothing in this language which implies that there could not be a hearing. As a matter of fact, I would find it unthinkable that the supreme court would suspend a judge or advocate his removal without a hearing. I simply want the record to show that in supporting this amendment and voting for it, I do not do so for the reasons advanced by at least one of its sponsors.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the amendment. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no. The amendment is adopted. The next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The next amendment:

5. Amend page 2, line 11, after "decision" by inserting "and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal"; so that the language will there read:

Decisions of the supreme court, including all decisions on prerogative writs, shall be in writing and shall contain a concise statement of the facts and reasons for each decision and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the amendment. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no. The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: The next amendment:

6. Amend page 2, line 15, after "control of" by inserting "the preparation of its budget recommendations and"; so that the language will there read:

The supreme court may appoint and remove its staff and shall have general supervision of the staff of the court and control of the preparation of its budget recommendations and the expenditure of the funds appropriated for any purpose....

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the amendment. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: The next amendment:

7. Amend page 2, line 21, after "fund," by striking out "No justice of the supreme court" and inserting "Neither the supreme court nor any justice thereof"; so that that sentence will read, "Neither the supreme court nor any justice thereof shall exercise any other power of appointment to public office, except as otherwise provided herein."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the amendment. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no. The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: The next amendment:

8. Amend page 2, line 25, by striking out all of section g.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the amendment. Mr. Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: I feel that I cannot concur with the report of the committee of the whole, and accordingly I shall vote nay.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the amendment. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed, no.

MR. LEIBRAND: I would ask for a roll call vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: A roll call vote has been requested. Is the demand seconded? There is a sufficient number up. Those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. This is a roll call vote. Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. President, would you restate the question? This is somewhat confusing. I think it would be worthwhile if you would restate the question for the benefit of the delegates.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the amendment. Do you want the amendment read, Mr. King?

MR. KING: Just in capsule form. The amendment is to strike.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment as proposed by the committee of the whole is to strike out all of section g.

MR. BLEDSOE: Would you have it read, Mr. President?

MR. FARNSWORTH: Point of information, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, again I'm somewhat confused. We are being asked now to concur or not to concur with the committee report, which was the Ford amendment to strike out section g. Now, am I right in assuming that if we do not concur, we will then have a judicial article with 2 means of selecting a supreme court?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is that right, Mr. Chase?

SECRETARY CHASE: The convention has agreed, on a roll call vote, to the adoption of the amendment to section a which provides for the selection of justices; and presently the question is on concurring in the recommendation of the committee of the whole that section g be stricken from the proposal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

SECRETARY CHASE: On the question of agreeing to the recommendation of the committee of the whole to strike out section g, the yeas are 82; the nays are 50.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Leibrand and McAllister offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 2, line 3, in the amendment, after "remove" by inserting "or suspend".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The amendment is not adopted. The next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: That's all of the amendments on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: If there are no further amendments, Committee Proposal 91, as amended, is referred to the committee on style and drafting. (applause)

Following is Committee Proposal 91 as amended and referred to the committee on style and drafting:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. The supreme court shall consist of 9 justices to be elected on a nonpartisan statewide basis. The term of office shall be for 8 years and not more than 3 terms of office shall expire at the same time. Each political party at party convention may nominate 1 candidate for election for each position to be filled. Any incumbent justice whose term is to expire may become a candidate for reelection by filing an affidavit of candidacy, in the form and manner as prescribed by law, not less than 180 days prior to the expiration of his term. Any person otherwise qualified to be a supreme court justice may become a candidate for election upon filing a nominating petition, in the form and manner prescribed by law, signed by qualified electors of this state in a number equal to 3 per cent of the total vote cast for the office of governor at the last previous election.

Sec. b. One justice of the supreme court shall be selected by the court as its chief justice in the manner and for the term provided by the rules of the court. He shall perform such other duties as may be required by the court. The supreme court shall appoint an administrator of the courts and other judicial assistants of the supreme court as shall be deemed necessary to aid in the administration of the courts in the state. The administrator shall perform such administrative duties as may be assigned by the court.

Sec. c. The supreme court shall have: a general superintending control over all courts; power to issue, hear, and determine prerogative and remedial writs; appellate jurisdiction as provided by supreme court rule, it being provided that the supreme court shall not have the power to remove a judge.

Sec. d. The supreme court shall by general rules establish, modify, amend and simplify the practice and procedure in all courts in the state. The distinctions between law and equity proceeding shall, as far as practicable, be abolished. The office of master in chancery is prohibited.

Sec. e. Decisions of the supreme court, including all decisions on prerogative writs, shall be in writing and shall contain a concise statement of the facts and reasons for each decision and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal. When a judge dissents in whole or in part he shall give in writing the reasons for his dissent.

Sec. f. The supreme court may appoint and remove its staff and shall have general supervision of the staff of the court and control of the preparation of its budget recommendations and the expenditure of the funds appropriated for any purpose pertaining to the operation of the court or the performance of activities of its staff, except that the salaries of the justices of the supreme court shall be established by law. All fees, perquisites and income collected by the clerk shall be turned over by him to the state treasury and credited to the general fund. Neither the supreme court nor any justice thereof shall exercise any other power of appointment to public office, except as otherwise provided herein.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee of the whole, Mr. President, has also had under consideration Committee Proposal 96, A proposal pertaining to general and special provisions relative to the courts of the state. It has considered several amendments thereto, and has come to no final resolution thereon. This completes the report of the committee of the whole.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Will you state it.

MR. HOXIE: This is an Ode to the District Plan.

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest if you must, but never quit.

Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As every one of us sometimes learns,
And many a failure turns about
When you might have won had you stuck it out.
Don't give up though the pace seems slow,
You may succeed with another blow.

Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint, faltering man.
Often the straggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup.
And he learned too late when the night slipped down
How close he was to the golden crown.

A is for Adelaide,
The great crusader,
More crusades she enters
Than a gladiator.

D is for den mother,
From dawn to dusk,
Carrying the ball
For the rest of us.

E is for earnest,
The importance of being,
Which Adelaide shows
While others are fleeing.

L is for lioness,
Fierce in her den,
If they don't come to caucus
She'll swallow her men.

A is for affluence,
A schoolteacher's lot,
Earmark for highways
But for Adelaide not.

I is for irksome,
That Hale Brake is,
The more he "coverts"
The confuser she is.

D is for don't,
Don't e'er vote your conscience,
Vote just for "the package"
And all of that nonsense.

E is for energy,

And when it's all gone

She don't have the votes!
Happy birthday, Miss Hart!

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Turner.

MR. TURNER: Mr. President, I can't let that go by. (laughter)

I am not going to tell you how or when this came about Because she's not historical, of that there is no doubt.

When a lady makes the experience age of 28 or 9
It's birthdays not of record, and this I think is fine.

This lady that I speak of is not afraid of work.
She digs into the problem wherever it may lurk.

With many years at teaching school she proved to be a master.

She even took a reading course to get the meaning faster.
And now in the convention, she's the leader of the crew.

She gets them in a huddle and suggests what they should do.

She had a brood of 44 but since then it made a gain
Of 2 more members strong and true aboard the Demo train.

She has proved herself a worker and leader from the start.

So now I would like to say to her: happy birthday, Adelaide Hart.

(applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Miss Hart, you have the distinction of being twice welcomed on your birthday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals. We are considering Committee Proposal 91. The secretary will read the proposal.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 2, which was placed at the foot of the calendar, is Committee Proposal 91, A proposal pertaining to the supreme court. A substitute for sections 2, 4, 5, 6 and 7 of article VII.

Following is Committee Proposal 91 as reported by the committee on style and drafting and read by the secretary. (For full text as referred to said committee, see above, page 1620.):

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. President, members of the convention, the changes, as you note, made by the style and drafting committee in regard to the 6 sections of Committee Proposal 91 have been very minor. They relate solely to draftsmanship. There has been no change in the intent as passed by the committee of the whole and by this convention on first reading. I understand there are pending several amendments, particularly to section a. I would imagine that the debate on those amendments will explain and take care of everything that needs to be said. I would suggest that we proceed with the amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary will read the first amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Goebel, Mosier, Habermehl, Radka, Wood, Brake, Boothby, Gover, Kirk, Anspach, Turner, Leibrand, Pugsley, Dehnke, Hutchinson, Gadola, Finch, Shaffer, Shanahan, Erickson, Batchelor, Beaman, Mrs. Butler, Messrs. Farnsworth, Heideman, Stevens, Gust, L. W. Richards, Sleder, Haskill, Spittler, Perras, Rood, Stafseth, McAllister, Dell, Iverson, Blandford, Hubbs, Powell, White, Shackleton, Sharpe, Plank, Karn, Mrs. Koeze, Messrs. Knirk, Rush, Tweedie, Donald Doty, Figy, Page, Thomson, Howes, J. B. Richards, Hoxie, Mrs. Conklin, Messrs. Seyferth, Dean Doty and Sterrett offer the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 1, after "Sec. a.", by striking out the balance of the section and inserting "The supreme court shall consist of 7 justices, to be elected by the electors of the state. The term of office shall be 8 years. Not more than 2 terms of office shall expire at the same time.

Justices of the supreme court shall be nominated and elected at nonpartisan elections, from judicial districts, as provided by law. Such districts shall be as nearly equal in population as may be possible and shall follow the boundaries of judicial circuits. No judicial circuit entitled by reason of population to elect more than one justice shall be divided but all justices shall be elected at large from the judicial circuit.

Incumbent justices may secure their nomination by filing an affidavit of intention to be a candidate."

To this amendment, Mr. Sterrett offers the following amendment:

1. Amend the amendment, second paragraph, second sentence, after "be as" by striking out the balance of the paragraph and inserting "follows:

1. District 1 shall be the upper peninsula with one justice;

2. District 2 shall be the northern portion of the lower peninsula consisting of the counties north of a line drawn along the southern boundaries of Oceana, Newaygo, Mecosta, Isabella, Midland and Arenac counties with one justice;

3. District 3 shall be Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Monroe counties with 3 justices;

4. District 4 shall be the remaining counties of the state south of district 2 and west of district 3 with 2 justices."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment to the amendment. Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President and delegates, this amendment is not intended to create considerable debate because I'd like to proceed to this proposal as fast as we can. The only intention here is to try to develop some sort of supreme court plan that, possibly, all of us could agree upon. I, personally, have always been for the appointive plans but I really do feel that the voters are not familiar enough with these types of plans. It would take considerable education on our part. I would prefer to see the appointive plans.

I do like the present committee proposal. However, I understand from talking to many delegates that there is considerable support for a district plan. My idea with this district plan is to follow the present amendment which this amends, but to bring it as closely as possible to an at large situation as the present committee proposal for second reading shows. In dividing the state into the 4 districts, I worked with Dr. Combs and Mr. Bolton in the research department and we have tried to look at the population as fairly as possible.

The upper peninsula has approximately 4 per cent of the population for one district. The northern half of the lower peninsula has approximately 6 per cent of the population, for another district. Each of these 2 districts receive 1 justice of the supreme court. The third district, which would be Monroe, Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, would have approximately 47 per cent of the state's population and then the balance of the state would have approximately 43 per cent. District 3—Monroe, Wayne, Oakland and Macomb—would have 3 justices. District 4 would have 2 justices. These have been so divided that the districts are broad in scope and probably will not need changing for the next 30 years. At that time, there is nothing in this amendment nor in the initial amendment which would not permit the legislature to reapportion these districts if it is deemed necessary.

Again, I would like to repeat that this is not a district plan as we originally had presented to us where there were 8 districts, breaking it down into something similar to a beehive. Here we have made it as broad as possible to resemble that which it would be if the justices were elected at large in the state. At the same time, this will more or less guarantee that the upper peninsula will have 1 supreme court justice elected up there and also the populous urban counties of Monroe, Wayne, Oakland and Macomb will have 3 justices, which are more than any other individual district. Now, I'd like to explain just one thing. The reason why Monroe county was thrown into district 3 rather than Genesee county, is because if Genesee county is entirely included in this district, it would put it way over 50 per cent. By putting Monroe county in, it leaves it under 50 per cent and is more logical and reasonable for a district, and to have 3 justices as compared to the other districts in approximate proportion.

As I say, I do not intend to have this for considerable debate. I would prefer to see it considered. If somebody has objections, I would very sincerely like to hear the objections to this plan or this amendment and as soon as a few objections have been raised—I don't believe there will be any other speakers speaking on this. I did this alone, so to speak, for the convention's benefit to see how it would be accepted. I feel that it would be a good plan. I would like to urge a yes vote on the amendment. However, after a certain amount of debate, I would like to see us vote on this and get on to other matters.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, Mr. Sterrett says he would like to hear from anyone who does criticize the plan or his amendment or the other plan as suggested. So far as I'm concerned, I'm certainly happy to know that Wayne county would send someone up here that was going to take something away from them. Of course, that's what always happens when they send someone like Mr. Sterrett up here, who doesn't care whether he represents Wayne county or whether he represents the rural area. That just gives them that much more representation. So far as I'm concerned, the amendment certainly isn't right. We certainly aren't getting the number of justices we ought to get with this or with any other amendment they may bring up. Balkanizing this thing hasn't done anybody any good.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Not due to those remarks, but at this time, temporarily, I'd like to withdraw this amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment to the amendment is withdrawn. The question is on the amendment offered by Mr. Goebel and others. Mr. Goebel, do you care to speak to your amendment?

MR. GOEBEL: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I would like to take just a few moments to give you my idea about this amendment to Committee Proposal 91. I am not too happy, to be honest with you, with the provisions for electing the supreme court justices under Committee Proposal 91, which was approved in committee of the whole. If you will remember, there were about 3 ways that justices could be nominated for the supreme court. First, each political party at party to the people some power of veto and some small check on the supreme court rulemaking power, and I urge its adoption.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. President, I must respectfully disagree with my colleague from Muskegon. The sentence in section d is, verbatim, what we had in the Constitution of 1908. The only change made is the 2 words "of this" instead of "in the." Section 5 of article VII of the Constitution of 1908 states, "The supreme court shall by general rules establish, modify and amend the practice in such court and in all other courts of record, and simplify the same." This is lifted almost verbatim.

I wish to point out that while this may come from Alaska, that Alaska has an appointive court. It is an appointive procedure. Therefore, there is no responsibility to the people. We have provided for an elective court. I see no particular reason that we should deviate from the practice that has been in this state since 1908. And I think that in view of the fact that our court is responsible to the people, I would urge the rejection of this particular amendment. I see no reason for it. History has not proven that it is needed. I think that it would merely hamstring and would clutter up what is a division of power and what has historically been left to simplify and set forth the rules of practice and procedure that have been historically a court function. The legislature passes the substantive law. The courts provide the rules of procedure. To transcend the 2, I think would be to clutter up this constitution, and need has not been shown. I would urge the rejection of the amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. President, fellow delegates, I believe that the Hanna amendment is very well thought out indeed. No branch of our government should be left without some sort of check or balance upon it. And when we grant to the supreme court the right to establish, modify, amend and simplify the practice and procedure, we are granting rights that actually can affect the substance of people's legal rights. To require that these be—or at least to give the legislature the right to look over these rules as set up by the supreme court is simply a check upon the power of the court. I think it is in keeping with good governmental practice. I would urge your support and your vote for the amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Judge Leibrand.

MR. LEIBRAND: Mr. President and Delegates, I think there is a great deal of sense in what Delegate Hanna and Delegate Habermehl have said. I support the Hanna amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment offered by Mr. Hanna. Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I urge a no vote on this amendment. This is not a check or a balance. This is a device whereby the legislature, at any time it determined, by reason of something pending in one of the courts or if the supreme court itself wanted to, could suspend the rules of the game. Now, this is a lot different than the legislature passing an act for the purpose of creating or modifying substantive law. This would give the legislature the ability to step in in the middle of the ballgame and suspend the rules until they passed legislation or until something else happened.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

DELEGATES: Division.

PRESIDENT NISBET: A division has been requested. Is the demand seconded? Sufficient number up. Those in favor of the amendment will vote aye. Those opposed, nay. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Mr. Hanna, the yeas are 40; the nays are 80.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted. The question now is on Committee Proposal 91, as amended. Will the board be cleared, please. Will the delegates please clear the board. Those in favor of Committee Proposal 91 as amended will vote aye. Those opposed will vote nay. This is a record roll call vote. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

SECRETARY CHASE: On the passage of Committee Proposal 91, as amended, the yeas are 122; the nays are 8.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Committee Proposal 91, as amended, is passed and referred to the committee on style and drafting.

Following is Committee Proposal 91 as amended and rereferred to the committee on style and drafting:

Sec. a. The supreme court shall consist of 8 justices to be elected at nonpartisan elections as provided by law. A vacancy hereafter created as the result of the death, retirement or resignation of one incumbent justice shall not be filled. The term of office shall be for 8 years and not more than 3 terms of office shall expire at the same time. Nominations for justices of the supreme court shall be in the manner as provided by law, except any incumbent justice whose term is to expire may become a candidate for reelection by filing an affidavit of candidacy, in the form and manner prescribed by law, not less than 180 days prior to the expiration of his term.

Sec. b. One justice of the supreme court shall be selected by the court as its chief justice in the manner and for the term provided by the rules of the court. He shall perform other duties required by the court. The supreme court shall appoint an administrator of the courts and other assistants of the supreme court as shall be deemed necessary to aid in the administration of the courts of this state. The administrator shall perform administrative duties assigned by the court.

Sec. c. The supreme court shall have general superintending control over all courts; power to issue, hear, and determine prerogative and remedial writs; and appellate jurisdiction as provided by rules of the supreme court. The supreme court shall not have the power to remove a judge.

Sec. d. The supreme court shall by general rules establish, modify, amend and simplify the practice and procedure in all courts of this state. The distinctions between law and equity proceedings shall, as far as practicable, be abolished. The office of master in chancery is prohibited.

Sec. e. Decisions of the supreme court, including all decisions on prerogative writs, shall be in writing and shall contain a concise statement of the facts and reasons for each decision and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal. When a judge dissents in whole or in part he shall give in writing the reasons for his dissent.

Sec. f. The supreme court may appoint, may remove, and shall have general supervision of its staff. It shall have control of the preparation of its budget recommendations and the expenditure of the funds appropriated for any purpose pertaining to the operation of the court or the performance of activities of its staff except that the salaries of the justices shall be established by law. All fees and perquisites collected by the court staff shall be turned over to the state treasury and credited to the general fund.

PRESIDENT NISBET (continuing): Mr. Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. President, may I ask a question of Mr. Danhof so he can clarify the record regarding a proposal? Mr. Danhof, I believe you and several members of the convention have received letters from a judge of the common pleas court of Detroit with respect to a possible increase of their salaries. We know that the common pleas court in Detroit is a statutory court and no mention was made of it, although the proposed constitution specifically mentions the justices of the supreme court, judges of the court of appeals, circuit court judges, and probate judges. I wonder if, for the record, this can be clarified.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. Binkowski, in answer to your question, section g of Committee Proposal 96 covers the constitutional courts. If you will recall, during the debate on the miscellaneous section we removed a prohibition against the increase of salary of public officers. Therefore, the common pleas court, the recorders court and municipal court judges who previously were barred because of a general prohibition within the constitution, being statutory courts, there is nothing now to prohibit the legislature from enacting the identical provision for those statutory courts that we have enacted for the constitutional courts. I see no prohibition against allowing for the increase of salaries during the term of the judges of these statutory courts.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: All delegates are asked to check their mailboxes before they go to lunch.

Article IV

Legislative Branch

Sec. 1. The legislative power of the State of Michigan is vested in a senate and a house of representatives.

Sec. 2. The senate shall consist of 38 members[,] to be elected from single member districts at the same [time] ELECTION as the governor for [4] FOUR-year terms concurrent with the term of office of the governor.

In districting the state for the purpose of electing senators after the official publication of the total population count of each federal decennial census, each county shall be assigned an apportionment factor equal to the sum of its percentage of the state's population as shown by the last regular federal decennial census computed to the nearest [1/100] ONE-ONE HUNDREDTH of one percent multiplied by [4] FOUR and its percentage of the state's land area computed to the nearest [1/100] ONE-ONE HUNDREDTH of one percent.

In arranging the state into senatorial districts, the apportionment commission shall be governed by the following rules:

(1) Counties with 13 or more apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. After each such county has been allocated one senator, the remaining senators to which this class of counties [are] IS entitled shall be distributed among such counties by the method of equal proportions applied to the apportionment factors.

(2) Counties having less than 13 apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment FACTORS of the state computed to the nearest whole number. Such counties shall thereafter be arranged into senatorial districts that are compact, convenient, and contiguous by land, as rectangular in shape as possible, and having as nearly as possible 13 apportionment factors, but in no event less than 10 or more than 16. Insofar as possible, existing senatorial districts at the time of reapportionment shall not be altered unless there [shall be] IS a failure to comply with the above standards.

(3) Counties entitled to [2] TWO or more senate districts shall be [further sub]divided into single member districts. The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the county by the number of senators to which it is entitled. Each such district shall follow incorporated city or township boundary lines to the extent possible and shall be compact, contiguous, and as nearly uniform in shape as possible.

Sec. 3. The house of representatives shall consist of 110 members elected for [2] TWO-year terms from single member districts apportioned on a basis of population as [hereinafter] provided IN THIS ARTICLE. The districts shall consist of compact and convenient territory contiguous by land.

Each county which has a population of not less than [7/10] SEVEN-TENTHS of one percent of the population of the state shall constitute a separate representative area. Each county having less than [7/10] SEVEN-TENTHS of one percent of the population of the state shall be combined with another county or counties to form a representative area of not less than [7/10] SEVEN-

Explanation—Matter within [] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

TENTHS of one percent of the population of the state. Any county which is isolated under the initial allocation as [herein] provided IN THIS SECTION shall be joined with that contiguous representative area having the smallest percentage of the state's population. Each such representative area shall be entitled initially to one representative.

After the assignment of one representative to each of the representative areas, the remaining house seats shall be apportioned among the representative areas on the basis of population by the method of equal proportions.

Any county comprising a representative area entitled to [2] TWO or more representatives shall be divided into single member representative districts as follows:

(1) The population of [each] SUCH districtS shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the representative area by the number of representatives to which it is entitled.

(2) Such single member districts shall follow city and township boundaries where applicable and shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory as nearly square in shape as possible.

Any representative area consisting of more than one county, entitled to more than one representative, shall be divided into single member districts as equal as possible in population adhering to county lines.

Sec. 4. In counties having more than one representative or senatorial district, the territory in the same county annexed to or merged with a city between apportionments shall become a part of a contiguous representative or senatorial district in the city with which it is combined upon the effective date of the annexation or merger[.]. THE DISTRICTS WITH WHICH THE TERRITORY SHALL BE COMBINED SHALL BE [as] determined by ordinance of the city certified to the secretary of state.

[No legislator shall be deemed to have vacated his office by virtue of the above section.] NO SUCH CHANGE IN THE BOUNDARIES OF A REPRESENTATIVE OR SENATORIAL DISTRICT SHALL HAVE THE EFFECT OF REMOVING A LEGISLATOR FROM OFFICE DURING HIS TERM.

Sec. 5. ISLAND AREAS ARE CONSIDERED TO BE CONTIGUOUS BY LAND TO THE COUNTY OF WHICH THEY ARE A PART.

Sec. 6. A commission on legislative apportionment is hereby established consisting of [8] EIGHT persons, [4] FOUR of whom shall be selected by the state organizations of each of the [2] TWO political parties whose candidates for governor received the highest vote at the last general election AT WHICH A GOVERNOR WAS ELECTED preceding each apportionment. If a candidate for governor of a third political party has received at such election more than 25 percent of such gubernatorial vote, the commission shall consist of 12 members, [4] FOUR of whom shall be selected by the state organization of the third political party. One member of the commission shall be selected by each political party organization from each of the following [4] FOUR regions: (1) The upper peninsula; (2) The northern part of the lower peninsula, north of a line drawn along the northern boundaries of the counties of Bay, Midland, Isabella, Mecosta, Newaygo and Oceana; (3) Southwestern Michigan, those counties south of region (2) and west of a line drawn along the western boundaries of the counties of Bay, Saginaw, Shiawassee, Ingham, Jackson and Hillsdale; (4) Southeastern Michigan, the remaining counties of the state.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the amendment offered by Messrs. Allen, Austin and Brake, the yeas are 57; the nays are 68.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The amendment is not adopted. The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: We have no others on this section.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: There are no further amendments on the secretary's desk. The question is upon the passage of article VI. Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President and fellow delegates, in supporting this article it is my intention, and I trust the intention of the convention, that the change in the language in section 28 from "workmen's compensation commission" to "workmen's compensation proceedings" was not a matter of substance, not a material change. I make this comment for the record. I believe that the decision of the convention in acting upon the ruling which prevented Delegate Danhof from introducing his amendment to strike this proviso—I interpret this action of the convention as indicating an intention to support the committee on style and drafting in such a way as to determine that there was no change in substance or material change made when style and drafting inserted the word "proceedings" in place of the word "commission." With that construction and intention, I feel I can support this article. If this is not the intention of the convention on the part of other delegates, I would appreciate such delegates so stating.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, have you any speakers other than Mr. Ford seeking recognition?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Yes, I have one other.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I would move to limit debate on the article to 5 minutes.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: On the motion to limit debate upon the article to 5 minutes, all those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Debate is limited. The Chair next recognizes Mr. Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I decided to become a candidate for delegate to this convention because I was deeply concerned about the present inconsistent method of electing supreme court justices. When I campaigned I told my constituents that, among other things, I would work to make our courts truly nonpartisan at all levels. I did work hard and long to accomplish this result and many of you worked with me and I appreciate your support, but we failed to get enough votes to accomplish this, not by a vote of 2 to 1 or 3 to 1 but by a very narrow margin. Other equally sincere delegates to this convention, equally concerned with an honest court structure, came to this convention pledged to work for the adoption of the ABA plan for selecting our judges. They had committed themselves to this plan and gave not only of their time but of their substance to present the merits of this plan. They, too, I am sure, are disappointed.

We have a judicial article, unfortunately, that continues the unhappy influence of party politics at the highest echelon of our court structure, and many other batters are not fully satisfied with what we have done here. My personal batting average on my own promises to my constituents is probably not even half of 87.9 per cent, but that is beside the point.

I shall not urge a no vote on this article merely because my views did not prevail. I shall not return to my district and urge voters to reject this document because many of its provisions are not to their liking or to mine. I shall endeavor to explain that this is the product of the democratic process. It is the result of the working together of 144 honest and sincere women and men possessed of integrity and wisdom but also of diverse points of view. Long hours of debate on this floor have forged this document. It is not a result of any clandestine accommodations. I shall point out that our labors of 7½ months are typical of the inefficiency of our form of government but that this slow and tedious process and its sometimes imperfect results are at once the weakness and the strength of the best form of government the mind of man has yet developed.

In spite of personal frustration I shall vote to adopt this article. I urge the scores of delegates who share my views to do the same. I urge those who failed in their efforts to write the ABA plan into the judicial article to put aside their disappointment and vote for it. It is my hope that this greatly improved court structure for this state will be approved not by a vote of 3 to 1 but by a resounding and substantially unanimous vote. (applause)

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I appreciate Mr. Prettie's point of view. Although I haven't always agreed with him, I have enjoyed working with him on the judiciary committee and it is not easy for me to say what I am going to say now without sounding like I am being a dog in the manger but, believe me, in sincerity, this is not what I am trying to do and I am not trying to impose, at this point, my point of view on anyone else. I am trying to express my own point of view and the reason for voting the way I am going to vote.

As has been said before, by the chairman of our committee on this floor, the judiciary system in Michigan and its present status was not one of the compelling reasons for the calling of this convention. Our present judicial system is superior in all ways. It ranks in the view of people outside of the state amongst the top 3 states in the entire country inasmuch as we have a system that has been completely free from scandal and is as close to efficiency as you are ever going to get in a democratic system of courts.

I cannot support the article as we have now written it because I do not honestly believe that it is an improvement over the 1908 constitution, as amended. If we had truly made the kind of improvements that Mr. Prettie alludes to, I think it would be entirely a different thing. There are 2 or 3 things in the article that are new but they are not constitutional matters to begin with and they do not justify either the time spent by this convention nor do we face the prospect of losing them if this particular section is not incorporated into the new constitution to replace what we presently have. The outstanding example of that is the appellate —

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Time for debate has expired.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I would move to extend debate for an additional 3 minutes to permit Mr. Ford to complete his remarks.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Ford and Mr. Danhof both seek recognition.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I guess we had better make it 5 minutes.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Van Dusen moves to extend debate by 5 minutes upon the article. All those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Mr. Ford may continue.

MR. FORD: The appellate court at first glance seems to be an improvement and everybody in this room, I think, agrees that we should have an appellate court. However, I might remind you that the legislature had already perfected and was ready to bring out of the committee over there an appellate court system and would do the same tomorrow if it were not for the pending action of this convention at the present time. There is nothing in here with regard to the appellate court that is constitutional to the exclusion of all other considerations, and what we have accomplished here could just as well have been done across the street.

The filling of vacancies is something we have talked about and we have passed over. It is something that is of very great importance, and the more I have talked to fellow attorneys and the people back in the area that I represent, the more I am concerned with how serious this particular aspect is and how quickly we have passed over it.

The section that we just finished discussing a few moments ago bears absolutely no resemblance to the language that was originally proposed to the judiciary committee by Mr. Cooper and others who first brought the matter forcibly to our attention, and bears little or no resemblance to the work that was put into it by the judiciary committee.

The local court system has been placed — by reason of the fact that many people, for whatever their reasons, came to this convention with preconceived prejudices in this respect — in a status now where very few people at the local level have any confidence or any prospect of hope as to the continued existence of the autonomy of their local courts as they know them now. I think that the section with respect to local courts places in jeopardy a long standing traditional system in this state.

I think that we have, for all intents and purposes, destroyed the 5 tier system that we started out with in the judiciary committee and, again, this was not the judiciary committee that did it. It was done here on the floor. There is no longer a separate and distinct probate court as a constitutional matter. We now have a 3 court system with a conglomerate of the 2 last tiers that the judiciary committee contemplated. You can now merge all or any part of the functions of these lower courts to the end that all or part of them will be extinguished. We set out to set up a 5 tier court system which, in my opinion, would have been a distinct improvement and the one thing that we could have done by constitution that may have been a great improvement over what the legislature might have done, but we failed in this respect. For that reason I don't feel that I can support the article as it now reads.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I am very happy to endorse the words of Mr. Prettie. We did have on the floor of this particular convention a long and tedious debate on the judicial article. With 58 and now 59 or 60 lawyers, this was probably inevitable. But I think he has pointed out what has been the thinking, at least, of a majority of us. I am sorry to hear the words of my good friend, Bill Ford, who was of great assistance in the committee. I think we have retained an elective system of the judiciary. We have established an intermediate court of appeals. And I point out that it was not really until this constitutional convention got going that we got real action across the street, and this is not in derogation of those gentlemen.

I think we have strengthened the circuit courts, the probate courts. We have made great strides and have provided a system which, I am sure, will last the people of this state for a good 50 or 75 years or whenever we call another convention. We have allowed the legislature greater leeway. This, I think, is an advantage and not a disadvantage. I would hope that we would pass the article. I point out to you that we have had more hours of debate on this than on any other particular article. I urge your support. Thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Time has expired. The question is upon the passage of article VI on the judicial branch. All those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the passage of article VI, the judicial branch, the yeas are 103; the nays are 33.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: A majority of the delegates elect having voted in favor thereof, article VI, as amended, is passed.

For sections 1 through 7, 9 through 25, 27, 28 and 29 of article VI as passed, see above, page 3060.

Following is section 8 of article VI as amended and passed:

Sec. 8. The court of appeals shall consist initially of nine judges who shall be nominated and elected at non-partisan elections from districts drawn on county lines and as near as possible of equal population, as prescribed by law. The supreme court may prescribe by rule that the court of appeals may sit in divisions and for the terms of court and the times and places thereof. Each such division shall consist of not fewer than three judges. The number of judges comprising the court of appeals may be increased, and the districts from which they are elected may be changed by law.

Following is section 26 of article VI as amended and passed:

Sec. 26. The offices of circuit court commissioner and justice of the peace shall be abolished at the expiration of five years from the date this constitution becomes effective or may within this period be abolished by law. Their jurisdiction, compensation and powers within this period shall be as provided by law. Within this five-year period, the legislature shall establish a court or courts of limited jurisdiction with powers and jurisdiction defined by law. The location of such court or courts, and the qualifications, tenure, method of election and salary of the judges of such court or courts, and by what governmental units the judges shall be paid, shall be provided by law, subject to the limitations contained in this Article.

Statutory courts in existence at the time this constitution becomes effective shall retain their powers and jurisdiction, except as provided by law, until they are abolished by law.

Following is explanation of vote submitted by Mr. McAllister:

My reason for voting no on article VI, the judicial article, is that I believe the provisions of the present constitution are better than the provisions of the new article.

Following is explanation of vote submitted by Messrs. Krolikowski, Binkowski, Garvin, Madar, Ford, Downs and Miss Hart:

We voted no on article VI because Michigan's traditional judicial system has stood the test of time in the basic matter of selection of judges. Michigan's judiciary has a nationwide reputation for ability, integrity and efficiency.

Michigan's judicial system provides that when a vacancy occurs the governor appoints a judge to serve until the next election. At the next election that judge who was temporarily appointed must run against any other candidates nominated by the people, either through petition or by convention, as in the case of the supreme court.

Article VI as adopted removes the governor's right to select the judge on a temporary basis—a system that is proven in practice to have the best of the appointed and the elected systems. The proponents of this change did not prove their need for changing the historically satisfactory method.

Another severe weakness was a constitutional provision in section 28 for appeals from administrative agencies. Present appeals are handled either by general law or specific statute affecting specially created agencies. This proposal has a constitutional, rigid appeal system that could, in effect, make one who wins his case before the administrative tribunal for all intents and purposes go before a court and win his case all over again. This is frustrating, expensive and time-consuming for litigants as well as courts.

We believe that the proposed judicial article does not contain sufficient improvement over the present judicial system to justify replacing the 1908 constitution, as amended. Any improvements found in the article may and should be accomplished by statutory enactment.

We believe that these 2 changes alone are significant steps backward from Michigan's present constitution, and we therefore voted no on article VI—judicial branch.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON (continuing): The secretary will read article VII, local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: Article VII, local government:

[Article VII, sections 1 through 33, was read by the secretary. For text, see above, page 3083.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Article VII has been read a third time.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Cudlip, on behalf of the committee on style and drafting, requests that the following corrections be made in article VII of the proposed revision of the constitution:

sec- tion	col- umn	line	Corrections
10	2	29	After "be" remove brackets around "re".
10	2	30	After "to be" insert brackets as follows "[re]".
17	1	27	After "law" insert "[" before "and".
17	1	28	After "constitution" insert "[".
20	1	45	After "provide" insert "by law".
24	2	27	After "own" insert "[,]".
24	2	30	After "disposal" delete "[,]".
30	1	55	After "a" insert "[longer]".
30	1	56	Change "longer" to "LONGER".

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection it is so ordered. [Corrections made above.] The secretary will report an amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Sharpe and Kuhn offer the following amendment:

1. Amend article VII, section 21 (column 2, line 6) after "law.", by inserting "No governmental subdivision of the state shall impose an income tax unless approved by three-fifths of the qualified electors voting on the question."

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The substance of this amendment has been debated at some length before and I would move at this time to limit debate on this amendment to 10 minutes.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is on the motion to limit debate to 10 minutes. All those in favor will say aye. Opposed will say no.

The motion prevails. Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Point of order, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: State your point.

MR. G. E. BROWN: The exact language that is presently proposed was offered on second reading except that instead of a majority of the qualified electors, 3/5 has now been added and changed. I think in substance this is the same. When you make the requirement more stringent than failed to pass before, I don't think you have a different matter before you and I would refer you to journal page 999.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Well, the Chair would be disposed to rule and does rule that this presents a different question. The body has not heretofore considered the matter of a 60 per cent on this thing. Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. President and members of the convention, once again we come to you and ask you to consider the question of whether or not a governmental subdivision shall authorize an income tax without a vote of its people. Now it has been argued that this is legislative in nature, and when the Bowman bill passed the legislature you had a pretty strong argument. But since the governor in his wisdom saw fit to veto this bill, I think it now presents the same question that has been raised by many delegates who have things that they felt were necessary to be in this constitution; for example, the civil rights commission, civil service, and things of that nature. We know that those are legislative matters and yet we thought they should be in the constitution, because the legislature did not provide for them. We therefore strongly urge that the delegates to this convention decide this issue for the people and put it in the constitution.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: I rise to a point of order. I challenge the germaneness of this proposed amendment to this section. Section 21 of local government is the historical local government article dealing with home rule cities and villages and the reference to tax laws in there are to cities and villages as they may put in their charters for municipal purposes and public purposes.

The amendment says "No governmental subdivison" which would cover school districts, charter or other authorities, town-

Sec. 11. The person, houses, papers and possessions of every person shall be secure from unreasonable searches and seizures. No warrant to search any place or to seize any person or things shall issue without describing them, nor without probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation. The provisions of this section shall not be construed to bar from evidence in any criminal proceeding any narcotic drug, firearm, bomb, explosive or any other dangerous weapon, seized by a peace officer outside the curtilage of any dwelling house in this state.

Sec. 12. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless in case of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.

Sec. 13. A suitor in any court of this state has the right to prosecute or defend his suit, either in his own proper person or by an attorney.

Sec. 14. The right of trial by jury shall remain, but shall be waived in all civil cases unless demanded by one of the parties in the manner prescribed by law. In all civil cases tried by 12 jurors a verdict shall be received when 10 jurors agree.

Sec. 15. No person shall be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy. All persons shall, before conviction, be bailable by sufficient sureties, except for murder and treason when the proof is evident or the presumption great.

Sec. 16. Excessive bail shall not be required; excessive fines shall not be imposed; cruel or unusual punishment shall not be inflicted; nor shall witnesses be unreasonably detained.

Sec. 17. No person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty or property, without due process of law. The right of all individuals, firms, corporations and voluntary associations to fair and just treatment in the course of legislative and executive investigations and hearings shall not be infringed.

Sec. 18. No person shall be rendered incompetent to be a witness on account of his opinions on matters of religious belief.

Sec. 19. In all prosecutions for libels the truth may be given in evidence to the jury; and, if it appears to the jury that the matter charged as libelous is true and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends, the accused shall be acquitted.

Sec. 20. In every criminal prosecution, the accused shall have the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury, which may consist of less than 12 jurors in all courts not of record; to be informed of the nature of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor; to have the assistance of counsel for his defense; to have an appeal as a matter of right; and in courts of record, when the trial court so orders, to have such reasonable assistance as may be necessary to perfect and prosecute an appeal.

Sec. 21. No person shall be imprisoned for debt arising out of or founded on contract, express or implied, except in cases of fraud or breach of trust.

Sec. 22. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against it or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless upon the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act or on confession in open court.

Sec. 23. The enumeration in this constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

Article II Elections

Sec. 1. Every citizen of the United States who has attained the age of 21 years, who has resided in this state six months, and who meets the requirements of local residence provided by law, shall be an elector and qualified to vote in any election except as otherwise provided in this constitution. The legislature shall define residence for voting purposes.

Sec. 2. The legislature may by law exclude persons from voting because of mental incompetence or commitment to a jail or penal institution.

Sec. 3. For purposes of voting in the election for president and vice-president of the United States only, the legislature may by law establish lesser residence requirements for citizens who have resided in this state for less than six months and may waive residence requirements for former citizens of this state who have removed herefrom. The legislature shall not permit voting by any person who meets the voting residence requirements of the state to which he has removed.

Sec. 4. The legislature shall enact laws to regulate the time, place and manner of all nominations and elections, except as otherwise provided in this constitution or in the constitution and laws of the United States. The legislature shall enact laws to preserve the purity of elections, to preserve the secrecy of the ballot, to guard against abuses of the elective franchise, and to provide for a system of voter registration and absentee voting. No law shall be enacted which permits a candidate in any partisan primary or partisan election to have a ballot designation except when required for identification of candidates for the same office who have the same or similar surnames.

Sec. 5. Except for special elections to fill vacancies, or as otherwise provided in this constitution, all elections for national, state, county and township offices shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in each even-numbered year or on such other date as members of the congress of the United States are regularly elected.

Sec. 6. Whenever any question is required to be submitted by a political subdivision to the electors which involves the increase of any ad valorem tax rate limitation for a period of more than five years, or the issue of bonds, only electors in, and who have property assessed for any ad valorem taxes in, any part of the district or territory to be affected by the result of such election or electors who are the lawful husbands or wives of such persons shall be entitled to vote thereon. All electors in the district or territory affected may vote on all other questions.

Sec. 7. A board of state canvassers of four members shall be established by law. No candidate for an office to be canvassed nor any inspector of elections shall be eligible to serve as a member of a board of canvassers. A majority of any board of canvassers shall not be composed of members of the same political party.

Sec. 8. Laws shall be enacted to provide for the recall of all elective officers except judges of courts of record upon petition of electors equal in number to 25 percent of the number of persons voting in the last preceding election for the office of governor in the electoral district of the officer sought to be recalled. The sufficiency of any statement of reasons or grounds procedurally required shall be a political rather than a judicial question.

Sec. 9. The people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and to enact and reject laws, called the initiative, and the power to approve or reject laws enacted by the legislature, called the referendum. The power of initiative extends only to laws which the legislature may enact under this constitution. The power of referendum does not extend to acts making appropriations for state institutions or to meet deficiencies in state funds and must be invoked in the manner prescribed by law within 90 days following the final adjournment of the legislative session at which the law was enacted. To invoke the initiative or referendum, petitions signed by a number of registered electors, not less than eight percent for initiative and five percent for referendum of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected shall be required.

No law as to which the power of referendum properly has been invoked shall be effective thereafter unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at the next general election.

Any law proposed by initiative petition shall be either enacted or rejected by the legislature without change or amendment within 40 session days from the time such petition is received by the legislature. If any law proposed by such petition shall be enacted by the legislature it shall be subject to referendum, as hereinafter provided.

If the law so proposed is not enacted by the legislature within the 40 days, the state officer authorized by law shall submit such proposed law to the people for approval or rejection at the next general election. The legislature may reject any measure so proposed by initiative petition and propose a different measure upon the same subject by a yea and nay vote upon separate roll calls, and in such event both measures shall be submitted by such state officer to the electors for approval or rejection at the next general election.

Any law submitted to the people by either initiative or referendum petition and approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon at any election shall take effect 10 days after the date of the official declaration of the vote. No law initiated or adopted by the people shall be subject to the veto power of the governor, and no law adopted by the people at the polls under the initiative provisions of this section shall be amended or repealed, except by a vote of the electors or three-fourths of the members elected to and serving in each house of the legislature. Laws approved by the people under the referendum provision of this section may be amended by the legislature at any subsequent session thereof. If two or more measures approved by the electors at the same election conflict, that receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail.

The legislature shall implement the provisions of this section.

Article III

General Government

Sec. 1. The seat of government shall be at Lansing.

Sec. 2. The powers of government are divided into three branches: legislative, executive and judicial. No person exercising powers of one branch shall exercise powers properly belonging to another branch except as expressly provided in this constitution.

Sec. 3. There shall be a great seal of the State of Michigan and its use shall be provided by law.

Sec. 4. The militia shall be organized, equipped and disciplined as provided by law.

Sec. 5. Subject to provisions of general law, this state or any political subdivision, any governmental authority or any combination thereof may enter into agreements for the performance, financing or execution of their respective functions, with any one or more of the other states, the United States, the Dominion of Canada, or any political subdivision thereof unless otherwise provided in this constitution. Any other provision of this constitution notwithstanding, an officer or employee of the state or of any such unit of government or subdivision or agency thereof may serve on or with any governmental body established for the purposes set forth in this section and shall not be required to relinquish his office or employment by reason of such service. The legislature may impose such restrictions, limitations or conditions on such service as it may deem appropriate.

Sec. 6. The state shall not be a party to, nor be financially interested in, any work of internal improvement, nor engage in carrying on any such work, except for public internal improvements provided by law.

Sec. 7. The common law and the statute laws now in force, not repugnant to this constitution, shall remain in force until they expire by their own limitations, or are changed, amended or repealed.

Sec. 8. Either house of the legislature or the governor may request the opinion of the supreme court on important questions of law upon solemn occasions as to the constitutionality of legislation after it has been enacted into law but before its effective date.

Article IV Legislative Branch

Sec. 1. The legislative power of the State of Michigan is vested in a senate and a house of representatives.

Sec. 2. The senate shall consist of 38 members to be elected from single member districts at the same election as the governor for four-year terms concurrent with the term of office of the governor.

In districting the state for the purpose of electing senators after the official publication of the total population count of each federal decennial census, each county shall be assigned an apportionment factor equal to the sum of its percentage of the state's population as shown by the last regular federal decennial census computed to the nearest one-one hundredth of one percent multiplied by four and its percentage of the state's land area computed to the nearest one-one hundredth of one percent.

In arranging the state into senatorial districts, the apportionment commission shall be governed by the following rules:

(1) Counties with 13 or more apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. After each such county has been allocated one senator, the remaining senators to which this class of counties is entitled shall be distributed among such counties by the method of equal proportions applied to the apportionment factors.

(2) Counties having less than 13 apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. Such counties shall thereafter be arranged into senatorial districts that are compact, convenient, and contiguous by land, as rectangular in shape as possible, and having as nearly as possible 13 apportionment factors, but in no event less than 10 or more than 16. Insofar as possible, existing senatorial districts at the time of reapportionment shall not be altered unless there is a failure to comply with the above standards.

(3) Counties entitled to two or more senate districts shall be divided into single member districts. The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the county by the number of senators to which it is entitled. Each such district shall follow incorporated city or township boundary lines to the extent possible and shall be compact, contiguous, and as nearly uniform in shape as possible.

Sec. 3. The house of representatives shall consist of 110 members elected for two-year terms from single member districts apportioned on a basis of population as provided in this article. The districts shall consist of compact and convenient territory contiguous by land.

Each county which has a population of not less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state shall constitute a separate representative area. Each county having less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state shall be combined with another county or counties to form a representative area of not less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state. Any county which is isolated under the initial allocation as provided in this section shall be joined with that contiguous representative area having the smallest percentage of the state's population. Each such representative area shall be entitled initially to one representative.

After the assignment of one representative to each of the representative areas, the remaining house seats shall be apportioned among the representative areas on the basis of population by the method of equal proportions.

Any county comprising a representative area entitled to two or more representatives shall be divided into single member representative districts as follows:

(1) The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the representative area by the number of representatives to which it is entitled.

(2) Such single member districts shall follow city and township boundaries where applicable and shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory as nearly square in shape as possible.

Any representative area consisting of more than one county, entitled to more than one representative, shall be divided into single member districts as equal as possible in population adhering to county lines.

Sec. 4. In counties having more than one representative or senatorial district, the territory in the same county annexed to or merged with a city between apportionments shall become a part of a contiguous representative or senatorial dis-

1 | trict in the city with which it is combined, if
2 | provided by ordinance of the city. The district
3 | or districts with which the territory shall be
4 | combined shall be determined by such ordinance
5 | certified to the secretary of state. No such change
6 | in the boundaries of a representative or senatorial
7 | district shall have the effect of removing a legis-
8 | lator from office during his term.

9 | Sec. 5. Island areas are considered to be con-
10 | tiguous by land to the county of which they are
11 | a part.

12 | Sec. 6. A commission on legislative apportion-
13 | ment is hereby established consisting of eight
14 | persons, four of whom shall be selected by the
15 | state organizations of each of the two political
16 | parties whose candidates for governor received
17 | the highest vote at the last general election at
18 | which a governor was elected preceding each ap-
19 | portionment. If a candidate for governor of a third
20 | political party has received at such election more
21 | than 25 percent of such gubernatorial vote, the
22 | commission shall consist of 12 members, four of
23 | whom shall be selected by the state organization of
24 | the third political party. One member of the com-
25 | mission shall be selected by each political party or-
26 | ganization from each of the following four regions:
27 | (1) The upper peninsula; (2) The northern part of
28 | the lower peninsula, north of a line drawn along
29 | the northern boundaries of the counties of Bay,
30 | Midland, Isabella, Mecosta, Nwaygo and Oceana;
31 | (3) Southwestern Michigan, those counties south
32 | of region (2) and west of a line drawn along
33 | the western boundaries of the counties of Bay,
34 | Saginaw, Shiawassee, Ingham, Jackson and Hills-
35 | dale; (4) Southeastern Michigan, the remaining
36 | counties of the state.

37 | No officers or employees of the federal, state
38 | or local governments, excepting notaries public
39 | and members of the armed forces reserve, shall
40 | be eligible for membership on the commission.
41 | Members of the commission shall not be eligible
42 | for election to the legislature until two years after
43 | the apportionment in which they participated
44 | becomes effective.

45 | The commission shall be appointed immediately
46 | after the adoption of this constitution and when-
47 | ever apportionment or districting of the legislature
48 | is required by the provisions of this constitution.
49 | Members of the commission shall hold office until
50 | each apportionment or districting plan becomes
51 | effective. Vacancies shall be filled in the same
52 | manner as for original appointment.

53 | The secretary of state shall be secretary of
54 | the commission without vote, and in that capacity
55 | shall furnish, under the direction of the commis-
56 | sion, all necessary technical services. The com-
57 | mission shall elect its own chairman, shall make
58 | its own rules of procedure, and shall receive com-
59 | pensation provided by law. The legislature shall
60 | appropriate funds to enable the commission to carry out its activities.

1 | Within 30 days after the adoption of this con-
2 | stitution, and after the official total population
3 | count of each federal decennial census of the state
4 | and its political subdivisions is available, the se-
5 | cretary of state shall issue a call convening the
6 | commission not less than 30 nor more than 45
7 | days thereafter. The commission shall complete
8 | its work within 180 days after all necessary census
9 | information is available. The commission shall
10 | proceed to district and apportion the senate and
11 | house of representatives according to the provi-
12 | sions of this constitution. All final decisions shall
13 | require the concurrence of a majority of the mem-
14 | bers of the commission. The commission shall hold
15 | public hearings as may be provided by law.

16 | Each final apportionment and districting plan
17 | shall be published as provided by law within 30
18 | days from the date of its adoption and shall be-
19 | come law 60 days after publication. The secre-
20 | tary of state shall keep a public record of all the
21 | proceedings of the commission and shall be re-
22 | sponsible for the publication and distribution of
23 | each plan.

24 | If a majority of the commission cannot agree
25 | on a plan, each member of the commission, indi-
26 | vidualy or jointly with other members, may sub-
27 | mit a proposed plan to the supreme court. The
28 | supreme court shall determine which plan com-
29 | plies most accurately with the constitutional re-
30 | quirements and shall direct that it be adopted
31 | by the commission and published as provided
32 | in this section.

33 | Upon the application of any elector filed not
34 | later than 60 days after final publication of the
35 | plan, the supreme court, in the exercise of origi-
36 | nal jurisdiction, shall direct the secretary of
37 | state or the apportionment commission to per-
38 | form their duties, may review any final plan
39 | adopted by the commission, and shall remand
40 | such plan to the commission for further action
41 | if it fails to comply with the requirements of
42 | this constitution.

43 | Sec. 7. Each senator and representative
44 | must be a citizen of the United States, at least
45 | 21 years of age, and an elector of the district
46 | he represents. The removal of his domicile from 47 | the district shall be deemed a vacation of the
48 | office. No person who has been convicted of sub-
49 | version or who has within the preceding 20 years
50 | been convicted of a felony involving a breach
51 | of public trust shall be eligible for either house
52 | of the legislature.

53 | Sec. 8. No person holding any office under the
54 | United States or this state or a political subdivi-
55 | sion thereof, except notaries public and officers
56 | of the armed forces reserve, may be a member of
57 | either house of the legislature.

58 | Sec. 9. No person elected to the legislature
59 | shall receive any civil appointment within this

1 state from the governor, except notaries public,
2 from the legislature, or from any other state
3 authority, during the term for which he is elected.

4 Sec. 10. No member of the legislature nor any 5 state officer shall be interested directly or in-6 directly in any contract with the state or any 7 political subdivision thereof which shall cause a
8 substantial conflict of interest. The legislature
9 shall further implement this provision by appro-
10 priate legislation.

11 Sec. 11. Senators and representatives shall be 12 privileged from civil arrest and civil process dur-
13 ing sessions of the legislature and for five days 14 next before the commencement and after the 15 termination thereof. They shall not be ques-
16 tioned in any other place for any speech in either 17 house.

18 Sec. 12. The compensation and expense al-19 lowances of the members of the legislature shall 20 be determined by law. Changes in compensation
21 or expense allowances shall become effective only 22 when legislators commence their terms of office
23 after a general election.

24 Sec. 13. The legislature shall meet at the seat
25 of government on the second Wednesday in Janu-
26 ary of each year at twelve o'clock noon. Each 27 regular session shall adjourn without day, on a 28 day determined by concurrent resolution, at 29 twelve o'clock noon. Any business, bill or joint 30 resolution pending at the final adjournment of 31 a regular session held in an odd numbered year 32 shall carry over with the same status to the 33 next regular session.

34 Sec. 14. A majority of the members elected
35 to and serving in each house shall constitute a 36 quorum to do business. A smaller number in 37 each house may adjourn from day to day, and 38 may compel the attendance of absent members in 39 the manner and with penalties as each house may 40 prescribe.

41 Sec. 15. There shall be a bi-partisan legisla-42 tive council consisting of legislators appointed in 43 the manner prescribed by law. The legislature
44 shall appropriate funds for the council's opera-
45 tions and provide for its staff which shall main-
46 tain bill drafting, research and other services
47 for the members of the legislature. The council 48 shall periodically examine and recommend to the 49 legislature revision of the various laws of the 50 state.

51 Sec. 16. Each house, except as otherwise pro-
52 vided in this constitution, shall choose its own
53 officers and determine the rules of its proceedings,
54 but shall not adopt any rule that will prevent a 55 majority of the members elected thereto and 56 serving therein from discharging a committee
57 from the further consideration of any measure.
58 Each house shall be the sole judge of the quali-
59 fications, elections and returns of its members, 60 and may, with the concurrence of two-thirds of

1 all the members elected thereto and serving
2 therein, expel a member. The reasons for such 3 expulsion shall be entered in the journal, with 4 the votes and names of the members voting upon
5 the question. No member shall be expelled a
6 second time for the same cause.

7 Sec. 17. Each house of the legislature may 8 establish the committees necessary for the effi-
9 cient conduct of its business and the legislature
10 may create joint committees. Each committee
11 shall by roll call vote record the vote and name 12 of all action on bills and resolutions taken in 13 the committee. Such vote shall be available for 14 public inspection. Notice of all committee hear-15 ings and a clear statement of all subjects to be 16 considered at each hearing shall be published in 17 the journal in advance of the hearing.

18 Sec. 18. Each house shall keep a journal of 19 its proceedings, and publish the same unless the 20 public security otherwise requires. The record
21 of the vote and name of the members of either
22 house voting on any question shall be entered 23 in the journal at the request of one-fifth of the 24 members present. Any member of either house
25 may dissent from and protest against any act,
26 proceeding or resolution which he deems injuri-27 ous to any person or the public, and have the 28 reason for his dissent entered in the journal.

29 Sec. 19. All elections in either house or in 30 joint convention and all votes on appointments
31 submitted to the senate for advice and consent
32 shall be published by vote and name in the journal.

33 Sec. 20. The doors of each house shall be open 34 unless the public security otherwise requires.

35 Sec. 21. Neither house shall, without the con-
36 sent of the other, adjourn for more than two 37 intervening calendar days, nor to any place other 38 than where the legislature may then be in session.

39 Sec. 22. All legislation shall be by bill and 40 may originate in either house.

41 Sec. 23. The style of the laws shall be: The 42 People of the State of Michigan enact.

43 Sec. 24. No law shall embrace more than one
44 object, which shall be expressed in its title. No
45 bill shall be altered or amended on its passage
46 through either house so as to change its original 47 purpose as determined by its total content and 48 not alone by its title.

49 Sec. 25. No law shall be revised, altered or 50 amended by reference to its title only. The section 51 or sections of the act altered or amended shall 52 be re-enacted and published at length.

53 Sec. 26. No bill shall be passed or become a 54 law at any regular session of the legislature until 55 it has been printed or reproduced and in the pos-56 session of each house for at least five days. Every 57 bill shall be read three times in each house be-58 fore the final passage thereof. No bill shall be-59 come a law without the concurrence of a majority 60 of the members elected to and serving in each house. On the final passage of bills, the votes and names of the members voting thereon shall be entered in the journal.

Sec. 27. No act shall take effect until the expiration of 90 days from the end of the session at which it was passed, but the legislature may give immediate effect to acts by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to and serving in each house.

Sec. 28. When the legislature is convened on extraordinary occasions in special session no bill shall be passed on any subjects other than those expressly stated in the governor's proclamation or submitted by special message.

Sec. 29. The legislature shall pass no local or special act in any case where a general act can be made applicable, and whether a general act can be made applicable shall be a judicial question. No local or special act shall take effect until approved by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house and by a majority of the electors voting thereon in the district affected. Any act repealing local or special acts shall require only a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house and shall not require submission to the electors of such district.

Sec. 30. The assent of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house of the legislature shall be required for the appropriation of public money or property for local or private purposes.

Sec. 31. The general appropriation bills for the succeeding fiscal period covering items set forth in the budget shall be passed or rejected in either house of the legislature before that house passes any appropriation bill for items not in the budget except bills supplementing appropriations for the current fiscal year's operation. Any bill requiring an appropriation to carry out its purpose shall be considered an appropriation bill. One of the general appropriation bills as passed by the legislature shall contain an itemized statement of estimated revenue by major source in each operating fund for the ensuing fiscal period, the total of which shall not be less than the total of all appropriations made from each fund in the general appropriation bills as passed.

Sec. 32. Every law which imposes, continues or revives a tax shall distinctly state the tax.

Sec. 33. Every bill passed by the legislature shall be presented to the governor before it becomes law, and the governor shall have 14 days measured in hours and minutes from the time of presentation in which to consider it. If he approves, he shall within that time sign and file it with the secretary of state and it shall become law. If he does not approve, and the legislature has within that time finally adjourned the session at which the bill was passed, it shall not become law. If he does not approve, and the legislature continues the session at which the bill was passed, he shall return it within such 14-day period with his objections, to the house in which it originated. That house shall enter such objections in full in its journal and reconsider the bill. If two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in that house pass the bill notwithstanding the objections of the governor, it shall be sent with the objections to the other house for reconsideration. The bill shall become law if passed by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in that house. The vote of each house shall be entered in the journal with the votes and names of the members voting thereon. If any bill is not returned by the governor within such 14-day period, the legislature continuing in session, it shall become law as if he had signed it.

Sec. 34. Any bill passed by the legislature and approved by the governor, except a bill appropriating money, may provide that it will not become law unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon.

Sec. 35. All laws enacted at any session of the legislature shall be published in book form within 60 days after final adjournment of the session, and shall be distributed in the manner provided by law. The prompt publication of judicial decisions shall be provided by law. All laws and judicial decisions shall be free for publication by any person.

Sec. 36. No general revision of the laws shall be made. The legislature may provide for a compilation of the laws in force, arranged without alteration, under appropriate heads and titles.

Sec. 37. The legislature may by concurrent resolution empower a joint committee of the legislature acting between sessions to suspend until the end of the next regular legislative session any rule or regulation of an administrative agency promulgated when the legislature is not in regular session.

Sec. 38. The legislature may provide by law the cases in which any office shall be vacant and the manner of filling vacancies where no provision is made in this constitution.

Sec. 39. In order to insure continuity of state and local governmental operations in periods of emergency only, resulting from disasters occurring in this state caused by enemy attack on the United States, the legislature may provide by law for prompt and temporary succession to the powers and duties of public offices, of whatever nature and whether filled by election or appointment, the incumbents of which may become unavailable for carrying on the powers and duties of such offices; and enact other laws necessary and proper for insuring the continuity of governmental operations. Notwithstanding the power conferred by this section, elections shall always be called as soon as possible to fill any vacancies in elective offices temporarily occupied by operation of any legislation enacted pursuant to the provisions of this section.

Sec. 40. The legislature may by law establish a liquor control commission which, subject to statutory limitations, shall exercise complete control of the alcoholic beverage traffic within this state, including the retail sales thereof. The legislature may provide for an excise tax on such sales. Neither the legislature nor the commission may authorize the manufacture or sale of alcoholic beverages in any county in which a majority of the electors voting thereon shall prohibit the same.

Sec. 41. The legislature shall not authorize any lottery nor permit the sale of lottery tickets.

Subsequent to the initial allocation, the governor may make changes in the organization of the executive branch or in the assignment of functions among its units which he considers necessary for efficient administration. Where these changes require the force of law, they shall be set forth in executive orders and submitted to the legislature. Thereafter the legislature shall have 60 calendar days of a regular session, or a full session if of shorter duration, to disapprove each executive order. Unless disapproved in both houses by a resolution concurred in by a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house, each order shall become effective at a date thereafter to be designated by the governor.

13 Sec. 1. The legislature shall impose taxes suf-

17 surrendered, suspended or contracted away.

18 Sec. 3. The legislature shall provide for the 19 uniform general ad valorem taxation of real and 20 tangible personal property not exempt by law. The 21 legislature shall provide for the determination of 22 true cash value of such property; the proportion 23 of true cash value at which such property shall 24 be uniformly assessed, which shall not, after 25 January 1, 1966, exceed 50 percent; and for a sys-

28 designated real and tangible personal property in 29 lieu of general ad valorem taxation. Every tax
30 other than the general ad valorem property tax 31 shall be uniform upon the class or classes on 32 which it operates.

33 Sec. 4. Property owned and occupied by non-

37 real and personal property taxes.

38 Sec. 5. The legislature shall provide for the 39 assessment by the state of the property of those 40 public service businesses assessed by the state 41 at the date this constitution becomes effective, and 42 of other property as designated by the legislature,
43 and for the imposition and collection of taxes 44 thereon. Property assessed by the state shall be 45 assessed at the same proportion of its true 46 cash value as the legislature shall specify for 47 property subject to general ad valorem taxation.
48 The rate of taxation on such property shall be 49 the average rate levied upon other property in this 50 state under the general ad valorem tax law, or,
51 if the legislature provides, the rate of tax applicable
52 to the property of each business enterprise assessed
53 by the state shall be the average rate of ad valorem
54 taxation levied upon other property in all counties
55 in which any of such property is situated.

56 Sec. 6. Except as otherwise provided in this 57 constitution, the total amount of general ad valo-58 rem taxes imposed upon real and tangible per-59 sonal property for all purposes in any one year 60 shall not exceed 15 mills on each dollar of the

1 assessed valuation of property as finally equalized.
2 Under procedures provided by law, which shall
3 guarantee the right of initiative, separate tax
4 limitations for any county and for the townships
5 and for school districts therein, the aggregate of 6 which shall not exceed 18 mills on each dollar of 7 such valuation, may be adopted and thereafter
8 altered by the vote of a majority of the qualified 9 electors of such county voting thereon, in lieu 10 of the limitation hereinbefore established. These 11 limitations may be increased to an aggregate of 12 not to exceed 50 mills on each dollar of valuation, 13 for a period of not to exceed 20 years at any one
14 time, if approved by a majority of the electors, 15 qualified under Section 6 of Article II of this 16 constitution, voting on the question.

17 The foregoing limitations shall not apply to 18 taxes imposed for the payment of principal and 19 interest on bonds or other evidences of indebted-20 ness or for the payment of assessments or con-
21 tract obligations in anticipation of which bonds
22 are issued, which taxes may be imposed without 23 limitation as to rate or amount; or to taxes im-
24 posed for any other purpose by any city, vil-
25 lage, charter county, charter township, charter
26 authority or other authority, the tax limitations
27 of which are provided by charter or by general
28 law.

29 In any school district which extends into two 30 or more counties, property taxes at the highest 31 rate available in the county which contains the 32 greatest part of the area of the district may be 33 imposed and collected for school purposes through-34 out the district.

35 Sec. 7. No income tax graduated as to rate 36 or base shall be imposed by the state or any of 37 its subdivisions.

38 Sec. 8. The legislature shall not impose a 39 sales tax on retailers at a rate of more than 40 four percent of their gross taxable sales of 41 tangible personal property.

42 Sec. 9. All specific taxes, except general sales
43 and use taxes and regulatory fees, imposed di-
44 rectly or indirectly on fuels sold or used 45 to propel motor vehicles upon highways and on 46 registered motor vehicles shall, after the payment
47 of necessary collection expenses, be used exclusi-
48 vely for highway purposes as defined by law.

49 Sec. 10. One-eighth of all taxes imposed on 50 retailers on taxable sales at retail of tangible 51 personal property shall be used exclusively for 52 assistance to townships, cities and villages, on 53 a population basis as provided by law. In de-54 termining population the legislature may exclude 55 any portion of the total number of persons who 56 are wards, patients or convicts in any tax sup-
57 ported institution.

58 Sec. 11. There shall be established a state
59 school aid fund which shall be used exclusively
60 for the support of public education and school

One-half of all taxes imposed on retailers on taxable sales at retail of tangible personal property, and other tax revenues provided by law, shall be dedicated to this fund. Payments from this fund shall be made in full on a scheduled basis, as provided by law.

Sec. 12. No evidence of state indebtedness shall be issued except for debts authorized pursuant to this constitution.

Sec. 13. Public bodies corporate shall have power to borrow money and to issue their securities evidencing debt, subject to this constitution and law.

Sec. 14. To meet obligations incurred pursuant to appropriations for any fiscal year, the legislature may by law authorize the state to issue its full faith and credit notes in which case it shall pledge undedicated revenues to be received within the same fiscal year for the repayment thereof. Such indebtedness in any fiscal year shall not exceed 15 percent of undedicated revenues received by the state during the preceding fiscal year and such debts shall be repaid at the time the revenues so pledged are received, but not later than the end of the same fiscal year.

Sec. 15. The state may borrow money for specific purposes in amounts as may be provided by acts of the legislature adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house, and approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at any general election. The question submitted to the electors shall state the amount to be borrowed, the specific purpose to which the funds shall be devoted, and the method of repayment.

Sec. 16. The state, in addition to any other borrowing power, may borrow from time to time such amounts as shall be required, pledge its faith and credit and issue its notes or bonds therefor, for the purpose of making loans to school districts as provided in this section.

If the minimum amount which would otherwise be necessary for a school district to levy in any year to pay principal and interest on its qualified bonds, including any necessary allowances for estimated tax delinquencies, exceeds 13 mills on each dollar of its assessed valuation as finally equalized, or such lower millage as the legislature may prescribe, then the school district may elect to borrow all or any part of the excess from the state. In that event the state shall lend the excess amount to the school district for the payment of principal and interest. If for any reason any school district will be or is unable to pay the principal and interest on its qualified bonds when due, then the school district shall borrow and the state shall lend to it an amount sufficient to enable the school district to make the payment.

The term "qualified bonds" means general obligation bonds of school districts issued for capital expenditures, including refunding bonds, issued prior to May 4, 1955, or issued thereafter and qualified as provided by law pursuant to Section 27 or Section 28 of Article X of the Constitution of 1908 or pursuant to this section.

After a school district has received loans from the state, each year thereafter it shall levy for debt service, exclusive of levies for nonqualified bonds, not less than 13 mills or such lower millage as the legislature may prescribe, until the amount loaned has been repaid, and any tax collections therefrom in any year over and above the minimum requirements for principal and interest on qualified bonds shall be used toward the repayment of state loans. In any year when such levy would produce an amount in excess of the requirements and the amount due to the state, the levy may be reduced by the amount of the excess.

Subject to the foregoing provisions, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe and to limit the procedure, terms and conditions for the qualification of bonds, for obtaining and making state loans, and for the repayment of loans.

The power to tax for the payment of principal and interest on bonds hereafter issued which are the general obligations of any school district, including refunding bonds, and for repayment of any state loans made to school districts, shall be without limitation as to rate or amount.

All rights acquired under Sections 27 and 28 of Article X of the Constitution of 1908, by holders of bonds heretofore issued, and all obligations assumed by the state or any school district under these sections, shall remain unimpaired.

Sec. 17. No money shall be paid out of the state treasury except in pursuance of appropriations made by law.

Sec. 18. The credit of the state shall not be granted to, nor in aid of any person, association or corporation, public or private, except as authorized in this constitution.

This section shall not be construed to prohibit the investment of public funds until needed for current requirements or the investment of funds accumulated to provide retirement or pension benefits for public officials and employees, as provided by law.

Sec. 19. The state shall not subscribe to, nor be interested in the stock of any company, association or corporation, except that funds accumulated to provide retirement or pension benefits for public officials and employees may be invested as provided by law; and endowment funds created for charitable or educational purposes may be invested as provided by law governing the investment of funds held in trust by trustees.

Sec. 20. No state money shall be deposited in banks other than those organized under the national or state banking laws. No state money

1 shall be deposited in any bank in excess of 50
2 percent of the capital and surplus of such bank.
3 Any bank receiving deposits of state money shall 4 show the amount of state money so deposited as 5 a separate item in all published statements.

6 Sec. 21. The legislature shall provide by law
7 for the annual accounting for all public moneys,
8 state and local, and may provide by law for interim
9 accounting.

10 The legislature shall provide by law for the 11 maintenance of uniform accounting systems by 12 units of local government and the auditing of 13 county accounts by competent state authority
14 and other units of government as provided by law.

15 Sec. 22. Procedures for the examination and 16 adjustment of claims against the state shall be 17 prescribed by law.

18 Sec. 23. All financial records, accountings,
19 audit reports and other reports of public moneys
20 shall be public records and open to inspection. A 21 statement of all revenues and expenditures of pub-
22 lic moneys shall be published and distributed 23 annually, as provided by law.

24 Sec. 24. The accrued financial benefits of each
25 pension plan and retirement system of the state
26 and its political subdivisions shall be a contractual 27 obligation thereof which shall not be diminished
28 or impaired thereby.

29 Financial benefits arising on account of service 30 rendered in each fiscal year shall be funded during 31 that year and such funding shall not be used for 32 financing unfunded accrued liabilities.

The appointing authorities may create or abolish positions for reasons of administrative efficiency without the approval of the commission. Positions shall not be created nor abolished except for reasons of administrative efficiency. Any employee considering himself aggrieved by the abolition of a position shall have a right of appeal to the commission through established grievance procedures.

The civil service commission shall recommend to the governor and to the legislature rates of compensation for all appointed positions within the executive department not a part of the classified service.

To enable the commission to exercise its powers, the legislature shall appropriate to the commission for the ensuing fiscal year a sum not less than one percent of the aggregate payroll of the classified service for the preceding fiscal year, as certified by the commission. Within six months after the conclusion of each fiscal year the commission shall return to the state treasury all moneys unexpended for that fiscal year.

The commission shall furnish reports of expenditures, at least annually, to the governor and the legislature and shall be subject to annual audit as provided by law.

No payment for personal services shall be made or authorized until the provisions of this constitution pertaining to civil service have been complied with in every particular. The state civil service commission may on request furnish technical services to any such unit on a reimbursable basis.

Sec. 7. The house of representatives shall have the sole power of impeaching civil officers for corrupt conduct in office or for crimes or misdemeanors, but a majority of the members elected and serving shall be necessary to direct an impeachment.

When an impeachment is directed, the house of representatives shall elect three of its members to prosecute the impeachment.

Every impeachment shall be tried by the senate immediately after the final adjournment of the legislature. The senators shall take an oath or affirmation truly and impartially to try and determine the impeachment according to the evi-

1 dence. When the governor or lieutenant governor
2 is tried, the chief justice of the supreme court
3 shall preside.

4 No person shall be convicted without the con-
5 currence of two-thirds of the senators elected and 6 serving. Judgment in case of conviction shall not 7 extend further than removal from office, but the 8 person convicted shall be liable to punishment
9 according to law.

10 No judicial officer shall exercise any of the 11 functions of his office after an impeachment is 12 directed until he is acquitted.

13 Article XII

14 Amendment & Revision

15 Sec. 1. Amendments to this constitution may 16 be proposed in the senate or house of representa-
17 tives. Proposed amendments agreed to by two-18 thirds of the members elected to and serving in 19 each house on a vote with the names and vote of 20 those voting entered in the respective journals
21 shall be submitted, not less than 60 days there-
22 after, to the electors at the next general election
23 or special election as the legislature shall direct.
24 If a majority of electors voting on a proposed 25 amendment approve the same, it shall become 26 part of the constitution and shall abrogate or 27 amend existing provisions of the constitution at 28 the end of 45 days after the date of the election
29 at which it was approved.

30 Sec. 2. Amendments may be proposed to this
31 constitution by petition of the registered electors
32 of this state. Every petition shall include the full 33 text of the proposed amendment, and be signed by 34 registered electors of the state equal in number to 35 at least 10 percent of the total vote cast for 36 all candidates for governor at the last preceding 37 general election at which a governor was elected.
38 Such petitions shall be filed with the person au-
39 thorized by law to receive the same at least 120
40 days before the election at which the proposed 41 amendment is to be voted upon. Any such petition 42 shall be in the form, and shall be signed and 43 circulated in such manner, as prescribed by law.
44 The person authorized by law to receive such peti-
45 tion shall upon its receipt determine, as provided
46 by law, the validity and sufficiency of the signa-47 tures on the petition, and make an official an-48 nouncement thereof at least 60 days prior to the 49 election at which the proposed amendment is to be 50 voted upon.

51 Any amendment proposed by such petition shall 52 be submitted, not less than 120 days after it was 53 filed, to the electors at the next general election.
54 Such proposed amendment, existing provisions of 55 the constitution which would be altered or abro-
56 gated thereby, and the question as it shall appear 57 on the ballot shall be published in full as provided
58 by law. Copies of such publication shall be posted 59 in each polling place and furnished to news media as provided by law.

60 The ballot to be used in such election shall contain a statement of the purpose of the proposed amendment, expressed in not more than 100 words, exclusive of caption. Such statement of purpose and caption shall be prepared by the person authorized by law, and shall consist of a true and impartial statement of the purpose of the amendment in such language as shall create no prejudice for or against the proposed amendment.

If the proposed amendment is approved by a majority of the electors voting on the question, it shall become part of the constitution, and shall abrogate or amend existing provisions of the constitution at the end of 45 days after the date of the election at which it was approved. If two or more amendments approved by the electors at the same election conflict, that amendment receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail.

Sec. 3. At the general election to be held in the year 1978, and in each 16th year thereafter and at such times as may be provided by law, the question of a general revision of the constitution shall be submitted to the electors of the state. If a majority of the electors voting on the question decide in favor of a convention for such purpose, at an election to be held not later than six months after the proposal was certified as approved, the electors of each representative district as then organized shall elect one delegate and the electors of each senatorial district as then organized shall elect one delegate at a partisan election.
The delegates so elected shall convene at the seat of government on the first Tuesday in October next succeeding such election or at an earlier date if provided by law.

The convention shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings and judge the qualifications, elections and returns of its members. The governor shall appoint a qualified resident of the same district to fill a vacancy in the office of any delegate who shall be a member of the same party as the delegate vacating the office. The convention shall have power to appoint such officers, employees and assistants as it deems necessary and to fix their compensation; to provide for the printing and distribution of its documents, journals and proceedings; to explain and disseminate information about the proposed constitution and to complete the business of the convention in an orderly manner. Each delegate shall receive for his services compensation provided by law.

No proposed constitution or amendment adopted by such convention shall be submitted to the electors for approval as hereinafter provided unless by the assent of a majority of all the delegates elected to and serving in the convention, with the names and vote of those voting entered in the journal. Any proposed constitution or amendments adopted by such convention shall be submitted to the qualified electors in the manner and at the time provided by such convention not less than 90 days after final adjournment of the convention. Upon the approval of such constitution or amendments by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon the constitution or amendments shall take effect as provided by the convention.

against the secretary of state, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, submits the following report:

In accordance with Resolution 96, the committee on action against secretary of state on May 14, 1962, filed with the circuit court for the county of Ingham, a petition for declaration of rights in an action entitled, Stephen S. Nisbet, President of the Michigan Constitutional Convention of 1961-1962 v. James M. Hare, Secretary of State. The relief sought was a declaration that the convention has the right to provide for submission of the proposed new constitution to the electors at the general election to be held November 6, 1962. The summons and petition were served on the secretary of state on the same day.

On May 22, having had no response from the attorney general, petitioner filed a motion for the entry of a decree. On May 25, the secretary of state appeared specially by the attorney general and moved to dismiss the petition on the ground that the case did not present an actual controversy. The trial court heard argument on the attorney general's motion on June 1 and on June 6 rendered an opinion denying the motion to dismiss. An order to that effect was entered on June 11.

Instead of proceeding to file an answer, the attorney general then filed an application to the supreme court for leave to appeal. This application was granted by the supreme court and the attorney general, on July 2, filed a claim of appeal.

The attorney general has not yet filed a brief and he states that he does not intend to do so until after August 7.

It is obvious that no judicial determination of the right of the constitutional convention to require submission of the proposed constitution to the electors on November 6 will be made in time to be useful to the convention. Accordingly, the committee recommends:

1) That section 15 [formerly section 16] of the schedule and temporary provisions of the proposed constitution be amended by striking from the first sentence the words "Tuesday after the first Monday of November, 1962" and inserting "first Monday in April, 1963."

2) That the committee be authorized to discontinue the action entitled, Nisbet v. Hare.

Richard C. Van Dusen, chairman.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I move the adoption of the report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen that the report be adopted. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The report is adopted. Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, in compliance with our rules, I think it would now be necessary to take a roll call vote on the amendment to the constitution changing the date.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Chase will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment recommended in the report is as follows:

1. Amend the schedule, section 15 [formerly section 16] (column 2) line 11, after "held on the" by striking out "Tuesday after the first Monday of November, 1962.", and inserting "first Monday in April, 1963."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary will call the roll. Those in favor of the amendment will vote aye as your name is called. Those opposed will vote no.

SECRETARY CHASE: On the adoption of the constitution as amended, the yeas are 98; the nays are 43. (applause)
PRESIDENT NISBET: The constitution is adopted.

For the constitution as adopted, see below, page 3317.

Because of the hour, it being almost noon, the Chair recognizes Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VANDUSEN: Mr. President, I move that the convention now stand in recess until 2:00 p.m.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen that we recess until 2:00 p.m. Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We are recessed until 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 11:50 o'clock a.m., the convention recessed; and, at 2:00 o'clock p.m., reconvened.]

Will the delegates please take their seats. The convention will please come to order.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I think we should recognize the fact that many of our employees are voluntarily back with us today, meeting with the delegates. I'm sure all of us are very happy to have them here. It brings about a happy result to see them and I think we ought to give them a good hand. (applause) Mr. Chase has an announcement.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are 3 announcements that possibly should have been made before we recessed for lunch.

First, there is mail for all of the delegates in the mail room downstairs.

Just prior to the May 11 adjournment, several of the delegates took out, on loan, sets of convention slides which have not been returned. Missing from our files are 12 complete sets of slides. Since we frequently have call from other delegates for the use of these slides, we would appreciate their return as soon as possible. Ink White, chairman of the committee on public information.

I am sure the delegates recall the lady on the civic center staff who took such good care of keeping the windows clean and the place well slicked up, who had to go to the hospital for a very critical operation. A number of the delegates contributed to a fund to help her over her financial difficulties. I have the following card:

It is very difficult to express my appreciation to all the wonderful people of con. con. Let me say, with my heart, your kindness and generosity will always be remembered.

Sincerely,
Freda Adams.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Since the adjournment on May 11, we have added 2 new associate members to the delegation: Mrs. Charles Follo and Mrs. Gil Wanger.

I asked Charlie if Mrs. Follo was present so that he might present her, but he said she isn't. We are sorry, Charlie, she couldn't be with us.

Mr. Wanger, is your associate delegate present? Would you present her?

[Whereupon, the delegates accorded Mrs. Wanger a standing ovation.]

At the final session before the long recess the president was authorized to name a reunion committee for the constitutional convention. Accordingly, the president appoints, as members of the reunion committee: Mr. Erickson, Mrs. Koeze, Messrs. Jones, Bowens, Brake, Mrs. Conklin, Mr. Dean Doty, Mrs. Daisy Elliott, Messrs. Faxon, Kelsey, Kuhn, Powell, Sharpe, Wanger, White and Norris.

Without objection, the appointments are approved. You will notice that most of these delegates are within the area of Lansing, Detroit or Grand Rapids for their ease in getting together when they have to meet. Mr. Claud Erickson is chairman of the committee.

Returning to the order of business, approval of address to people. We will take up the report of the committee on public information. Mr. White, chairman.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President, under date of June 26, 1962, each delegate was mailed proof copies of the proposed address to the people. Since that time our committee has received numerous suggestions for corrections, additions, deletions and so on. Our committee has met and gone over these suggestions and they have been, for the most part, agreed to. I might say, parenthetically, the address in its present corrected form represents the writing and editing of upwards of 50 of our delegates.

Under date of July 27, 1962, each of you was mailed a 16 page multilith report which outlined in detail some 108 corrections. This communication also carried the recommendation that we be authorized to correct the text of the constitution as it appears in the address to conform with the style and drafting changes adopted at today's session, and to offer comments accordingly, if necessary. All of this material has been delivered again to each delegate's desk today. Additionally, you have a single white multilith sheet from our committee containing brief addenda to this 16 page report.

It seems to me, Mr. President, the delegates have had ample time to consider these matters, and to expedite our final deliberations, I move that the report of the public information committee, with the recommended addenda, be considered read.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it is so ordered.

Following is the report as submitted and considered read:

After careful consideration of suggestions from delegates, your committee on public information recommends the adoption of the following changes in the proof copy of the address to the people:

1. Amend page 2, second full paragraph, line 3, after "that one" by striking out "must" and inserting "should"; to improve phraseology.

2. Amend page 2, third full paragraph, line 1, by striking out "Ordered by popular vote, its delegates selected by the people on the basis of one from each senatorial and representative district, the Constitutional Convention of 1961-62 met in Lansing on October 3, 1961.", and inserting "The convention was ordered by popular vote in April of 1961. There were 144 delegates, representing Michigan's 34 State Senatorial districts and 110 State Representative seats. They were elected in statewide voting on September 12, 1961, and convened at Lansing on October 3, 1961."; to improve awkward sentence construction and correct error by indicating "seats" rather than representative "districts."

3. Amend page 2, fifth full paragraph, line 2, after "overlapped" by striking out "each other"; to improve phraseology.

4. Amend page 2, fifth full paragraph, line 6, after

CONSTITUTION

August 1, 1962

PREAMBLE

We, the people of the State of Michigan, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of freedom, and earnestly desiring to secure these blessings undiminished to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution.

Sec. 18. No person shall be rendered incompetent to be a witness on account of his opinions on matters of religious belief.

Sec. 19. In all prosecutions for libels the truth may be given in evidence to the jury; and, if it appears to the jury that the matter charged as libelous is true and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends, the accused shall be acquitted.

Sec. 20. In every criminal prosecution, the accused shall have the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury, which may consist of less than 12 jurors in all courts not of record; to be informed of the nature of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor; to have the assistance of counsel for his defense; to have an appeal as a matter of right; and in courts of record, when the trial court so orders, to have such reasonable assistance as may be necessary to perfect and prosecute an appeal.

Sec. 21. No person shall be imprisoned for debt arising out of or founded on contract, express or implied, except in cases of fraud or breach of trust.

Sec. 22. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against it or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless upon the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act or on confession in open court.

Sec. 23. The enumeration in this constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

ARTICLE II

Elections

Sec. 1. Every citizen of the United States who has attained the age of 21 years, who has resided in this state six months, and who meets the requirements of local residence provided by law, shall be an elector and qualified to vote in any election except as otherwise provided in this constitution. The legislature shall define residence for voting purposes.

Sec. 2. The legislature may by law exclude persons from voting because of mental incompetence or commitment to a jail or penal institution.

Sec. 3. For purposes of voting in the election for president and vice-president of the United States only, the legislature may by law establish lesser residence requirements for citizens who have resided in this state for less than six months and may waive residence requirements for former citizens of this state who have removed herefrom. The legislature shall not permit voting by any person who meets the voting residence requirements of the state to which he has removed.

Sec. 4. The legislature shall enact laws to regulate the time, place and manner of all nominations and elections, except as otherwise provided in this constitution or in the constitution and laws of the United States. The legislature shall enact laws to preserve the purity of elections, to preserve the secrecy of the ballot, to guard against abuses of the elective franchise, and to provide for a system of voter registration and absentee voting. No law shall be enacted which permits a candidate in any partisan primary or partisan election to have a ballot designation except when required for identification of candidates for the same office who have the same or similar surnames.

Sec. 5. Except for special elections to fill vacancies, or as otherwise provided in this constitution, all elections for national, state, county and township offices shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in each even-numbered year or on such other date as members of the congress of the United States are regularly elected.

Sec. 6. Whenever any question is required to be submitted by a political subdivision to the electors for the increase of the ad valorem tax rate limitation imposed by Section 6 of Article IX for a period of more than five years, or for the issue of bonds, only electors in, and who have property assessed for any ad valorem taxes in, any part of the district or territory to be affected by the result of such election or electors who are the lawful husbands or wives of such persons shall be entitled to vote thereon. All electors in the district or territory affected may vote on all other questions.

Sec. 7. A board of state canvassers of four members shall be established by law. No candidate for an office to be canvassed nor any inspector of elections shall be eligible to serve as a member of a board of canvassers. A majority of any board of canvassers shall not be composed of members of the same political party.

Sec. 8. Laws shall be enacted to provide for the recall of all elective officers except judges of courts of record upon petition of electors equal in number to 25 percent of the number of persons voting in the last preceding election for the office of governor in the electoral district of the officer sought to be recalled. The sufficiency of any statement of reasons or grounds procedurally required shall be a political rather than a judicial question.

Sec. 9. The people reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and to enact and reject laws, called the initiative, and the power to approve or reject laws enacted by the legislature, called the referendum. The power of initiative extends only to laws which the legislature may enact under this constitution. The power of referendum does not extend to acts making appropriations for state institutions or to meet deficiencies in state funds and must be invoked in the manner prescribed by law within 90 days following the final adjournment of the legislative session at which the law was enacted. To invoke the initiative or referendum, petitions signed by a number of registered electors, not less than eight percent for initiative and five percent for referendum of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected shall be required.

No law as to which the power of referendum properly has been invoked shall be effective thereafter unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at the next general election.

Any law proposed by initiative petition shall be either enacted or rejected by the legislature without change or amendment within 40 session days from the time such petition is received by the legislature. If any law proposed by such petition shall be enacted by the legislature it shall be subject to referendum, as hereinafter provided.

If the law so proposed is not enacted by the legislature within the 40 days, the state officer authorized by law shall submit such proposed law to the people for approval or rejection at the next general election. The legislature may reject any measure so proposed by initiative petition and propose a different measure upon the same subject by a yea and nay vote upon separate roll calls, and in such event both measures shall be submitted by such state officer to the electors for approval or rejection at the next general election.

Any law submitted to the people by either initiative or referendum petition and approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon at any election shall take effect 10 days after the date of the official declaration of the vote. No law initiated or adopted by the people shall be subject to the veto power of the governor, and no law adopted by the people at the polls under the initiative provisions of this section shall be amended or repealed, except by a vote of the electors unless otherwise provided in the initiative measure or by three-fourths of the members elected to and serving in each house of the legislature. Laws approved by the people under the referendum provision of this section may be amended by the legislature at any subsequent session thereof. If two or more measures approved by the electors at the same election conflict, that receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail.

The legislature shall implement the provisions of this section.

General Government

Sec. 1. The seat of government shall be at Lansing.

Sec. 2. The powers of government are divided into three branches: legislative, executive and judicial. No person exercising powers of one branch shall exercise powers properly belonging to another branch except as expressly provided in this constitution.

Sec. 3. There shall be a great seal of the State of Michigan and its use shall be provided by law.

Sec. 4. The militia shall be organized, equipped and disciplined as provided by law.

Sec. 5. Subject to provisions of general law, this state or any political subdivision thereof, any governmental authority or any combination thereof may enter into agreements for the performance, financing or execution of their respective functions, with any one or more of the other states, the United States, the Dominion of Canada, or any political subdivision thereof unless otherwise provided in this constitution. Any other provision of this constitution notwithstanding, an officer or employee of the state or of any such unit of government or subdivision or agency thereof may serve on or with any governmental body established for the purposes set forth in this section and shall not be required to relinquish his office or employment by reason of such service. The legislature may impose such restrictions, limitations or conditions on such service as it may deem appropriate.

Sec. 6. The state shall not be a party to, nor be financially interested in, any work of internal improvement, nor engage in carrying on any such work, except for public internal improvements provided by law.

Sec. 7. The common law and the statute laws now in force, not repugnant to this constitution, shall remain in force until they expire by their own limitations, or are changed, amended or repealed.

Sec. 8. Either house of the legislature or the governor may request the opinion of the supreme court on important questions of law upon solemn occasions as to the constitutionality of legislation after it has been enacted into law but before its effective date.

ARTICLE IV

Legislative Branch

Sec. 1. The legislative power of the State of Michigan is vested in a senate and a house of representatives.

Sec. 2. The senate shall consist of 38 members to be elected from single member districts at the same election as the governor for four-year terms concurrent with the term of office of the governor.

In districting the state for the purpose of electing senators after the official publication of the total population count of each federal decennial census, each county shall be assigned apportionment factors equal to the sum of its percentage of the state's population as shown by the last regular federal decennial census computed to the nearest one-one hundredth of one percent multiplied by four and its percentage of the state's land area computed to the nearest one-one hundredth of one percent.

In arranging the state into senatorial districts, the apportionment commission shall be governed by the following rules:

(1) Counties with 13 or more apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. After each such county has been allocated one senator, the remaining senators to which this class of counties is entitled shall be distributed among such counties by the method of equal proportions applied to the apportionment factors.

(2) Counties having less than 13 apportionment factors shall be entitled as a class to senators in the proportion that the total apportionment factors of such counties bear to the total apportionment factors of the state computed to the nearest whole number. Such counties shall thereafter be arranged into senatorial districts that are compact, convenient, and contiguous by land, as rectangular in shape as possible, and having as nearly as possible 13 apportionment factors, but in no event less than 10 or more than 16. Insofar as possible, existing senatorial districts at the time of reapportionment shall not be altered unless there is a failure to comply with the above standards.

(3) Counties entitled to two or more senators shall be divided into single member districts. The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the county by the number of senators to which it is entitled. Each such district shall follow incorporated city or township boundary lines to the extent possible and shall be compact, contiguous, and as nearly uniform in shape as possible.

Sec. 3. The house of representatives shall consist of 110 members elected for two-year terms from single member districts apportioned on a basis of population as provided in this article. The districts shall consist of compact and convenient territory contiguous by land.

Each county which has a population of not less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state shall constitute a separate representative area. Each county having less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state shall be combined with another county or counties to form a representative area of not less than seven-tenths of one percent of the population of the state. Any county which is isolated under the initial allocation as provided in this section shall be joined with that contiguous representative area having the smallest percentage of the state's population. Each such representative area shall be entitled initially to one representative.

After the assignment of one representative to each of the representative areas, the remaining house seats shall be apportioned among the representative areas on the basis of population by the method of equal proportions.

Any county comprising a representative area entitled to two or more representatives shall be divided into single member representative districts as follows:

(1) The population of such districts shall be as nearly equal as possible but shall not be less than 75 percent nor more than 125 percent of a number determined by dividing the population of the representative area by the number of representatives to which it is entitled.

(2) Such single member districts shall follow city and township boundaries where applicable and shall be composed of compact and contiguous territory as nearly square in shape as possible.

Any representative area consisting of more than one county, entitled to more than one representative, shall be divided into single member districts as equal as possible in population, adhering to county lines.

Sec. 4. In counties having more than one representative or senatorial district, the territory in the same county annexed to or merged with a city between apportionments shall become a part of a contiguous representative or senatorial district in the city with which it is combined, if provided by ordinance of the city. The district or districts with which the territory shall be combined shall be determined by such ordinance certified to the secretary of state. No such change in the boundaries of a representative or senatorial district shall have the effect of removing a legislator from office during his term.

Sec. 5. Island areas are considered to be contiguous by land to the county of which they are a part.

Sec. 6. A commission on legislative apportionment is hereby established consisting of eight electors, four of whom shall be selected by the state organizations of each of the two political parties whose candidates for governor received the highest vote at the last general election at which a governor was elected preceding each apportionment. If a candidate for governor of a third political party has received at such election more than 25 percent of such gubernatorial vote, the commission shall consist of 12 members, four of whom shall be selected by the state organization of the third political party. One resident of each of the following four regions shall be selected by each political party organization: (1) the upper peninsula; (2) the northern part of the lower peninsula, north of a line drawn along the northern boundaries of the counties of Bay, Midland, Isabella, Mecosta, Newaygo and Oceana; (3) southwestern Michigan, those counties south of region (2) and west of a line drawn along the western boundaries of the counties of Bay, Saginaw, Shiawassee, Ingham, Jackson and Hillsdale; (4) southeastern Michigan, the remaining counties of the state.

No officers or employees of the federal, state or local governments, excepting notaries public and members of the armed forces reserve, shall be eligible for membership on the commission. Members of the commission shall not be eligible for election to the legislature until two years after the apportionment in which they participated becomes effective.

The commission shall be appointed immediately after the adoption of this constitution and whenever apportionment or districting of the legislature is required by the provisions of this constitution. Members of the commission shall hold office until each apportionment or districting plan becomes effective. Vacancies shall be filled in the same manner as for original appointment.

The secretary of state shall be secretary of the commission without vote, and in that capacity shall furnish, under the direction of the commission, all necessary technical services. The commission shall elect its own chairman, shall make its own rules of procedure, and shall receive compensation provided by law. The legislature shall appropriate funds to enable the commission to carry out its activities.

Within 30 days after the adoption of this constitution, and after the official total population count of each federal decennial census of the state and its political subdivisions is available, the secretary of state shall issue a call convening the commission not less than 30 nor more than 45 days thereafter. The commission shall complete its work within 180 days after all necessary census information is available. The commission shall proceed to district and apportion the senate and house of representatives according to the provisions of this constitution. All final decisions shall require the concurrence of a majority of the members of the commission. The commission shall hold public hearings as may be provided by law.

Each final apportionment and districting plan shall be published as provided by law within 30 days from the date of its adoption and shall become law 60 days after publication. The secretary of state shall keep a public record of all the proceedings of the commission and shall be responsible for the publication and distribution of each plan.

If a majority of the commission cannot agree on a plan, each member of the commission, individually or jointly with other members, may submit a proposed plan to the supreme court. The supreme court shall determine which plan complies most accurately with the constitutional requirements and shall direct that it be adopted by the commission and published as provided in this section.

Upon the application of any elector filed not later than 60 days after final publication of the plan, the supreme court, in the exercise of original jurisdiction, shall direct the secretary of state or the commission to perform their duties, may review any final plan adopted by the commission, and shall remand such plan to the commission for further action if it fails to comply with the requirements of this constitution.

Sec. 7. Each senator and representative must be a citizen of the United States, at least 21 years of age, and an elector of the district he represents. The removal of his domicile from the district shall be deemed a vacation of the office. No person who has been convicted of subversion or who has within the preceding 20 years been convicted of a felony involving a breach of public trust shall be eligible for either house of the legislature.

Sec. 8. No person holding any office, employment or position under the United States or this state or a political subdivision thereof, except notaries public and members of the armed forces reserve, may be a member of either house of the legislature.

Sec. 9. No person elected to the legislature shall receive any civil appointment within this state from the governor, except notaries public, from the legislature, or from any other state authority, during the term for which he is elected.

Sec. 10. No member of the legislature nor any state officer shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with the state or any political subdivision thereof which shall cause a substantial conflict of interest. The legislature shall further implement this provision by appropriate legislation.

Sec. 11. Senators and representatives shall be privileged from civil arrest and civil process during sessions of the legislature and for five days next before the commencement and after the termination thereof. They shall not be questioned in any other place for any speech in either house.

Sec. 12. The compensation and expense allowances of the members of the legislature shall be determined by law. Changes in compensation or expense allowances shall become effective only when legislators commence their terms of office after a general election.

Sec. 13. The legislature shall meet at the seat of government on the second Wednesday in January of each year at twelve o'clock noon. Each regular session shall adjourn without day, on a day determined by concurrent resolution, at twelve o'clock noon. Any business, bill or joint resolution pending at the final adjournment of a regular session held in an odd numbered year shall carry over with the same status to the next regular session.

Sec. 14. A majority of the members elected to and serving in each house shall constitute a quorum to do business. A smaller number in each house may adjourn from day to day, and may compel the attendance of absent members in the manner and with penalties as each house may prescribe.

Sec. 15. There shall be a bi-partisan legislative council consisting of legislators appointed in the manner prescribed by law. The legislature shall appropriate funds for the council's operations and provide for its staff which shall maintain bill drafting, research and other services for the members of the legislature. The council shall periodically examine and recommend to the legislature revision of the various laws of the state.

Sec. 16. Each house, except as otherwise provided in this constitution, shall choose its own officers and determine the rules of its proceedings, but shall not adopt any rule that will prevent a majority of the members elected thereto and serving therein from discharging a committee from the further consideration of any measure. Each house shall be the sole judge of the qualifications, elections and returns of its members, and may, with the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members elected thereto and serving therein, expel a member. The reasons for such expulsion shall be entered in the journal, with the votes and names of the members voting upon the question. No member shall be expelled a second time for the same cause.

Sec. 17. Each house of the legislature may establish the committees necessary for the efficient conduct of its business and the legislature may create joint committees. On all actions on bills and resolutions in each committee, names and votes of members shall be recorded. Such vote shall be available for public inspection. Notice of all committee hearings and a clear statement of all subjects to be considered at each hearing shall be published in the journal in advance of the hearing.

Sec. 18. Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and publish the same unless the public security otherwise requires. The record of the vote and name of the members of either house voting on any question shall be entered in the journal at the request of one-fifth of the members present. Any member of either house may dissent from and protest against any act, proceeding or resolution which he deems injurious to any person or the public, and have the reason for his dissent entered in the journal.

Sec. 19. All elections in either house or in joint convention and all votes on appointments submitted to the senate for advice and consent shall be published by vote and name in the journal.

Sec. 20. The doors of each house shall be open unless the public security otherwise requires.

Sec. 21. Neither house shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than two intervening calendar days, nor to any place other than where the legislature may then be in session.

Sec. 22. All legislation shall be by bill and may originate in either house.

Sec. 23. The style of the laws shall be: The People of the State of Michigan enact.

Sec. 24. No law shall embrace more than one object, which shall be expressed in its title. No bill shall be altered or amended on its passage through either house so as to change its original purpose as determined by its total content and not alone by its title.

Sec. 25. No law shall be revised, altered or amended by reference to its title only. The section or sections of the act altered or amended shall be re-enacted and published at length.

Sec. 26. No bill shall be passed or become a law at any regular session of the legislature until it has been printed or reproduced and in the possession of each house for at least five days. Every bill shall be read three times in each house before the final passage thereof. No bill shall become a law without the concurrence of a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house. On the final passage of bills, the votes and names of the members voting thereon shall be entered in the journal.

Sec. 27. No act shall take effect until the expiration of 90 days from the end of the session at which it was passed, but the legislature may give immediate effect to acts by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to and serving in each house.

Sec. 28. When the legislature is convened on extraordinary occasions in special session no bill shall be passed on any subjects other than those expressly stated in the governor's proclamation or submitted by special message.

Sec. 29. The legislature shall pass no local or special act in any case where a general act can be made applicable, and whether a general act can be made applicable shall be a judicial question. No local or special act shall take effect until approved by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house and by a majority of the electors voting thereon in the district affected. Any act repealing local or special acts shall require only a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house and shall not require submission to the electors of such district.

Sec. 30. The assent of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house of the legislature shall be required for the appropriation of public money or property for local or private purposes.

Sec. 31. The general appropriation bills for the succeeding fiscal period covering items set forth in the budget shall be passed or rejected in either house of the legislature before that house passes any appropriation bill for items not in the budget except bills supplementing appropriations for the current fiscal year's operation. Any bill requiring an appropriation to carry out its purpose shall be considered an appropriation bill. One of the general appropriation bills as passed by the legislature shall contain an itemized statement of estimated revenue by major source in each operating fund for the ensuing fiscal period, the total of which shall not be less than the total of all appropriations made from each fund in the general appropriation bills as passed.

Sec. 32. Every law which imposes, continues or revives a tax shall distinctly state the tax.

Sec. 33. Every bill passed by the legislature shall be presented to the governor before it becomes law, and the governor shall have 14 days measured in hours and minutes from the time of presentation in which to consider it. If he approves, he shall within that time sign and file it with the secretary of state and it shall become law. If he does not approve, and the legislature has within that time finally adjourned the session at which the bill was passed, it shall not become law. If he disapproves, and the legislature continues the session at which the bill was passed, he shall return it within such 14-day period with his objections, to the house in which it originated. That house shall enter such objections in full in its journal and reconsider the bill. If two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in that house pass the bill notwithstanding the objections of the governor, it shall be sent with the objections to the other house for reconsideration. The bill shall become law if passed by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in that house. The vote of each house shall be entered in the journal with the votes and names of the members voting thereon. If any bill is not returned by the governor within such 14-day period, the legislature continuing in session, it shall become law as if he had signed it.

Sec. 34. Any bill passed by the legislature and approved by the governor, except a bill appropriating money, may provide that it will not become law unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon.

Sec. 35. All laws enacted at any session of the legislature shall be published in book form within 60 days after final adjournment of the session, and shall be distributed in the manner provided by law. The prompt publication of judicial decisions shall be provided by law. All laws and judicial decisions shall be free for publication by any person.

Sec. 36. No general revision of the laws shall be made. The legislature may provide for a compilation of the laws in force, arranged without alteration, under appropriate heads and titles.

Sec. 37. The legislature may by concurrent resolution empower a joint committee of the legislature, acting between sessions, to suspend any rule or regulation promulgated by an administrative agency subsequent to the adjournment of the last preceding regular legislative session. Such suspension shall continue no longer than the end of the next regular legislative session.

Sec. 38. The legislature may provide by law the cases in which any office shall be vacant and the manner of filling vacancies where no provision is made in this constitution.

Sec. 39. In order to insure continuity of state and local governmental operations in periods of emergency only, resulting from disasters occurring in this state caused by enemy attack on the United States, the legislature may provide by law for prompt and temporary succession to the powers and duties of public offices, of whatever nature and whether filled by election or appointment, the incumbents of which may become unavailable for carrying on the powers and duties of such offices; and enact other laws necessary and proper for insuring the continuity of governmental operations. Notwithstanding the power conferred by this section, elections shall always be called as soon as possible to fill any vacancies in elective offices temporarily occupied by operation of any legislation enacted pursuant to the provisions of this section.

Sec. 40. The legislature may by law establish a liquor control commission which, subject to statutory limitations, shall exercise complete control of the alcoholic beverage traffic within this state, including the retail sales thereof. The legislature may provide for an excise tax on such sales. Neither the legislature nor the commission may authorize the manufacture or sale of alcoholic beverages in any county in which a majority of the electors voting thereon shall prohibit the same.

Sec. 41. The legislature shall not authorize any lottery nor permit the sale of lottery tickets.

Sec. 42. The legislature may provide for the incorporation of ports and port districts, and confer power and authority upon them to engage in work of internal improvements in connection therewith.

Sec. 43. No general law providing for the incorporation of trust companies or corporations for banking purposes, or regulating the business thereof, shall be enacted, amended or repealed except by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house.

Sec. 44. The legislature may authorize a trial by a jury of less than 12 jurors in civil cases.

Sec. 45. The legislature may provide for indeterminate sentences as punishment for crime and for the detention and release of persons imprisoned or detained under such sentences.

Sec. 46. No law shall be enacted providing for the penalty of death.

Sec. 47. The legislature may authorize the employment of chaplains in state institutions of detention or confinement.

Sec. 48. The legislature may enact laws providing for the resolution of disputes concerning public employees, except those in the state classified civil service.

Sec. 49. The legislature may enact laws relative to the hours and conditions of employment.

Sec. 50. The legislature may provide safety measures and regulate the use of atomic energy and forms of energy developed in the future, having in view the general welfare of the people of this state.

Sec. 51. The public health and general welfare of the people of the state are hereby declared to be matters of primary public concern. The legislature shall pass suitable laws for the protection and promotion of the public health.

Sec. 52. The conservation and development of the natural resources of the state are hereby declared to be of paramount public concern in the interest of the health, safety and general welfare of the people. The legislature shall provide for the protection of the air, water and other natural resources of the state from pollution, impairment and destruction.

Sec. 53. The legislature by a majority vote of the members elected to and serving in each house, shall appoint an auditor general, who shall be a certified public accountant licensed to practice in this state, to serve for a term of eight years. He shall be ineligible for appointment or election to any other public office in this state from which compensation is derived while serving as auditor general and for two years following the termination of his service. He may be removed for cause at any time by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to and serving in each house. The auditor general shall conduct post audits of financial transactions and accounts of the state and of all branches, departments, offices, boards, commissions, agencies, authorities and institutions of the state established by this constitution or by law, and performance post audits thereof.

The auditor general upon direction by the legislature may employ independent accounting firms or legal counsel and may make investigations pertinent to the conduct of audits. He shall report annually to the legislature and to the governor and at such other times as he deems necessary or as required by the legislature. He shall be assigned no duties other than those specified in this section.

Nothing in this section shall be construed in any way to infringe the responsibility and constitutional authority of the governing boards of the institutions of higher education to be solely responsible for the control and direction of all expenditures from the institutions' funds.

The auditor general, his deputy and one other member of his staff shall be exempt from classified civil service. All other members of his staff shall have classified civil service status.

ARTICLE V

Executive Branch

Sec. 1. The executive power is vested in the governor.

Sec. 2. All executive and administrative offices, agencies and instrumentalities of the executive branch of state government and their respective functions, powers and duties, except for the office of governor and lieutenant governor and the governing bodies of institutions of higher education provided for in this constitution, shall be allocated by law among and within not more than 20 principal departments. They shall be grouped as far as practicable according to major purposes.

Subsequent to the initial allocation, the governor may make changes in the organization of the executive branch or in the assignment of functions among its units which he considers necessary for efficient administration. Where these changes require the force of law, they shall be set forth in executive orders and submitted to the legislature. Thereafter the legislature shall have 60 calendar days of a regular session, or a full regular session if of shorter duration, to disapprove each executive order. Unless disapproved in both houses by a resolution concurred in by a majority of the members elected to and serving in each house, each order shall become effective at a date thereafter to be designated by the governor.

Sec. 3. The head of each principal department shall be a single executive unless otherwise provided in this constitution or by law. The single executives heading principal departments shall include a secretary of state, a state treasurer and an attorney general. When a single executive is the head of a principal department, unless elected or appointed as otherwise provided in this constitution, he shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate and he shall serve at the pleasure of the governor.

When a board or commission is at the head of a principal department, unless elected or appointed as otherwise provided in this constitution, the members thereof shall be appointed by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The term of office and procedure for removal of such members shall be as prescribed in this constitution or by law.

Terms of office of any board or commission created or enlarged after the effective date of this constitution shall not exceed four years except as otherwise authorized in this constitution. The terms of office of existing boards and commissions which are longer than four years shall not be further extended except as provided in this constitution.

Sec. 4. Temporary commissions or agencies for special purposes with a life of no more than two years may be established by law and need not be allocated within a principal department.

Sec. 5. A majority of the members of an appointed examining or licensing board of a profession shall be members of that profession.

Sec. 6. Appointment by and with the advice and consent of the senate when used in this constitution or laws in effect or hereafter enacted means appointment subject to disapproval by a majority vote of the members elected to and serving in the senate if such action is taken within 60 session days after the date of such appointment. Any appointment not disapproved within such period shall stand confirmed.

Sec. 7. Vacancies in any office, appointment to which requires advice and consent of the senate, shall be filled by the governor by and with the advice and consent of the senate. A person whose appointment has been disapproved by the senate shall not be eligible for an interim appointment to the same office.

Sec. 8. Each principal department shall be under the supervision of the governor unless otherwise provided by this constitution. The governor shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed. He shall transact all necessary business with the officers of government and may require information in writing from all executive and administrative state officers, elective and appointive, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices.

The governor may initiate court proceedings in the name of the state to enforce compliance with any constitutional or legislative mandate, or to restrain violations of any constitutional or legislative power, duty or right by any officer, department or agency of the state or any of its political subdivisions. This authority shall not be construed to authorize court proceedings against the legislature.

Sec. 9. Single executives heading principal departments and the chief executive officers of principal departments headed by boards or commissions shall keep their offices at the seat of government except as otherwise provided by law, superintend them in person and perform duties prescribed by law.

Finance and Taxation

Sec. 1. The legislature shall impose taxes sufficient with other resources to pay the expenses of state government.

Sec. 2. The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away.

Sec. 3. The legislature shall provide for the uniform general ad valorem taxation of real and tangible personal property not exempt by law. The legislature shall provide for the determination of true cash value of such property; the proportion of true cash value at which such property shall be uniformly assessed, which shall not, after January 1, 1966, exceed 50 percent; and for a system of equalization of assessments. The legislature may provide for alternative means of taxation of designated real and tangible personal property in lieu of general ad valorem taxation. Every tax other than the general ad valorem property tax shall be uniform upon the class or classes on which it operates.

Sec. 4. Property owned and occupied by non-profit religious or educational organizations and used exclusively for religious or educational purposes, as defined by law, shall be exempt from real and personal property taxes.

Sec. 5. The legislature shall provide for the assessment by the state of the property of those public service businesses assessed by the state at the date this constitution becomes effective, and of other property as designated by the legislature, and for the imposition and collection of taxes thereon. Property assessed by the state shall be assessed at the same proportion of its true cash value as the legislature shall specify for property subject to general ad valorem taxation. The rate of taxation on such property shall be the average rate levied upon other property in this state under the general ad valorem tax law, or, if the legislature provides, the rate of tax applicable to the property of each business enterprise assessed by the state shall be the average rate of ad valorem taxation levied upon other property in all counties in which any of such property is situated.

Sec. 6. Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, the total amount of general ad valorem taxes imposed upon real and tangible personal property for all purposes in any one year shall not exceed 15 mills on each dollar of the assessed valuation of property as finally equalized. Under procedures provided by law, which shall guarantee the right of initiative, separate tax limitations for any county and for the townships and for school districts therein, the aggregate of which shall not exceed 18 mills on each dollar of such valuation, may be adopted and thereafter altered by the vote of a majority of the qualified electors of such county voting thereon, in lieu of the limitation hereinbefore established. These limitations may be increased to an aggregate of not to exceed 50 mills on each dollar of valuation, for a period of not to exceed 20 years at any one time, if approved by a majority of the electors, qualified under Section 6 of Article II of this constitution, voting on the question.

The foregoing limitations shall not apply to taxes imposed for the payment of principal and interest on bonds or other evidences of indebtedness or for the payment of assessments or contract obligations in anticipation of which bonds are issued, which taxes may be imposed without limitation as to rate or amount; or to taxes imposed for any other purpose by any city, village, charter county, charter township, charter authority or other authority, the tax limitations of which are provided by charter or by general law.

In any school district which extends into two or more counties, property taxes at the highest rate available in the county which contains the greatest part of the area of the district may be imposed and collected for school purposes throughout the district.

Sec. 7. No income tax graduated as to rate or base shall be imposed by the state or any of its subdivisions.

Sec. 8. The legislature shall not impose a sales tax on retailers at a rate of more than four percent of their gross taxable sales of tangible personal property.

Sec. 9. All specific taxes, except general sales and use taxes and regulatory fees, imposed directly or indirectly on fuels sold or used to propel motor vehicles upon highways and on registered motor vehicles shall, after the payment of necessary collection expenses, be used exclusively for highway purposes as defined by law.

Sec. 10. One-eighth of all taxes imposed on retailers on taxable sales at retail of tangible personal property shall be used exclusively for assistance to townships, cities and villages, on a population basis as provided by law. In determining population the legislature may exclude any portion of the total number of persons who are wards, patients or convicts in any tax supported institution.

Sec. 11. There shall be established a state school aid fund which shall be used exclusively for aid to school districts, higher education and school employees' retirement systems, as provided by law. One-half of all taxes imposed on retailers on taxable sales at retail of tangible personal property, and other tax revenues provided by law, shall be dedicated to this fund. Payments from this fund shall be made in full on a scheduled basis, as provided by law.

Sec. 12. No evidence of state indebtedness shall be issued except for debts authorized pursuant to this constitution.

Sec. 13. Public bodies corporate shall have power to borrow money and to issue their securities evidencing debt, subject to this constitution and law.

Sec. 14. To meet obligations incurred pursuant to appropriations for any fiscal year, the legislature may by law authorize the state to issue its full faith and credit notes in which case it shall pledge undedicated revenues to be received within the same fiscal year for the repayment thereof. Such indebtedness in any fiscal year shall not exceed 15 percent of undedicated revenues received by the state during the preceding fiscal year and such debts shall be repaid at the time the revenues so pledged are received, but not later than the end of the same fiscal year.

Sec. 15. The state may borrow money for specific purposes in amounts as may be provided by acts of the legislature adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house, and approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at any general election. The question submitted to the electors shall state the amount to be borrowed, the specific purpose to which the funds shall be devoted, and the method of repayment.

Sec. 16. The state, in addition to any other borrowing power, may borrow from time to time such amounts as shall be required, pledge its faith and credit and issue its notes or bonds therefor, for the purpose of making loans to school districts as provided in this section.

If the minimum amount which would otherwise be necessary for a school district to levy in any year to pay principal and interest on its qualified bonds, including any necessary allowances for estimated tax delinquencies, exceeds 13 mills on each dollar of its assessed valuation as finally equalized, or such lower millage as the legislature may prescribe, then the school district may elect to borrow all or any part of the excess from the state. In that event the state shall lend the excess amount to the school district for the payment of principal and interest. If for any reason any school district will be or is unable to pay the principal and interest on its qualified bonds when due, then the school district shall borrow and the state shall lend to it an amount sufficient to enable the school district to make the payment.

The term "qualified bonds" means general obligation bonds of school districts issued for capital expenditures, including refunding bonds, issued prior to May 4, 1955, or issued thereafter and qualified as provided by law pursuant to Section 27 or Section 28 of Article X of the Constitution of 1908 or pursuant to this section.

After a school district has received loans from the state, each year thereafter it shall levy for debt service, exclusive of levies for nonqualified bonds, not less than 13 mills or such lower millage as the legislature may prescribe, until the amount loaned has been repaid, and any tax collections therefrom in any year over and above the minimum requirements for principal and interest on qualified bonds shall be used toward the repayment of state loans. In any year when such levy would produce an amount in excess of the requirements and the amount due to the state, the levy may be reduced by the amount of the excess.

Subject to the foregoing provisions, the legislature shall have the power to prescribe and to limit the procedure, terms and conditions for the qualification of bonds, for obtaining and making state loans, and for the repayment of loans.

The power to tax for the payment of principal and interest on bonds hereafter issued which are the general obligations of any school district, including refunding bonds, and for repayment of any state loans made to school districts, shall be without limitation as to rate or amount.

All rights acquired under Sections 27 and 28 of Article X of the Constitution of 1908, by holders of bonds heretofore issued, and all obligations assumed by the state or any school district under these sections, shall remain unimpaired.

Sec. 17. No money shall be paid out of the state treasury except in pursuance of appropriations made by law.

Sec. 18. The credit of the state shall not be granted to, nor in aid of any person, association or corporation, public or private, except as authorized in this constitution.

This section shall not be construed to prohibit the investment of public funds until needed for current requirements or the investment of funds accumulated to provide retirement or pension benefits for public officials and employees, as provided by law.

Sec. 19. The state shall not subscribe to, nor be interested in the stock of any company, association or corporation, except that funds accumulated to provide retirement or pension benefits for public officials and employees may be invested as provided by law; and endowment funds created for charitable or educational purposes may be invested as provided by law governing the investment of funds held in trust by trustees.

Sec. 20. No state money shall be deposited in banks other than those organized under the national or state banking laws. No state money shall be deposited in any bank in excess of 50 percent of the capital and surplus of such bank. Any bank receiving deposits of state money shall show the amount of state money so deposited as a separate item in all published statements.

Sec. 21. The legislature shall provide by law for the annual accounting for all public moneys, state and local, and may provide by law for interim accounting.

The legislature shall provide by law for the maintenance of uniform accounting systems by units of local government and the auditing of county accounts by competent state authority and other units of government as provided by law.

Sec. 22. Procedures for the examination and adjustment of claims against the state shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. 23. All financial records, accountings, audit reports and other reports of public moneys shall be public records and open to inspection. A statement of all revenues and expenditures of public moneys shall be published and distributed annually, as provided by law.

Sec. 24. The accrued financial benefits of each pension plan and retirement system of the state and its political subdivisions shall be a contractual obligation thereof which shall not be diminished or impaired thereby.

Financial benefits arising on account of service rendered in each fiscal year shall be funded during that year and such funding shall not be used for financing unfunded accrued liabilities.

A homestead in the amount of not less than $3,500 and personal property of every resident of this state in the amount of not less than $750, as defined by law, shall be exempt from forced sale on execution or other process of any court. Such exemptions shall not extend to any lien thereon excluded from exemption by law.

Sec. 4. Procedures relating to escheats and to the custody and disposition of escheated property shall be prescribed by law.

Sec. 5. The legislature shall have general supervisory jurisdiction over all state owned lands useful for forest preserves, game areas and recreational purposes; shall require annual reports as to such lands from all departments having supervision or control thereof; and shall by general law provide for the sale, lease or other disposition of such lands.

The legislature by an act adopted by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house may designate any part of such lands as a state land reserve. No lands in the state land reserve may be removed from the reserve, sold, leased or otherwise disposed of except by an act of the legislature.

Sec. 6. Aliens who are residents of this state shall enjoy the same rights and privileges in property as citizens of this state.

ARTICLE XI

Sec. 1. All officers, legislative, executive and judicial, before entering upon the duties of their respective offices, shall take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the Constitution of the United States and the constitution of this state, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of the office of according to the best of my ability. Sec. 5. The classified state civil service shall consist of all positions in the state service except those filled by popular election, heads of principal departments, members of boards and commissions, the principal executive officer of boards and commissions heading principal departments, employees of courts of record, employees of the legislature, employees of the state institutions of higher education, all persons in the armed forces of the state, eight exempt positions in the office of the governor, and within each principal department, when requested by the department head, two other exempt positions, one of which shall be policy-making. The civil service commission may exempt three additional positions of a policy-making nature within each principal department.

The civil service commission shall be non-salaried and shall consist of four persons, not more than two of whom shall be members of the same political party, appointed by the governor for terms of eight years, no two of which shall expire in the same year.

Increases in rates of compensation authorized by the commission may be effective only at the start of a fiscal year and shall require prior notice to the governor, who shall transmit such increases to the legislature as part of his budget. The legislature may, by a majority vote of the members elected to and serving in each house, waive the notice and permit increases in rates of compensation to be effective at a time other than the start of a fiscal year. Within 60 calendar days following such transmission, the legislature may, by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to and serving in each house, reject or reduce increases in rates of compensation authorized by the commission. Any reduction ordered by the legislature shall apply uniformly to all classes of employees affected by the increases and shall not adjust pay differentials already established by the civil service commission. The legislature may not reduce rates of compensation below those in effect at the time of the transmission of increases authorized by the commission.

The commission shall furnish reports of expenditures, at least annually, to the governor and the legislature and shall be subject to annual audit as provided by law.

No payment for personal services shall be made or authorized until the provisions of this constitution pertaining to civil service have been complied with in every particular. The senators shall take an oath or affirmation truly and impartially to try and determine the impeachment according to the evidence. When the governor or lieutenant governor is tried, the chief justice of the supreme court shall preside.

No judicial officer shall exercise any of the functions of his office after an impeachment is directed until he is acquitted.

ARTICLE XII

Sec. 1. Amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate or house of representatives. Proposed amendments agreed to by two-thirds of the members elected to and serving in each house on a vote with the names and vote of those voting entered in the respective journals shall be submitted, not less than 60 days thereafter, to the electors at the next general election or special election as the legislature shall direct. If a majority of electors voting on a proposed amendment approve the same, it shall become part of the constitution and shall abrogate or amend existing provisions of the constitution at the end of 45 days after the date of the election at which it was approved.

Sec. 2. Amendments may be proposed to this constitution by petition of the registered electors of this state. Every petition shall include the full text of the proposed amendment, and be signed by registered electors of the state equal in number to at least 10 percent of the total vote cast for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election at which a governor was elected. Such petitions shall be filed with the person authorized by law to receive the same at least 120 days before the election at which the proposed amendment is to be voted upon. Any such petition shall be in the form, and shall be signed and circulated in such manner, as prescribed by law. The person authorized by law to receive such petition shall upon its receipt determine, as provided by law, the validity and sufficiency of the signatures on the petition, and make an official announcement thereof at least 60 days prior to the election at which the proposed amendment is to be voted upon.

Any amendment proposed by such petition shall be submitted, not less than 120 days after it was filed, to the electors at the next general election. Such proposed amendment, existing provisions of the constitution which would be altered or abrogated thereby, and the question as it shall appear on the ballot shall be published in full as provided by law. Copies of such publication shall be posted in each polling place and furnished to news media as provided by law.

The ballot to be used in such election shall contain a statement of the purpose of the proposed amendment, expressed in not more than 100 words, exclusive of caption. Such statement of purpose and caption shall be prepared by the person authorized by law, and shall consist of a true and impartial statement of the purpose of the amendment in such language as shall create no prejudice for or against the proposed amendment.

If the proposed amendment is approved by a majority of the electors voting on the question, it shall become part of the constitution, and shall abrogate or amend existing provisions of the constitution at the end of 45 days after the date of the election at which it was approved. If two or more amendments approved by the electors at the same election conflict, that amendment receiving the highest affirmative vote shall prevail.

Sec. 3. At the general election to be held in the year 1978, and in each 16th year thereafter and at such times as may be provided by law, the question of a general revision of the constitution shall be submitted to the electors of the state. If a majority of the electors voting on the question decide in favor of a convention for such purpose, at an election to be held not later than six months after the proposal was certified as approved, the electors of each representative district as then organized shall elect one delegate and the electors of each senatorial district as then organized shall elect one delegate at a partisan election. The delegates so elected shall convene at the seat of government on the first Tuesday in October next succeeding such election or at an earlier date if provided by law.

The convention shall choose its own officers, determine the rules of its proceedings and judge the qualifications, elections and returns of its members. To fill a vacancy in the office of any delegate, the governor shall appoint a qualified resident of the same district who shall be a member of the same party as the delegate vacating the office. The convention shall have power to appoint such officers, employees and assistants as it deems necessary and to fix their compensation; to provide for the printing and distribution of its documents, journals and proceedings; to explain and disseminate information about the proposed constitution and to complete the business of the convention in an orderly manner. Each delegate shall receive for his services compensation provided by law.

No proposed constitution or amendment adopted by such convention shall be submitted to the electors for approval as hereinafter provided unless by the assent of a majority of all the delegates elected to and serving in the convention, with the names and vote of those voting entered in the journal. Any proposed constitution or amendments adopted by such convention shall be submitted to the qualified electors in the manner and at the time provided by such convention not less than 90 days after final adjournment of the convention. Upon the approval of such constitution or amendments by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon the constitution or amendments shall take effect as provided by the convention.

[ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE]

What the Proposed
New State Constitution Means to You

- A report to the people of Michigan by their elected delegates to the Constitutional Convention of 1961-62.

Lansing, Michigan

August 1, 1962

3. Removes incumbent justices farther from political considerations by permitting them to become candidates for re-election by filing an affidavit of candidacy not less than 180 days prior to the expiration of their terms.

Latitude is given to the legislature in the method to be prescribed for nominating candidates for the supreme court, but elections continue to be non-partisan.

Supreme court; chief justice.

Sec. 3. One justice of the supreme court shall be selected by the court as its chief justice as provided by rules of the court. He shall perform duties required by the court. The supreme court shall appoint an administrator of the courts and other assistants of the supreme court as may be necessary to aid in the administration of the courts of this state. The administrator shall perform administrative duties assigned by the court.

This is a new section giving constitutional sanction for the selection of the Chief Justice by members of the court. This has been the practice for several decades, although Sec. 2, Article VII, of the present constitution requires that he "be chosen by the electors of the state." Duties of the Chief Justice would be those "required by the court."

The third and fourth sentences of the section give constitutional sanction to the existing office of Administrator of the Courts and clearly spell out the source of his authority. The language implements references to "superintending control" over all courts of lesser jurisdiction in Sec. 4, Article VII, of the present constitution and this proposed Article.

Supreme court; jurisdiction.

*Sec. 4. The supreme court shall have * general superintending control over all * courts;  power to issue, * hear and determine prerogative and remedial writs;  and appellate jurisdiction as provided by rules of the supreme court. The supreme court shall not have the power to remove a judge.*

This is a revision of Sec. 4, Article VII, of the present constitution. It substitutes the general term "prerogative and remedial writs" for the list of historic writs contained in the present document. The court is permitted to control its appellate jurisdiction by rule, but it is denied the power to remove a judge.

Supreme court; rules.

Sec. 5. The supreme court shall by general rules establish, modify, amend and simplify the practice and procedure in all courts of this state.  The distinctions between law and equity proceedings shall, as far as practicable, be abolished. The office of master in chancery is prohibited.

This is a revision of Sec. 5, Article VII, of the present constitution. In addition to existing powers of the court, power is conferred to simplify both practice and procedure.

The second sentence gives constitutional sanction to the state Judicature Act of 1960 by which distinctions between law and equity have been abolished.

Supreme court; written decisions.

*Sec. 6. Decisions of the supreme court, including all decisions on prerogative writs, shall be in writing  and shall contain a concise statement of the facts and reasons for each decision and reasons for each denial of leave to appeal. When a judge dissents in whole or in part he shall give in writing the reasons for his dissent. *****

This is a revision of Sec. 7, Article VII, of the present constitution. The reference to "prerogative writs" replaces the list of historic writs contained in the present document. The proposed section continues the requirement of written opinions with a statement of facts and reasons for each decision. The final sentence requires a statement of reasons for all dissents whether in whole or in part.

The eliminated language of the present constitution requiring signature on opinions and their filing is regarded as excess verbiage. This practice is well established and it appears unnecessary to encumber the constitution with this requirement.

Supreme court; staff supervision.

*Sec. 7. The supreme court may appoint, may remove, and shall have general supervision of its staff. It shall have control of the preparation of its budget recommendations and the expenditure of moneys appropriated for any purpose pertaining to the operation of the court or the performance of activities of its staff except that the salaries of the justices shall be established by law. All fees and perquisites  collected by the court staff shall be turned over  to the state treasury and credited to the general fund. *****

This is a revision of Sec. 6, Article VII, of the present constitution. It extends the appointive power of the supreme court and its supervising control to its entire staff, instead of limiting it to court officers specifically named in the present document.

The court is granted control of the preparation of its budget recommendations and the expenditure of funds appropriated for its activities, except for salaries of the justices which are established by the legislature. The section requires that fees and perquisites collected by the court staff be turned over to the state's general fund.

COURT OF APPEALS

Court of appeals; judges; elections.

Sec. 8. The court of appeals shall consist initially of nine judges who shall be nominated and elected at non-partisan elections from districts drawn on county lines and as nearly as possible of equal population, as provided by law. The supreme court may prescribe by rule that the court of appeals sit in divisions and for the terms of court and the times and places thereof. Each such division shall consist of not fewer than three judges. The number of judges comprising the court of appeals may be increased, and the districts from which they are elected may be changed by law.
